

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. The early processes of arithmetical work are explained at great length and with the fullest detail, elucidated by running expositions of the working of typical examples. . . . The author has shown great tact in presenting the whole theory and practice of arithmetic, so abundantly explained and exemplified and supplemented by examination papers within the compass of quite a moderate sized volume."—School Board Chronicle.

The Autobiography of an Acorn. By JAMES CROWTHER, Author of "The Five-Barred Gate." Crown 8vo, cloth boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

A volume illustrative of the romance of natural history, between the lines of which any thoughtful mind may discover the key to the riddle of life, and learn the best way to use it. It is illustrated with many figures, chiefly drawn from nature specially for the work.

The Horses of the Sun: Their Mysteries and their Mission. By JAMES CROWTHER, Author of "The Five-Barred Gate," "Solomon's Little People," &c. Crown 8vo, cloth boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

Is a popularly-written story of the myths and marvels of the sun, from the formation of a dewdrop to the phenomena of our world. Sun-worship in early human history, with the allegory of Phaëton, introduces a vast amount of matter which cannot fail to interest and instruct and often amuse both young and old; while the reader is gradually led onward and upward to the Light of the World. Well Illustrated.

"It is a storehouse of interesting and curious information about our great luminary and its marvels."—Literary World.

The Unwritten Record: A Story of the World we Live on. By JAMES CROWTHER. With an Introductory Note by Rev. J. R. MACDUFF, D.D. Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

Gives an account, in a popular style, of how the earth was formed and became fitted for man. It describes, in a most interesting way, its various geological formations, and is an admirable book for intelligent young people.

"'The unwritten Record' is a volume full of information pleasantly conveyed, concerning the harmony of the two great volumes—Nature and Revelation."

Literary World.

The Starry Cross: A Story of Dreamland. By JAMES CROWTHER, Author of "Solomon's Little People." Cloth boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

The author has given a great deal of information in this book, and uses as a medium of communication the leaves of trees, which tell their own tale about Christianity from its earliest days.

"It is well meant, and contains a mass of useful information."—Literary World.

Solomon's Little People: A Story about Ants. By J. CROWTHER. Crown 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, Illustrated, price 2s. 6d.

"Contains tales of ants and their habits; and it would be difficult to imagine anything more likely to interest young people, or any information that could be given to them of more value."—Scotsman.

6.—That the Executive may remove from the list of District Unions any District Union which holds no meeting or makes no report to the Executive for the space of twelve months.

7.—That all District Unions and Local Associations be required to forward a copy of their rules by December 31st of each year.

8.—That a Conference be held annually, consisting of the Executive, the Ex-presidents, and the representatives elected according to Rule 12.

9.—That the Annual Conference be held at Easter ; and that the place of meeting be agreed upon by ballot at a previous Annual Conference, but that Conferences may be held for special purposes at such times and places as the Executive may deem expedient, provided always that not less than seven days' notice be given to the Secretaries of Associations in Union.

10.—That at the opening of each Conference the Standing Orders prepared by the Executive be read, and, if approved, adopted. Scrutineers shall be appointed by the Conference to count up the votes, and to report to the President the result of the elections.

19.—That the Executive shall consist of the President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer of the Union, representatives of District Unions elected in accordance with Rule 22, and twenty-four other members elected in accordance with Rule 33. 21.—That in any meeting of the Executive duly summoned, seven members shall form a quorum.

23.—That should any vacancy arise during the year in the office of President, Vice-President, Treasurer, or Ex-President, the Executive shall fill up such vacancy until the next Annual Conference.

24.—That if any member of the Executive elected by Conference shall be absent for three successive months from the meetings of the Executive and its Committees, without reasons which are considered sufficient by the Executive, such person shall cease to be a member, and shall not be eligible for re-election until the next Annual Conference.

25.—That the travelling expenses of the members of the Executive elected by Conference, in attending meetings of the Executive and of Conference, be defrayed out of the funds of the Union.

27.—That the Annual Subscription to the National Union from each Association shall be at the rate of not less than seven shillings per member, of which two shillings shall be devoted to Legal and two shillings to Parliamentary purposes. In districts where no Local Association exists, teachers may pay their contributions direct to the General Secretary, subject to the following conditions:—(a) That they pay a subscription of 10s. 6d. a year ; (b) that they reside not less than five miles from one of the usual places of meeting of a Local Association ; (c) that, as soon as there are a sufficient number of individual members in any district to form a Local Association, and the Executive, after considering the facts of the case, are of opinion that an Association should be formed, a Local Association shall be forthwith formed and affiliated.

Members may hand their voting papers to the presiding officer at the meeting, or forward them to the Secretary of the Association previous to the election. At the close of the poll the presiding officer shall ascertain the number of votes given for each candidate, and shall place such number opposite each candidate's name on the official return. (c) The official return from each Association shall be signed by the presiding officer and by the secretary of the local association, and shall be forwarded, together with the voting papers, in a sealed envelope, to the General Secretary of the Union, within twenty-four hours. TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL CONFERENCE, 1892.

THE Twenty-third Annual Conference of the Union was held in the Mechanics Institute, Leeds, on April 18th, 19th, 20th, and 21st, 1892. The chair was taken by Mr. R. Sykes (Deputy President), at 2 p.m., on Easter Monday; and after some preliminary business, Mr. J. H. Yoxall, 202, Chippinghouse Road, Sharrow, Sheffield, was installed as president for the year 1892-3. Mr. Yoxall conducted the business with ability, and in the course of the First Session delivered his inaugural address. About six hundred Representatives from all parts of the country attended the Conference. The most complete and satisfactory arrangements had been made by the Leeds Conference Committee for the comfort and convenience of members of Conference.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

FELLOW EDUCATIONISTS,—My theme is FREE EDUCATION. I do not use the term in its narrow & s. d. acceptation—of that it is too late to discuss the principle and too soon to review the results. I am here to plead for the loosing of our national education from fetters that gall and hamper. In your name, the name of those who understand the work and do it, I claim that education shall be freed from neglect, mistrust, and mismanagement.

I.—THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

Much of what I must say will inferentially throw blame on the Education Department. So let me state, at the outset, that our criticism is friendly, not hostile. We are grateful for the reforms instituted by the present administration of the Education Office. In attacking principles of administration adopted in the past we do not attack those who are charged with the development of those principles in the present; we recognise that the officials of to-day are burdened and hindered by the errors of their predecessors back to 1862. We believe that the present-day administrators have done much to reform and amend the system; we believe that they desire to reform and amend it still further; and we agree that in such things it is wisdom to "hasten slowly." All this, however, does not relieve us of the citizen's duty to urge improvements in any affair of the State, and that is what this Conference is meant to do. There is public need for the meeting and the pronouncement of this Conference. As a rule the bureaucrat is the worst autocrat; as a rule a bureaucracy is incapable of initiatory reforms; and although, in this case, the Bureau desires to perfect and progress, it needs a helping hand on the wheel. We are here to lend that hand; we are here to claim the influence of public opinion in the same direction. That is our right, as citizens and as experts. We shall exercise our right; but if we do so frankly and powerfully, we do it courteously and respectfully also.

II.—THE NEGLECT OF EDUCATION.

I have said that education must be freed from neglect. By neglect I mean in particular the non-attendance of children at school, the tolerance of "schools" unworthy of the name, and the lack of co-ordination between one grade of school and another.

Absenteeism.—The teacher cannot train the absent; yet more than a quarter of the child-population are daily away from our schools. On the bases of the Education Department's computations and the census, the rolls of public elementary schools ought to display the names of 5,800,000 children; the actual number last year was 4,800,000. The Department reckons that, after reasonable hindrances are allowed for, 4,800,000 children ought daily to be at school; the actual number last year was 3,700,000. Thus there are 1,000,000 children of the poorer classes who never enter the public elementary schools at all; and of those who ever enter, 1,100,000 are absent every day. There is small hope that assisted education will have had much effect on these figures.

Surely we teachers may reasonably ask a better state of things than that. We may contrive to make bricks without straw, perhaps, but we can't make bricks without clay. We are told in certain quarters that the teacher's influence ought to attract the children to school. So it does; minus the teacher's influence the school attendance would be nothing like the normal 78 per cent. on rolls, it would barely be sixty in the hundred. The teacher's influence on the children sent to school at all induces three-fourths of them regularly to attend; but on the remaining fourth, on those who attend seldom, as on those who never attend at all, the teacher's influence cannot be exerted. "The Spanish fleet thou canst not see because 'tis not in sight." That always or nearly always absent "submerged fourth" includes the waif and stray, the Bedouin of the street, the descendant of scores of ignorant forefathers, the quiversful of the drunken, vicious, or criminal, the little hereditary bondsmen of fond parents who batten on their offspring's petty gains. These are the adolescent convicts who curse and brutalise each other, day after day, in the gutter under the very school walls, unchecked, unnetted; who play the Tempter to the decent school boy's Eve, and lure him off to the wild joys of filth and truancy; who educate themselves for the Casual Ward, or study for a degree in Fagin's gallows school. These are they who, of all the family of John Bull, most need to be humanised by the teacher, and these are they whom the teacher never gets the chance to humanise.

School Boards were invented twenty-one years ago; the Compulsory Attendance Act is fifteen years old. Yet even now there are children wilfully absent for fifteen months at a stretch; even now there are healthy children who begin school four years later than the law directs; even now there are sturdy children of thirteen who have never attended school at all! "Oh, you mean the nomads, the gipsies and van-dwellers," may be answered by those who do not know. Not at all; I mean the regular irregulars, the resident absentees. "This school has stood here (a slum district) for seven and a half years" reports one despairing teacher. "There are boys who have lived within a biscuit throw the whole time who have never entered this or any other school. Last week the average attendance was 69 per cent., and yet all the boys live near. I placed a list before the School Board yesterday, containing 62 names; none of the 62 have any legitimate cause for absence. That return is for the last seven weeks. The aggregate of possible attendances for the 62 cases is therefore 4,340; the actual attendances were 1,195, the percentage for the 62 cases being 27." Only 27 attendances in the hundred, only 1,195 times out of the 4,340 times due at school! Bad enough, and yet thousands of teachers in England and Wales can cite cases as bad or worse. Our intimate daily experience of this miserable business enables us and entitles us to affirm that on the whole the compulsion of school attendance in this country is an inexcusable failure: the attendance would be hardly any worse if there were no pretence of compulsion at all.

Whose is the fault? The blame must be shared by the local school authority and the magistracy; it were waste of breath to blame the parents. School compulsion has been compared to a net. The net is cast, no doubt, but it is a net with wide and brittle meshes, through which the small fry readily escape in shoals. Last year one of the Government Inspectors of Schools reported thus:—"I have heard the local authorities' side of the question, I have heard what the teachers say, and I have listened to cases on the bench; and it seems to me that if a parent elects to systematically defy the law he can quite easily do so." Wrote another:—"Some School Boards eschew prosecutions as far as they can, on the score of expense"; another: "The supineness of the Attendance Committees is fostered, if not engendered, by the leniency of the magistrates"; and another refers to "The dislike of the magistrates to enforce the law." I could multiply these quotations if the failure of the system were not patent and rather to be palliated nor denied. I pass now to state the causes and the remedy.

Outside large School Board areas the local authority is usually apathetic, if not intentionally lax; the members of small Boards and Attendance Committees are often ignoramuses, and often employers of illegal child labour. Outside large School Board areas, the paid attendance officer is often Jack-of-all-trades. How can he who is "attendance officer, county court officer, town crier, bill sticker, debt collector, and auctioneer's man," devote much time to absentees? Even when a reasonable amount of time is devoted, the field of operations is vastly too large. How can one officer enforce school attendance in ninety parishes, or an area of 140 square miles? And, again, how can zealous discharge of this duty be expected when the officer, out of a salary of £5 to £15, has to advance the cost of the summons, and lie out of his money for a year at a time, if not for ever? One teacher reports: "It is nine-and-a-half years ago since any parent was summoned, and then nominal fines were inflicted, which have not yet been paid." "One parent has, to my personal knowledge, been summoned before the Bench four times," writes another teacher. "He has never attended the Court, and has never been fined a single farthing. This is not an isolated case." An isolated case! by no means. Not one of you but could cite an example of some Justice Shallow's dislike of popular education betraying itself in malfeasance against the Education Act which he is sworn to enforce. And it is not the county magistrates alone who covertly defeat the law in this respect; even the ablest attendance officers in the largest centres of population know that pas de zèle is the order of the day in the magistrates' court for school cases. When the Great Unpaid are not governed by hostility to popular education, they tend to be led away by sentimental considerations that do not truly apply. No one better knows than the teacher that piteous cases occur in which to enforce the law would be cruel; but those are seldom the cases that come before what is often so fitly called "the Bench." It may be taken as almost axiomatic that whenever the local authority plucks up sense of duty enough to prosecute, then the offence is inexcusable indeed. But even when a conviction is obtained, the usual fine is farcically inadequate. It ranges from 6d. to 2s. 6d., and seldom carries costs; only repeated and protracted absenteeism is ever visited with the 5s. fine and the 2s. 6d. costs; and if the child attends school for a week or so after conviction, the penalty is often remitted. And even when the maximum penalty is enforced and paid, the illegally-employed child has earned enough during the period of absence to defray the penalty a dozen times over. It positively pays a parent to defy the law.

Plainly, therefore, the majority of the local authorities and the magistracy are ineffectual guardians of our national education, and we are justified in demanding a reform. We ask that steps be taken to improve the personnel of attendance committees, to enlarge the areas, and so enlarge the ideas, of small School Boards to increase the number of attendance officers and diminish the length of their beats, to amend the statutory qualifications for juvenile labour, and to appoint special magistrates for school cases. Short of these remedies there can be no considerable permanent reform; and short of a considerable permanent reform the Compulsory Education Act will continue to be mainly paper.

"Half-time."—But it must be remembered that the neglect of education and the amount of absenteeism are aggravated by the system which permits parents to wring a few shillings a week out of the premature toil of their children during half the school day; 13 per cent. of the scholars over ten years of age spend only half the day in school. In very many districts the attainment of Standard III., or even Standard II. (in some places Standard I.), enables a lad to become a "half-timer," which means, in most cases, a halting and disjointed education for him during the remainder of his boyish years. I suppose it would be impractical for us to ask the abolition of the principle of half-time schooling; England is too poor for that. But I point it out as a serious item in the long indictment which we bring against the school attendance system as carried out in this country; and even when the system has dragooned the little toiler into the class-room, you of the "half-time" schools who listen to me, know that he cannot make the best use of the few hours of opportunity for enlightenment that are afforded him. The shrieking whistle or booming "buzzer" has shaken him out of the dreamland in which he alone is ever happy; a scant and indigested breakfast hastened over, he gropes through the dismal streets in the half-light of early winter morning; shivering, he passes into the clattering, bewildering mill; wearily he stands and toils there, hour after hour, with hollow chest and racking limbs too often; then "rushing forth from the temperature of the tropics into the bitter air of a northern winter," he gulps down a hurried meal, tramps to school, and falls asleep there—mentally, if not always physically—asleep and inert. And this is believed to be an essential part of the commercial and educational systems of the land of the free and the land of the Bible! By the bare majority of sixteen votes last session the House of Commons raised the half-time age to eleven after 1st January, 1893. That will mean one year more of effectual education in each case, perhaps; and for that we must be duly grateful. To that extent "The Cry of the Children" has not been sung in vain.

Makeshift Schools.—But the national tendency towards neglect and makeshift in matters educational is shown in other ways; it is shown in the dark and stuffy buildings and the marine-stores apparatus, amidst which so many certificated teachers, ill-paid and unaided, are compelled to toil. All over the land you may find them, these wretched places, that rank on the list of State-aided schools and are reckoned as parts of the educational machinery of the greatest and wealthiest nation in the world. The remarkable and unimpeachable progress made in English education is seen in the fact that in many of the oldest villages in England and Wales there still are school buildings that would scarcely disgrace the newest back-woods settlement in America! Then there are the "schools" which the State, through the local authority, recognises but does not support. In every populous district you may find them ; dame-schools, where the only desk is the top of an old-fashioned mangle, which fell into desuetude when "rheumatiz" made the laundress turn teacher : dwelling-houses where some sixty children are cooped in low rooms ten feet square : "academies" where the principal is a bankrupt plumber or a versatile individual with a weakness for gin : "seminaries" like that ~~one~~ recently described in the local newspaper—"A broken-down cottage house, in which there were only a desk, a table, and some benches ; no blackboard, books, maps, or other outward indications of school training ; but there were some sweets in the window for the children to buy." Such are the "schools" in which a myriad of children are allowed to waste their golden opportunity : such are the places which illustrate the truth of Quick's bitter remark that "school-keeping and education have no necessary connection," and literally attest the idea of Emerson that "the value of school education is to show the boy its little avail" : such are the illicit stills of learning at which a paternal Government winks with purblind eye. Slowly the Board Schools rise, and here or there compel "the pirate schoolmaster" to take down his sign ; but while this tardy process of tacit competition is proceeding, the makeshift "knowledge-shops," untested as to sanitation or education, are allowed to trade without a charter, to give false weight and measure, to defraud the parent, and irreparably neglect the child. When the national balance-sheet in education is considered we must strike off from the credit side most of the attendances made at schools like those.

The Missing Rungs.—Yet the chief sign of English neglect of education is, perhaps, the lack of dovetailing between one order of school and another. We boast a few higher grade Board schools, and a few higher grade Voluntary schools ; and there are a few foundation scholarships at grammar schools here and there, to which the brilliant scholar from the primary school may have access. But there is positively no system of co-ordination between elementary school and secondary school in this country. Austria can have its kindergarten, primary, higher, technical, and commercial schools, all definitely arranged as broad and easy steps in the stair which culminates at the portals of the universities ; and well might the Emperor declare the cause of the rapid extension of Austria's trading and financial interests to be "the admirable system of public education in active operation throughout the dominion." But in England the ladder is gapped by missing rungs, solutions of continuity which a golden bridge alone can span. In England the secondary school exists for the child with the most pocket money, not for the child with the most brains. I marvel that the great English middle-class—upon whom the rates and taxes for education most heavily fall—do not demand from the State a provision of authorised high schools ; I wonder that the Chambers of Commerce do not require for the most trading country in the world a system of commercial schools ; and I lament that the democracy, armed with the vote, do not insist that from infant school to university the climb for the clever poor child shall be continuously open and free. That is a dream—a dream as beautiful as the rainbow, and as fleeting—I shall be told; but until that dream becomes fact, this great and wealthy nation of ours must stand condemned as a land of educational make-believe, in which the statesmen elaborately “play at education,” much as children in the nursery elaborately “play at school.”

III.—MISTRUST IN EDUCATION.

I said that education must be freed from mistrust. Already I have shown that school is insufficiently valued. I am going to show that the teacher is insufficiently trusted. By mistrust in education, I mean a certain suspicious and over-regulative attitude towards the teacher, which is unjust and injurious both to the teacher and the work. The certificated teacher is the most interfered-with worker in the kingdom. Education is an art; but from the small amount of individuality and initiative permitted to the teacher, it might almost as well be unskilled labour. The school is a place where, if anywhere, the worker in the plastic material of brain and character ought to be free from hindering interference; yet the public elementary school is a place where the work is as strictly regulated by outside interference as any powder factory. It is commonly allowed that the certificated teacher is just the one instructor in this country who has been specially trained to teach, and is entirely capable to do so; yet any other kind of instructor, from the latter-day Squeers or Miss Pinkerton to the modern Mr. Feeder, B.A., or the University Professor who cleaves to Greek, is more free to teach than he. Board Inspectors, Diocesan Inspectors, Drawing Inspectors, Organising Inspectors, Government Inspectors, volumes of regulations, and Codes interminable, all conspire to make it difficult for the teacher skilfully to teach. The very wish to make the teacher a perfunctory dotal labourer could not have devised a more formalising and paralysing set of conditions for him than those which the Education Department and the local authorities have devised. I have taught for twenty years, and so can speak on this question with an expert's experience; I have now ceased to teach and so can look at it from the outsider's point of view; and whilst I recognise, of course, that some amount of regulation and inspection is right and needful, I say that half the regulations at least, and at least half the inspectors, that now hamper and harass the teacher's efforts, are absolutely needless and harmful. I stand here to-day for liberty for the teacher to teach. With Thring of Uppingham, greatest of English schoolmasters, I assert that if the teachers do not know how to do their peculiar and difficult work, then no one else knows how to do it. But I say that the certificated teacher does know how to do his work; that in spite of every hindrance of officialdom he is doing it fairly well, and that the chief reason why he cannot do it excellently is the leading strings to which he is harnessed all day and every day—the leading strings that swathe him as the serpents swathed Laocoön—those apron strings of grandmotherly government which are just long enough to curl round his ankles and trip him up, all day and every day, just at the very time and point when liberty to act is most essential. Against such mistrust of the teacher I protest, in your name, and in the name of education; I protest against it as needless; I denounce it as mischievous and harmful.

The "Standards."—Take, for example, those mechanical devices known as Standards of Examination. In theory they apply to only one day in the year; in practice they apply all the year long. They are the foot-rule and yard-stick of the examiner; but they are also the official guide and limitation of the teacher. Apparently invented to enable the inexperienced examiner to test the work of the experienced teacher, they have become the Procrustean bed of the scholar and the instructor, the rack upon which public elementary education is stretched. I say that they limit teaching and hinder learning, repress the individuality of the scholar, paralyse the initiative of the teacher. The standards must go; the schools must be taught in classes, not in standards; and then, and then only, shall we get that right organisation and grouping of scholars and subjects which will make for educational righteousness. Thanks to the Education Department, the teacher is at last free to classify his scholars in a rational and natural way, wherever the Local Authority will let him use that freedom. I trust that the Department will see that the corollary to free classification is freedom from the indirect compulsion on teaching inflicted by the standards.

The School Parade.—Education can never be free, the teacher will never be free to teach his best, so long as the value of a year's work in school is supposed to be fully estimated by a set standard examination annually, on the parade day of the year. Nothing is more fallacious than a parade inspection, especially when the inspecting officer has no real knowledge of his work. The annual examination, on which the finances of the school, the progress of the average scholar from standard to standard, and the reputation of the teacher all depend, is often an elaborate sham. It is worked for all the year; it is rehearsed for like a night of amateur theatricals; the year-long shadow of it lies chilling and darkening on the teaching and the learning all the twelvemonth round. The children are seldom at their best that day; they are often at their worst; and they are never at the mean—that normal condition which the examination is designed to appraise. Examination-day "gets on the nerves" of the children, and on the nerves of the teacher; it is a day of dangerous high-pressure and white-heat. The examiner comes into the school and drives the engine furiously, and then, not seldom, the exhaust-pipe bursts, and the teacher, sitting on the safety-valve, finds himself hoist with an unpleasant "report."

I believe that the Education Department will shortly abolish this parade-day examination and the standards which it requires. I believe that the Department will see the wisdom of instituting intermittent visits of inspection and advice, in place of the present annual visits for examination of the schools under abnormal conditions. I believe that eventually the Department will recognise that set examinations of that kind are educationally a great mistake. We are not against a reasonable amount of inspection done in a skilful and sympathetic way; but we are against all set and rehearsed examinations by functionaries who never taught or were taught in a public elementary school. Only an Inspector who has been long and successfully a teacher can know the teacher's difficulties, or gauge the teacher's triumphs. I believe that at last the Department will recognise that its system of examinations by examiners who have not long and successfully taught is fatal to zeal in teaching, fatal to joy in learning, fatal to that inventive spirit of experiment and amendment which alone can make for improvement in educational methods and ideals. "Where examinations reign, every novelty in training, every original advance, every new method of dealing with mind, becomes at once simply impossible. It is outside the prescribed area, and it does not pay," wrote Thring. "The Inspector destroys teaching," he said, "because he is bound by law and necessity to examine according to a given pattern; and the perfection of teaching is that it does not work to a given pattern." These are words which any experienced teacher will endorse. "Examined to death" would be the verdict of any crowner's quest on many a promising new departure in English teaching—ay, and on many a hundred English teachers too. The teacher's time and skill are largely wasted, the nation's money is largely wasted, the powers and opportunities of the children are largely wasted in a vain oblation to the fetish of premature test and mechanical trial. You cannot teach throughout the year, because four months or so must be spent in dull and dulling drill and rehearsal for the annual day of parade. You cannot teach throughout the whole of a child's school life, because seven or eight times during the course of it, an examiner tramps across the kindergarten and pulls up the young plants by the root, to test their growth! Nay, it is not to test their growth; it is most often to test the industry of the teacher; and there I put my finger on the great and fundamental falsity of the whole system of examination. Too often Her Majesty's Inspector comes as a superior kind of detective, as from an Educational Scotland Yard. A priori it is argued (not so much as a thesis of to-day, but chiefly as a standing argument thirty years old) that all the 28,000 certificated head teachers, and all their 16,000 certificated assistants will be idle or incompetent unless an Inspector be set upon their track. That was the unconfessed chief reason why set examinations were instituted, although I do not think that that is the chief reason why set examinations are now maintained; but that is why, instead of being guide and friend to the teacher, Her Majesty's Inspector is too often an Inspector Bucket. Consider the enormity of the implied assumption. Because a few teachers are idle or inept, all teachers must be narrowly watched; because a few teachers would abuse any measure of freedom, no teacher can be free. Fellow teachers, in your name I vindicate your character. I say that in nearly every case the certificated teachers are able and industrious in their work, loved by the scholars, esteemed by the parents, and valued most by those who know them best. I claim for the certificated teachers of England and Wales that their reputation as men and women and as workers stands practically unimpugned. What did the Royal Commission report? "We are glad to state our opinion that, as a whole, the present body of teachers are a very honourable class, and have a great sense of their duties to the children." "Whatever evil may have arisen, or may have been possible under the present system, we desire to record our opinion that it has been largely mitigated by the uprightness and educational zeal of the teachers." Cautious as the Commission was in taking evidence, moderate as the Commission was in reporting, words like these come with double force and value. And public opinion, in the home, on the platform, and through the press, attests them true.

Fairly may I claim, then, that the teachers are worthy of trust, and I believe that the Department would gladly acknowledge that the teacher is commonly a person of probity and skill. But I point out that where the teacher is not a person of probity or skill, the annual examination is but a clumsy means of discovering it. As a method of detection, more frequent visits without notice, and intermittent testing at various stages of the year's work, would be far more efficient than the set annual examination. We do not fear such visits or such tests, and the proof of our sincerity and honesty at work is that we even ask for them. We feel that so long as the work of a school is estimated by the width of its curriculum and the length of its time-table upon a certain fixed day in the year, the best teaching and the best testing are alike impossible. Examination, as the Department understands it, is the extinguisher on the candlestick of teaching; it is not the snuffbox. Examination, as the Department understands it, tends towards a dead level and commonplace uniformity of teaching—the deification of dullness. A second Dunciad needs to be written, a Dunciad in which the "great Anarch" shall be the false Goddess, Examination.

"Before her, Fancy's gilded clouds decay,
And all its varying rainbows die away;
Religion, blushing, veils her sacred fires,
And, unawares, Morality expires;
Thy hand, great Anarch, lets the curtain fall,
And universal darkness buries all!"

It matters little what we teach; it matters everything how we teach. Yet the examination is concerned almost entirely with the "what," and very little with the "how." "Give us liberty to teach in the best way," is our cry to the Department. "Cease your examinations, and begin true inspections. Permit us to do our best. Permit us to teach wisely, and wisdom shall be justified of the children."

The "Standard" Labour Certificate.—Part of this question is the proposal to abolish the "standard pass" as the legal qualification for whole-time or half-time juvenile labour. I believe that most Inspectors and most teachers are agreed that the present means of qualification should be altered. In very many districts the qualifying "standard" is too low; in all districts it harmfully affects the working of the schools. Indirectly, it limits and hampers the discretion of the teacher in classifying his scholars; and indeed, it may fairly be said that so long as the present "standard" qualification holds good, the teachers are nowhere entirely free to classify the scholars naturally and educationally. Both parents and school-managers in too many cases are ready to bring improper pressure on the teacher in order to secure a child's legal qualification to labour, whether the child's moral right to the most thorough education available be secured or no; and hence the freedom of classification granted by the Department is by local circumstances often rendered null and void. A minimum age and minimum attendance qualification is suggested by most, as the alteration advisable, though some suggest a minimum age qualification only. I believe that the Department will ere long be ready to grant the alteration either in one of its forms or the other, and certainly it is a consummation devoutly to be wished by every educationist.

The Great Obstacle.—But there is a great obstacle in the way of two of these reforms. It is educationally desirable, no doubt, to abolish the standards and the annual set examinations which so cramp the teaching and hinder the learning in our schools. But I fear that one cannot safely remove the standards and the standard examinations unless at the same time, or near it, the standard examiner is also removed. The grand obstacle is the present type of Inspector; and some recent appointments to the Inspectorate would lead us to believe that the Department's intention is to perpetuate the present type of Inspector. After a period of several years, in which no such appointment was made, three 'Varsity men, two of them without any experience of the work of public elementary schools, and the third without any adequate experience, have been appointed to examine and inspect such schools, and to report on the skill of teachers whose lives from boyhood or girlhood have been devoted to the work. These appointments are lamentable; and I should call them indefensible were it not that the Order in Council, which makes them possible and en règle, has never yet been revoked. Technically, therefore, they are as defensible as any former appointments of the kind; but then, they are more disappointing and surprising.

The mills of the Education Department grind slowly. It is some six years since educational experts informed a Royal Commission that able and experienced teachers are the fit and proper persons to become Governmental Inspectors of Schools. It is some four years since that august but much disregarded Commission resolved that "it is neither fair nor wise to prevent elementary teachers from rising to the rank of Inspectors." The public and the public press approved the somewhat tardy discovery that experts alone should be set to do work which experts alone can justly and efficiently do; and ever since then we, with a touching faith in the sweet reasonableness of things, have been expecting the Commissioners' finding to be put into effect. Aware that the Board of Trade had put into effect a similar idea, we have all this time assumed that a certificated teacher, ripe in experience and culture, is just as fit to officially inspect a school as was, for instance, a certain worthy operative brassworker to officially inspect a manufactory of chemicals. And yet to-day the Commissioners' recommendation lies, with others, dusty on the shelf at Whitehall.

Until two months ago, I was eager for the removal of the standards and the set annual examination; and if to-day I am less eager, it is solely because I now fear that any reform in the Inspectorate is still a good many degrees below the horizon. The standards are the guide and aid of the standard inspector; remove the standards, and the average standard inspector would be as helpless as a gauger who had lost his gauge. The annual examination is a mechanical method of testing the "show" results of a year's school work; remove the annual examination, and the average annual examiner would be as helpless as an astrologer without his almanac. We protest, as we have always protested, against all mechanical methods of testing the work of schools; but we are scarcely prepared to place in hands unskilled and only mechanical the power to test our work in anything but a rigidly regulated way. Give us freedom of teaching, by all means; give the Inspectors freedom of inspection just as much; but at the same time ensure that the Inspector has the capacity to rightly use that freedom. We are anxious that the teacher's mind may be allowed to play freely about his work; we are anxious, also, that the Inspector's mind may be allowed to play freely about his work; but we are far from satisfied that the mind of the typical Inspector, if allowed to play freely about his work, would play wisely, efficiently, and fairly. At present the standards and the set examinations afford a measure of protection for scholars and teachers—protection against inspectorial blunders arising from theorising untampered by practice. What protection will the Department give if that be withdrawn?

I am not impeaching the Department as at present constituted. I am only impeaching the system laid down by those who were the Department in the past. I gratefully admit that the Department as at present constituted has foreseen dangers likely to arise from changes instituted by it, and has erected safeguards against these dangers. The Department also erects safeguards against the incapacity of teachers; why, then, does it not safeguard the schools against the incapacity of this or that Inspector? At any rate, here the Department stands face to face with the fact that the chief reason why the teaching and inspecting of schools cannot much farther be improved is because the Department is maintaining the wrong type of Inspector.

Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools.—The Inspectors have been appointed in a mistaken hope and on a fallacious principle. Fifty years ago it was dreamed that a 'Varsity man's culture and knowledge of the world would widen the school-horizon by inspecting the schools. I do not mean to say that that has not been so in a fair number of cases; I gladly admit that a fair number of these appointments have been happy and successful in every way. But I say that in a majority of cases the 'Varsity man, as Inspector, has narrowed the school-horizon. He was sent into the work utterly ignorant of it, on the solitarius ambulando principle. He may have paved the road to the school with good intentions; in many cases he may not have been peevish, pompous, or fantastic; but his want of training at the first, and his want of practical knowledge all through, have tended to make him either perfunctory or a faddist. The perfunctory Inspector has hampered the teacher's skill and wet-blanketed his enthusiasm by ruthless, if faithful, use of the Departmental standard rule and measure. The faddy Inspector has worried the teacher into indifference by feverish insistence on "everything by turns and nothing long."

I am far from saying that to find a thoroughly apt and sympathetic present-day Inspector would require Diogenes' lantern. Apt and sympathetic Inspectors are happily not few, and, wherever found, there the teachers duly honour them. But they are apt and sympathetic in spite of the system of appointment, not because of it; they are exceptions to the rule. And I do say that, taken as a whole, Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools are not the practical, sympathetic, enlightened, just, and successful school-tasters that they should be; and therefore, that English education suffers, the teachers suffer, and the children suffer most of all.

Stop-watch Critics.—The typical Inspector is a critic by rule and rote. He is too often a "stop-watch critic." I need not depict him for you; you know him too well. Besides, it was done, in allegory, a good many years ago, by a certain witty little Yorkshire clergyman, Lawrence Sterne. You remember how Yorick holds up to public gaze the stop-watch critic's method.

"And how did Garrick speak the soliloquy last night?"

"Oh, against all rule, my lords, most ungrammatically. Betwixt the substantive and the adjective, which should agree together in number, case, and gender, he made a breach, thus — stopping, as if the point wanted settling; and betwixt the nominative case, which your lordships know should govern the verb, he suspended his voice in the epilogue a dozen times, three seconds and three-fifths, by a stop-watch each time!"

"But in suspending his voice was the sense suspended also? Did no expression of attitude or countenance fill up the chasm? Was the eye silent? Did you narrowly look?"

"I looked only at the stop-watch, my lords."

"Excellent observer!"

There we see reflected the Inspector who is so busy filling up forms and estimating "passes" on the show day of the year that he has little eye for "tone"; little ear for the subtle harmonies which the mind and heart of the teacher chime with the minds and hearts of the children; little thrill of delicate mental touch on the pulse of the scholar, the pulse of the mentor; little sense of scent for the aroma of that mutual esteem and trust which discipline a school beyond the need of discipline; and little sense of exquisite taste for what in our school work is most fruitful, most invigorating, most ambrosial.

And yet the stop-watch rule-and-rote Inspector is within his sphere the most autocratic and least checked public official west of Russia. For he is practically omnipotent in school; there is no effectual mode of appeal or oversight to check him; and in many and many a case he does not even try to check himself. It is not into the hands of such a critic that the teacher can comfortably entrust his school, his reputation, his income, and his all.

The Remedy.—Her Majesty's judges are chosen from the Bar, not from the altar; dean and archdeacon are chosen from the working clergy, not from the captains of the fleet. Why should the School Inspector come from a class and from surroundings foreign to the inhabitants and occupations of the public elementary school? Caste, and prescription, and a mistaken ideal are the only reasons why—nay, they are not reasons, they are causes merely. Need I now further show that until the inspectorate is composed of men who have taught long and well in our schools—men who possess wide culture and living sympathy, men of anti-bilious temperament, men who know by experience the possibilities and the limitations of the poorer middle-class and working-class children—the education of those children, the schools for them and the teachers of them, must remain very much what they are now. To improve the teaching the Department will need to do away with the standards and the set examination; to leave the teacher free to use his experience and skill in classifying to the best advantage not only the children but the subjects taught; to send into the schools Inspectors who shall confer and advise, with knowledge of the matter equal to the teacher's own. But this the Department cannot do until it has first reformed the personnel of its Inspectorate, and to reform that will require measures very different to those hitherto adopted. There should be no further appointments of mere University graduates, no matter how brilliant their mere scholarship may be; there should be no more appointments of Inspectors' Assistants, caught and tamed to the regulation system too early to be of the best use. We ask that in the future all Inspectors shall be drawn from two sources—partly from the Sub-Inspectors and Inspectors' Assistants now in the service, partly from the best, most experienced, most cultured, sympathetic, and estimable teachers in public elementary schools. There can be no real difficulty in the way of such reformed appointments: the second source alone is capable of supplying all the Inspectors required.

A Career for such Teachers.—We echo the Commissioners' finding that it is neither fair nor wise to prevent such teachers from rising to the Inspectorate. The possibility of the marshal's bâton had an elevating effect on the morale of the Napoleonic armies; a future, a vista, a culminating career, have everywhere the same inciting and inspiring force. Why not apply it to the army of public elementary teachers, nearly 100,000 strong? At present there is no such incentive. Many men obtain the best head mastership possible to them by the age of thirty; and just when the teacher is strongest and clearest in his work he sees himself condemned to "mark time" on that beat for the rest of his days. Beautiful platitudes are uttered as to the teacher's work, the teacher's duty; but beautiful platitudes "butter no parsnips." How can the teacher be expected to excite enthusiastic love for education in the pupil when the teacher knows that education as a career has left himself stranded just when men of no more than equal force with him, in other avocations, are full sail towards dignities or wealth. The point has been thus forcibly put by a French author, who had been a teacher himself:—"He was simple enough to believe that education is a certain road to success in life. His teachers told him so, and yet none knew better than they how empty is that saying—they whom twenty years' pursuit of education had left in the 'no thoroughfare' of an obscure schoolmastership."*

Yes, it is "neither fair nor wise" to keep the teacher in a groove from which there is no outlet except per saltum, in which there is no inspiring vista down the avenue of years, and in which the only prospect seen by most of us is a cloudy sunset behind the poorhouse or the cot maintained by charitable doles. It is a fact that most of the certificated teachers of England and Wales are in an unsettled condition of dissatisfaction and discontent. The discontent is not that "divine discontent" which makes for progress and spurs towards the ideal; it is a dulling, paralysing discontent, born of the ill-rewarded present, fed of the hopeless prospect. Too many of us

" See the future spread
All dark and barren as a rainy sea."

How can the best work be done in our schools, how can the children of the commonalty, the future democracy, the coming rulers of realm and empire, obtain from us the best education, while for us the present is gray and the future black? Penny-wise folly keeps the teacher's wages paltry; pound-wise wisdom would make the teacher's wages enough to cause him to teach happily, energetically, enthusiastically. Red-tapery and penny-wise folly make the conditions of the teacher's life and work so unpleasant that half the certificated masters on the roll would to-morrow quit the profession to which they have given their lives and early loves, did but a decent opening in any other line of work present itself. For most of us the salary which so ill rewards our difficult and influential labour is too small to live seemly upon and save; for all but a sprinkling of us there is not even an infinitesimal State pension to expect. "Hard by the village school the poorhouse stands." The teacher's life of toil creates no tenant right. The school which he or she has morally built up affords no "good-will" compensation when, perforce, it is quitted. The Inspectorate is shut to even the best and most brilliant of us. At forty-five the teacher is supposed to be old and tumbling down the hill. That all this should be so is disastrous to education,

* Il croyait naïvement que l'instruction mène à tout. Ses professeurs le lui répétaient; et pourtant, ils savaient mieux que personne combien sonnait creux cette phrase banale, eux que l'instruction avait conduits au bout de vingt ans dans l'impasse d'un obscur établissement communal.—Theuriet.

disastrous to the interests of the citizen and the State, as well as disastrous to the teacher. That all this should be so is part of that mistrust of education which I have denounced, and part of that mismanagement of education which I am about to expose.

THE MISMANAGEMENT OF EDUCATION.

Prevention versus Cure.—The history of the State-controlled teacher dates from 1839; so does the history of the State-controlled policeman. For years the use of those two agencies against crime and bad civilisation—the agency of prevention, the agency of repression—was optional; the traditional freedom of the Englishman was maintained; he could please himself whether or no he should risk being “burgled,” he could please himself whether or no his child should be taught. In 1836 the policeman became compulsory; but the teacher remained optional for another twenty years. Now note the relative results. In 1869, when the policeman had been compulsory for nearly half a generation, while the teacher was still a luxury, so to speak, the number of juvenile offenders was, roughly, 10,000; in 1890, when the teacher had been ubiquitous for nearly half a generation, the number of juvenile offenders was, roughly, 4,000—6,000 less. And that in spite of 7,000,000 increase in population and of gross irregularity of attendance at school. The Recorder of Manchester recently drew attention to the effect of education on crime in his locality. The working of the Compulsory Education Act of 1876 became effective in 1883, and from A.D. 1883 to A.D. 1891, the number of indictments in Manchester sank from 3,748 to 1,884—a decrease of 50 per cent. Again, in 1869, the number of persons in custody under sentences of penal servitude was 11,660—in 1891 it was 5,334. In 1869 the number of persons imprisoned was 14,340; in 1890 it was only 9,242. And all this in spite of the 7,000,000 increase of population. And, again, one-fourth of last year's criminals could neither read nor write, and nearly three-fourths could only read, or read and write imperfectly; only 2·5 per cent. of them could read and write decently well. So that the economic and civilising value of the teacher is abundantly evident. There is decrease in the number of offenders, both juvenile and adult; year by year, no matter how the population grows, there are fewer persons convicted; year by year there are fewer persons convicted a second time; and year by year there are fewer cases of violent crime. Irrespective of other agencies, which we can leave out of the consideration because they aid the work of both, it is clear that as a civilising agent the teacher is worth more than the constable. Yet, on the average, the policeman is the better paid; and whilst the man-in-blue has the certainty of a liberal pension at an early retiring age, almost the only State provision for the teacher's latter days is the poor-law provision. I do not draw this parallel to depreciate the policeman—I only draw it to expose the nation's injustice to the teacher. I appeal to the national conscience, and, lest the national conscience should not be particularly wide-awake just now, I appeal to the nation's common sense. Proverbial philosophy, “the wisdom of many and the wit of one," has decided that prevention is better than cure; should not the teacher at least rank equal with the policeman on the price-list in the market? I say that it is public mismanagement to restrict the development of the more powerful civilising agency of the two and to pay the more powerful agent the less. "The parent and the teacher form the man" said Stein, and it is surely better work to form the man than to arrest him.

The Educator's Pay.—There are about 74,000 adult teachers in our public elementary schools. They are the only body of teachers in the country specially trained and taught to teach. Their moral and economic value to this country can hardly be over-estimated. They each receive on the average about twenty-nine shillings per week, seventy-five pounds per year. Charity and the poor law are practically the only provision for them in the days "when all the weary wheels stand still." There are 44,415 of them certificated, holding the State's guarantee of complete efficiency to teach. Here is a table showing how the certificated teachers are paid:—

The Teacher's Position.—Salaries so low as those, salaries for such intellectual, difficult, and influential work, salaries for work which wears out the best of the teacher's energy by the age of 45, could not be maintained at so low a level by the operation of the law of supply and demand alone. Free trade does not apply in our profession; if it did, the teacher would soon be better paid. The State holds out artificial inducements to young persons to enter the profession, and then, once there, leaves them to live in it or escape from it as best they may. So many recruits take the Queen's shilling every year; but, once recruited, they are certain of employment, certain of pay, certain of pension if they remain in the employ of the State. So many recruits take the Queen's Scholarship every year; but, once recruited, they are never certain of employment, never certain of pay, never certain of pension. There lies the difference. The teacher serves his country just as much as do the soldier, the letter-carrier, the gauger, or the Downing-street clerk, and serves it just as well. But while the soldier, the letter-carrier, the gauger, and the Downing-street clerk are recognised as members of the public service, the teacher is not so recognised; he is the parish of the public service; he has no caste, no claim to employment, pay, or pension. Yearly the Education Department allows more novices to be beguiled into the work than, on the present scale of meagreness and mismanagement, the work can maintain. The able, trusted, honoured Secretary to the Department has within the past month borne witness before a House of Commons Committee that the State did much to control the salaries of teachers, if not the teachers themselves. What we claim is, therefore, that if we have State control, we should also have State surety in our professional lives. There is no such State surety. The State will not guarantee and appoint any more soldiers, letter-carriers, gaugers, or Downing-street clerks than continuous employment, pay, and pensions can be found for; why cannot the State use the same care over ourselves? "The Department is no party to the appointment of any teacher" is an official formula which brings small comfort to the teacher who, through no fault of his own, and solely because the Department permits more teachers to be qualified than are demanded, finds himself out of employment, and his household short of bread and coals. If the Department did not interfere in the matter at all, if the Department did not offer the Queen's Scholarship and half a dozen short cuts into the profession, the state of the profession would be regulated naturally by demand and supply. The Department does neither the one thing nor the other wholly; it interferes to make teachers, it does not interfere to see that teachers do not starve. And I say that it should be on the conscience of the Department, and on the conscience of the nation, either to make us Civil Servants entirely, or to leave us entirely free to regulate our own affairs. We are not permitted to regulate our own affairs, or we might deal with overcrowding as the managers of the professions of law and medicine have lately done. The Bar was found to be becoming overcrowded; so the conditions of admission to the Bar have been made more difficult and costly. It was found that young medical men were multiplying in a manner likely to be dangerous to the public health; so the difficulties in the way of becoming a medical man have been increased. We say to the Department, either give us the chance to lessen our overcrowding in a similar way, or give us certainty of work, certainty of pay, and certainty of pension.

Superannuation.—At the present moment there are men and women more than seventy years old at work in public elementary schools. There are 300 certificated masters more than sixty years old, and still at work; there are 200 certificated mistresses more than sixty years old, and still at work. In ten years' time, on the present basis, there will be thousands of such sixty-year-old teachers, still at work beyond the prime, beyond the sunset, even, of life—at work in the mere twilight of existence—at work when thoroughly good teaching work cannot possibly be done. That will mean that in thousands of schools the children will not receive efficient attention; that will mean that yearly many thousands of pounds of public money will not be spent to the best advantage. Would it not be a positive economy, both in money and in force, to superannuate these good and faithful servants, whose salaries have never sufficed to enable them to superannuate themselves?

A superannuation system for certificated teachers would be a boon to the teachers, no doubt; but it would be of far more use and advantage to education and the State. I believe that it would pay the State in every way to retire its elderly teachers upon an absolute pension system. But that we do not ask. We ask that a system shall be created, managed, and guaranteed by the State, under which most of the cost of superannuating the teacher shall come from the teacher's own pocket; and that the provision thus made by the teacher shall be eked out by the Treasury to the extent of £1 per retiring teacher per year for each year of service rendered before the constitution of the system, and 10s. per retiring teacher per year for each year of service rendered subsequent to the constitution of the system. That is surely a moderate request; for a payment of £3 per year the teacher would receive as State aid not more in any case than £1 per year of service. For a payment of only half the payment by the teacher the Metropolitan police-constable receives as subsidy £1 10s. per year—one-half more than the most we ask for the present teachers, and thrice what we ask for the teachers of the future. You see, we do not even beg that, in this particular, Prevention shall be valued as highly as Cure.

These proposals, Ladies and Gentlemen, have been made on your behalf to a Select Committee of the House of Commons. On the part of the National Union of Teachers I desire to acknowledge with thanks the great care, sympathy, and kindness evinced by the chairman and members of that Committee in the performance of their difficult task. I look hopefully for their finding in favour of a State-guaranteed, State-aided general system of Superannuation for certificated teachers, because I think that it must be plain to the Committee that the private benefit to the teacher would be small in comparison to the benefit to the State. To relieve the struggling teacher's heart of the worst anxiety for the future would make the teacher all life through a happier teacher—therefore a better teacher—therefore a teacher more valuable to the State. To retire the elderly teacher would remove the present need for him to “lag superfluous on the stage,” to the detriment of the school, the scholars, and the public welfare. As teachers we ask this boon as a just reward for the teachers' labours; as citizens we urge it in the interests of the commonweal.

The Local Management of Schools.—Part of that mis-management of education, from which we desire to make education free, is the present condition of the local management of schools. There are different sets of machinery for such management, but it seldom happens that the machinery works with the accuracy and the smoothness that may fairly be desired. Schools are managed locally by one or other of the following list of powers:—

(1) The clergyman alone.

(2) The clergyman, plus a dummy set of “managers” who never manage; who remind one of "Quaker" guns or the one-man army of the old provincial stage.

- (3) A set of managers, plus the clergyman, whom they are compelled to nominally acknowledge, but whom they virtually ignore.
- (4) The clergyman, plus a set of active managers, each working happily and enthusiastically with the other.
- (5) The microscopic School Board.
- (6) The middling-sized School Board.
- (7) The large School Board.
- (8) The immense School Board for London.

It is evident that powers so different in constitution and amount cannot be expected to work on common lines in a co-ordinated way. It is plain that waste of force and mismanagement are likely to ensue. As a matter of fact, mismanagement and waste of force do ensue, to a lamentable extent, indeed. Simplification—codification, so to speak—must obtain before there can be much reform in this direction.

In dealing with this subject I must define the attitude of the National Union of Teachers. In this matter we stand midway between Mr. Lyulph Stanley and the Dean of St. Paul's. We do not long for the extinction of the Voluntary school; neither do we consider the Board school an invention of the devil. We rejoice in the extension of a system of schools under elected control, but we wish concurrently to maintain every efficient volunteer agency. It is against the inefficient agencies of either kind—against the improper management of either kind of school—that we take up our parable. In dealing with this subject we are not theological, we are not political—we are only educational.

From the educational point of view we perceive grave errors in the management of Voluntary schools, and grave errors in the management of Board schools also. I have no time to detail these errors fully, I can only indicate them.

Voluntary Management.—In too many cases Voluntary schools are maintained rather because they are voluntary than because they are schools. In too many cases the clergyman regards the school as his freehold and the teacher as his servant. In too many cases the State aid to a school is misappropriated towards the cost of other departments of the parish work. In thousands of cases the teacher is the parochial factotum, to the detriment of his proper work. The very least reforms that can be asked for in the management of Voluntary schools are, (1) that the teacher shall not be required, as a condition to his employment as teacher, to act either as lay preacher, Sunday-school superintendent, sacristan, charwoman, or what not; (2) that all State aid to a school shall be applied to educational expenses only; (3) that in the case of each school there shall be appointed or elected a school committee, who shall conduct their business in an open and business-like way. These are reforms which would go far to produce that modification in our Voluntary system which is essential to its continued existence; I say essential, because any student of the development of educational systems abroad must recognise that timely modification is the law of existence for Voluntary schools. But it must not be supposed that the establishment of a modicum of elective popular control over a Voluntary school will bring about the millennium. When you have got the elective body of managers for each Voluntary school in the country you will only have dotted the map with a few thousand more small School Boards.

The Small School Boards.—The infinitesimal School Board is an instance of decentralisation run mad. Here are a few examples of it, tabulated by Mr. Macnamara :—

School Board.	County.	Population in Area of Administration.	Average Attendance the Board.	Number Members.
Balking	Berks	169	26	5 + a pd. clerk
Hauxton	Cambridge	232	26	5
Kirkland	Cumberland	175	22	5 + "hon." clerk
Dunton	Essex	140	16	5 + a pd. clerk
North Farnbridge	"	142	15	5 + hon. clerk
Peterstone	Monmouth	156	18	5 + a pd. clerk
Car Colston	Nottingham	273	20	5 " "
Cudworth	Somerset	140	22	5 " "

That is the kind of thing, in only its worst degree, which is established all over the country ; and the pretty game of starting in business these retail providers of unsatisfactory education goes merrily on. In 1890 sixteen new Boards were erected, and eight of them were for districts each containing less than 1,000 persons. One, indeed, was a Board of five members for a district containing only 141 souls. No wonder that the result is School Boards similar to those I pillory below :—

(a) A Board of which the chairman is the publican of one village and the clerk the publican of the next village ; of which the " office " is the one tap-room, and the " Board-room " the other tap-room.

(b) A Board of five, including an individual who confessed that he " couldn't never see no good in eddication," an unqualified ex-teacher dismissed by a former Board for chronic inability to pass the door of a public-house, and an erratic individual who had thrice enjoyed the prolonged hospitality of the county Bedlam.

(c) A Board of which the majority of the members were illiterate voters.

(d) A Board which includes members who solicit and obtain " tips " of money from the teachers.

(e) A Board under which a teacher is dismissed for granting a half-holiday ; dismissed at the instance of a member who the same week is fined for selling liquors at unlawful hours.

I need not multiply these instances; the system stands self-condemned. Nothing in the reform of our system of mismanaging education is more urgent than an enlargement of the areas of School Boards. Surely the powers and responsibilities of the small School Boards will be transferred to the District Councils whenever a Bill to establish District Councils becomes law.

The Larger Boards.—But many of the larger Boards are also in fault. Many of them have lately sinned against education by restricting the teacher's natural right to classify schools in a natural and educational way. Many of them contain a majority of members who have sought election avowedly rather to "keep down the rates" than to provide the best schooling for the people. Many of them withhold from the teacher the personal consideration and the liberal emoluments which persons duly performing the skilful and taxing work of State education may justly expect.

Hectoring Managers.—Both in Board and Voluntary schools the lives of teachers are often made wretched, and therefore their work made less efficient than it might be, by the officious little tyrannies of the clerical manager, or the pompous member of the School Board. One part of the functions of the National Union of Teachers is to protect its members against the action of school-managers who magnify themselves instead of magnifying their office. That protection has often been extended in the past, and shall in the future be extended, if needs be, more and more. The manager who "drest in a little brief authority, plays such fantastic tricks," should remember that he is steward only, not lord: that although he may temporarily represent the parish or the municipality, the teacher is a member of the parish or municipality, and one of the manager's constituents indeed. For a self-appointed manager or a School Board member to lord it over a teacher of proven ability, certificated and recognised by the State, is just as absurd as for a small shareholder in the Midland Railway Company to hector the station-master at Leeds.

Code Mismanagement.—So much for local mismanagement; but there is State mismanagement also. Again we have to acknowledge gratefully that the present Code is the best Code since 1862; again let me say that in claiming further reforms we do not underrate the reforms already granted. Yet it is still true that "Payment by Results" exists: it is still true that the schools are not entirely free from what a high public official has termed "the most iniquitous system ever legalised since slavery." We have been brought out of the House of Bondage, but we are still in the Wilderness. The Code and the system are still unsatisfactory. The system is as flawless and beautiful as a soap bubble—and as solid. A satisfactory system cannot be obtained short of

- (1) The abolition of fixed examinations :
- (2) The abolition of variable grants.

The Department fixes its tests, and varies its grants ; we say to the Department, " Vary your tests and fix your grants." Now that the Fee Grant exists, there can be no excuse for any remnant of Payment by Results. The Fee Grant, combined with the Inspection Grant, ought now to sweep all partial variable grants away. Why should it still be necessary to enunciate the true principle of State encouragement to education ? The true principle is to properly equip all schools, and then demand from every school a sufficient amount of good work. But even yet the Code refuses to a school the means for good work, unless, without those means, the good work has already been done. Even yet the Code bears hardest on those schools which require help the most.

The Drawing Regulations.—The regulations concerning the teaching of drawing are an instance of this persistent Code mismanagement. The intentions of the Department are excellent ; the promises of the Department are sincere. But the system is too strong for them ; it denies the promises and nullifies the intentions. The rational method of obtaining the teaching of drawing in all schools would be to equip all schools with the means of teaching drawing before demanding that drawing shall be taught. But, by the topsy-turvey system still in vogue, that process is reversed : drawing is made obligatory as a means of compelling the schools to equip themselves for teaching it. The drawing grant paid to the small schools, which form a majority of all the schools, is insufficient to provide the means of teaching drawing, and hardships without number are the result. The grant is " Fair," " Good," or " Excellent"—so much for " Fair," so much more for " Good," so much more for " Excellent"—in spite of the fact that " Fair " in a difficult small school means work at least as much and as worthy as " Good " will mean in a large school, or " Excellent " in an easy school. A special drawing certificate is indirectly required from the teacher, if not by the Department, by the managers, and thus the teacher's diploma, which ought to be as sacred from post-diploma adulteration as the diploma of the surgeon or the 'Varsity man, is made of less value to the teacher and the school. The " pass degree," which in every other kind of examination suffices to qualify, is not sufficient to satisfy the Science and Art Department ; and thus teachers who have travelled hundreds of miles, and spent thousands of hours, and no small share of a poor salary, in order to qualify, find themselves, although they have " passed," still bereft of the legal qualification. Children may be " grouped " for convenience of teaching in arithmetic, English, geography, or elementary science ; but in drawing the regulations make it imperative that, for instance, thirteen children shall be taught in seven distinct standards ; and while the Education Department maintains Inspectors of Teaching who cannot teach, the Science and Art Department appoints Inspectors of Drawing who cannot draw. I believe that all this nonsense arises from the want of co-ordination between the Science and Art Department and the Education Department proper ; I believe that it arises, in the first place, from the want of a Minister of Education who would be as powerful at South Kensington as at Whitehall. I fear that we shall never get a proper system of national education until in the Cabinet the portfolio of Education is deemed as important and distinguished as the portfolio of the Local Government Board. But, in the meantime, surely reforms in the drawing regulations are possible; some have already been given; and we say, in the words of a former examiner to the Department, "Ah, yet consider it again," and give us more.

The Outlook.—I cannot now dwell on all the changes which experienced educationists desire. The changes are many and weighty, and, one by one, are sure to come. Some of them will come as natural developments from changes already instituted: the rest will come if, Ladies and Gentlemen, we are true to education, and so true to ourselves. Our strong and strengthening Union, aiming to amend the condition of the teacher by amending the conditions of the teacher's work, is becoming irresistible. I claim for it your even more enthusiastic service, your even more united loyalty, your wider missionary effort, your greater financial help. Combined, organised, faithful, possessed of the sinews of war, we can do things greater than the great things already done. The outlook is hopeful: we front the sunrise of the educational day. Let us, then, take comfort and be of good cheer. Amidst the war of systems and the jar of creeds we shall be safe in our phalanx. One by one the petty gad-flies that sting us in school and in schoolhouse shall be caught and banished; step by step we shall win Free Education, the freedom to teach our best. And in the meantime let the thought of your high mission anodyne some of the pains of it; patiently and manfully brush away the flies, even though they may return again and again. Think of the words of the teacher-poet,* who sings:—

"Thy work may not be measured; scale and rule
Are for the tangible and transient; thou
With pain of heart and sweat of brain and brow,
Pliest thy work with no material tool,
Therefore heed not the rating of the fool."

Heed nothing but the duties before you; the duty to teach nobly; the duty to act as citizens and Englishfolk to make the best teaching possible. In school, and out of school, let us strive to bring about the realisation of that Patmos vision of the great blind English seer who saw "with faith's unerring eye" the schools send forth a new generation, humanised, civilised, Christianised, "enflamed with the study of learning and the admiration of virtue, stirred up with high hopes of living to be brave men and worthy patriots, dear to God, and famous to all ages."

* Logie Robertson, M.A.

TWENTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE TO CONFERENCE.

THE Executive, in presenting to Conference their twenty-second Annual Report, desire to congratulate the members of the Union upon the substantial progress made during the past year, not only in membership, but also in public influence. The number of members which last year was the highest on record, has not only advanced, but the increase during the past year has been greater than in any year since 1872. With this increase of membership there has also been a corresponding growth in the public influence of the Union, its parliamentary power has at the same time been extended, and there has been increased activity among the members of the Union generally with regard to the work.

But while reporting this rapid and general progress in the work of the Union, the Executive regret that the year has been one of disaster so far as some of the principal workers on behalf of the Union are concerned.

At the time of making their last report, the Executive announced that they had been deprived of the valuable services of the Secretary in consequence of serious illness, and that they had considered it necessary to relieve him of all duties for six months. At the expiration of that time it was found necessary to extend the time for another six months, and the Executive now report with much regret that his state of health has necessitated his resignation of office.

For the first time in the history of the Union, the Executive have had the sad experience of the loss by death of one of the officers of the Union during his term of office. Mr. G. Collins, who, although unwell at the time, so ably presided over the last Conference, died on 24th April, after only a few days' illness. Mr. Collins took an active part in the formation of the National Union in 1870, and had been a member of the Executive from that time with the exception of the years 1879 to 1882. In order to fill the vacancy among the officers caused by his death, Mr. J. H. Yoxall, the Vice-President, was appointed Acting President, and Mr. R. Sykes, one of the former Presidents, Deputy President, it being arranged that Mr. Sykes should after Easter, 1892, take the position of Ex-President.

Within a few days of the death of Mr. Collins, another loss was sustained by the untimely death of Mr. T. Mee, who had been a member of the Executive since 1888. The vacancies caused by these two deaths were filled up by the election of Mr. Peaker and Mr. Horton. A few months afterwards death removed Mr. J. Russell, who had been continuously a member of the Executive from 1874 to 1888, and was actively connected with the work of the Union to the time of his decease.

The recent epidemic caused the loss of another member, Mr. J. W. Grove, who succumbed to pneumonia after an attack of influenza. Mr. Grove was another of the founders of the Union, and had been a continuous member of the Executive since 1870. He was President of the Union in 1879, and held the office of Chairman of the Education Committee since the Committee was formed in 1886, and had previously been Chairman of the Parliamentary and Code Committee which had charge of the educational work. The vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Grove has not been filled up.

The relations between the teachers and the Education Department have continued to be of a most cordial character. The Executive from nearly every meeting held during the year have sent communications to the Education Department, which have received full and courteous attention, and whenever it has been necessary to seek information from the Department this has been readily afforded. Last year, for the first time in the history of the Union, the Vice-President of the Council and the Secretary of the Education Department honoured the Conference Dinner with their presence.

The Executive present a brief summary of their proceedings during the year, arranged under sections representing the work of the various Standing Committees. But, before dealing with the work of the several Committees, they desire to acknowledge the devotion to the work shown by Mr. T. B. Ellery, as Chairman of the Finance, Press, and General Purposes Committee; by Mr. E. Gray, as Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee; by the late Mr. Grove and his successor, Mr. R. Wild, as Chairman of the Education Committee; by Mr. John, as Chairman of the Organisation Committee; and by Mr. T. A. Organ, B.A., as Chairman of the Law Committee.

ORGANISATION.

Membership.—At the close of the year 1890 the Union consisted of 356 associations, with an aggregate of 16,100 members. During the year 1891, 7 associations have ceased to exist, 24 new associations have been formed, and one association was amalgamated with another. At the close of the year 1891 the Union consisted of 372 associations, with an aggregate of 18,072 members, thus showing an increase for the year of 16 associations and 1,972 members. The only other occasion in the history of the Union when the increase has been so large was in 1872, shortly after the establishment of the Union, when the number rose from 2,120 to 5,054 in one year. This in itself is evidence of the statement already made that increased interest has been aroused in the work of the Union. It also indicates the possibility that a much larger increase may be looked for in the coming year if the efforts made during the past year to establish new associations and to arouse the districts where the proportion of members is small can be continued.

Efforts to Increase the Membership of the Union.—Immediately after the last Conference the Executive adopted an arrangement of supervisors for the various districts, in order that the work for extending the organisation of the Union might be immediately commenced, but at the same time they decided that a special meeting should be held to take into consideration the preparation of a scheme for the more active and complete propagation of the Union cause in the provinces during the ensuing year. Suggestions were invited from members of the Executive, and as a result of the consideration of these suggestions the Executive adopted a series of resolutions with respect to organisation. They made arrangements for obtaining information respecting the non-membership in each district, and requested the respective supervisors to prepare a sketch map of their districts, showing the areas of the various associations, and to take steps to rectify the areas of associations where necessary in order that the districts might be completely covered by associations.

They suggested that extraordinary collective meetings of neighbouring associations should be held where practicable; that these meetings should be addressed by the Supervisor or some Officer or Member of the Executive; and that all non-members in the district should be invited to attend. An appeal was also made to the associations to strengthen their local organisations by the sub-division, wherever practicable, of their areas into districts which could be personally canvassed by members of the association, and by the appointment, where practicable, of local canvassers or collectors.

The Executive undertook to prepare a special paper showing briefly and in bold type the work done by the Union, and giving special reasons why assistants should join the Union. More than 12,000 copies of this document (Form 33) have been distributed.

With a view of preventing lapse of membership in consequence of removal of members, a special form was prepared for the use of local secretaries in reporting the removal of a member from one district to another. This form is supplied to local secretaries. The Executive also recommended adjacent Associations to meet in Annual Conference for the discussion of matters of local educational interest, and for collecting experience as to the most successful methods of Union Organisation. They also resolved that the one great aim in the Union policy for the immediate future should be to endeavour to secure a material increase in the membership, in order that those objects especially bearing upon the status and welfare of the teacher then being pursued by the Union might be more effectively prosecuted. The Executive, as a further means of stimulating local associations to carry out this object, resolved to remit to such associations as might send in a claim for the same one-third of each new subscription paid to the Union, in order to meet any extra expenses incurred in rendering the meetings more attractive, or generally in carrying out the work of organisation. It was subsequently decided that a new member should be understood to be one who had never previously belonged to the Union, and that the claim should be made upon a form of certificate to be signed by the president and secretary of the association. The claims received and paid in time to be included in the accounts for 1891 were made by 152 associations on behalf of 1,793 members, the amount paid being £179 6s. Since that date further claims have been received from 38 associations on account of 378 members for 1891, thus making a total of 2,171 new members for the year, on whose behalf a claim for remission has been made.

Deputations to Local Associations.—During the past few years the supervisors have been empowered to pay a visit if they considered it necessary to any association in their districts once during the year. The past year has shown an increase in the amount of work of this character undertaken by members of the Executive. A considerable number of these visits have been to collective meetings or to districts where no association existed. During the two months when the question of superannuation was before the country many visits were also paid to associations by members with a view of giving assistance in the discussion on the intricate matters involved in the consideration of the figures submitted to the Select Committee by the actuary. In the event of arrangements being made for a visit by a member of the Executive to a local meeting, a list of the non-members in the district has been obtained, wherever possible, and a special invitation to the meeting has been sent from the offices of the Union, together with a copy of the Form containing general information respecting the work of the Union. Special notices of this kind have been typewritten for no less than seventy-two meetings, a total of 3,721 copies having been sent out. The Executive have now arranged that, except in the case of officers of the Union, deputations shall only attend local meetings with the sanction of the Executive.

Circulars for Summoning Local Association Meetings.—The Executive in their last report mentioned having undertaken to supply printed forms of invitation to local association meetings for the use of such associations as might apply for them. They have now to report that these forms have been very extensively used, especially by the smaller associations, and that in response to the requests from associations over 30,000 copies have been gratuitously supplied.

Visits to Training Colleges.—In accordance with the practice of recent years a request was made to all training colleges for permission to send an officer of the Union or a member of the Executive to address the students. A considerable number of the colleges afforded the Executive an opportunity of sending a representative, and the officers and members of the Executive who attended the various colleges gladly acknowledge the cordial welcome they received.

Electoral Districts.—In obedience to the instruction of last Conference the Executive have endeavoured to prepare a scheme of Electoral Districts. The Organisation Committee have devoted much time to the subject and have submitted two schemes, but were of opinion that they would not be workable. A special report is submitted giving details of these schemes, but the Executive are unable to advise the adoption of either, and they recommend that the resolution of last Conference on this subject should be rescinded.

Assistant Teachers.—The Executive, in their last report, expressed their opinion that a large proportion of the non-members were to be found among the assistant teachers. During the year the assistants appear to have shown a greater desire to connect themselves with the Union, and to take their share in moulding its policy. No means exist for ascertaining to what extent the increase in the membership in the Union has been caused by the admission of assistant teachers. The Executive also mentioned in their last report that discussions had taken place as to the propriety of admitting assistant teachers at a lower rate of subscription. The same point has come before the Executive during the past year, but the suggestion appears to have been opposed by the assistants themselves, and the Executive have not seen their way to make any recommendation on the subject. When it is remembered that more than one-third of the certificated teachers in the country are assistants, or that the number of certificated assistants is nearly equal to the total membership of the Union, it is clear that the question as to whether any special arrangements should be made for their admission is one requiring careful consideration both by the Union and by the assistant teachers themselves.

The General Purposes Committee have prepared and published, at the request of the Executive, a memorandum drawing special attention to the important part taken by assistant teachers in the actual work of education, and pointing out the urgent necessity for a more just remuneration of their services. The document will be found on page cclvii.

LEGAL WORK.

General.—As the Union advances in numbers and influence the work of the Law Committee increases. The past year has been marked by continuous activity. This Committee has held nineteen meetings, and the average number of cases dealt with at each meeting of the Committee is not less than thirty. Each of these cases involves a number of details, minute, yet often all-important, from a legal standpoint. These the Committee have to consider. The work is thus of an arduous and complicated character. The Executive desire to take this opportunity of asking all those teachers who apply for legal help to assist the Committee in their work by giving clear and succinct statements of their cases.

Number and character of cases.—On 1st January, 1891, the number of cases in hand was 29. On 1st January, 1892, the Committee had in hand

31 cases. The total number of cases dealt with between these dates is 478 ; the number "closed" during this period being 447. As to the character of the cases dealt with, a rough classification only can be made, but such is useful as giving evidence which will tend to dispel the common illusion that the chief work of the Law Committee is connected with assault cases. The following list indicates generally the types of cases which are dealt with by the Committee :—

Assaults by teachers.
 Assaults upon teachers.
 Claims for salary.
 Libel and slander.
 Dismissal.
 Inquest.
 Abusive and threatening language.
 Miscellaneous.
 Ordinary advice.

Funds.—From the following statement it will be seen that the expenditure of this Committee is increasing. They feel confident that they best carry out the wishes of the members by sparing no necessary expenditure in carrying on this work. Opinions may differ as to the advisability or otherwise of spending money on certain branches of Union work, but here there is no doubt that members will agree in placing "efficiency" before "economy." When the Committee are satisfied that a member is suffering an injustice, and that his case comes within the meaning of the term "professional," it is at once adopted, and no thought is given to the possible cost, if by any means the teacher can obtain a substantial redress :—

Bye-Law 4.—The Executive regret to have to report that during the past year the necessity for Bye-law 4, which runs thus, has been demonstrated :—

"In all cases adopted by the Union the costs shall be paid out of this Fund ; except that in any case where the applicant for assistance shall, in the opinion of the Executive, suppress evidence or shall knowingly furnish incorrect information, no costs on the other side which the applicant may become liable to pay, and such portion only of the applicant's costs as the Executive may determine, shall be borne by the Fund, and the balance of any costs incurred by the Executive in relation to the case shall be paid by the applicant to the Treasurer of the Union, and shall be recoverable by the Treasurer from the applicant."

The Committee felt most reluctant to take the extreme course of withdrawing from two cases which had been placed in their hands, but they felt it would not be for the general good of the Union, if these cases which material facts had been suppressed at the outset were allowed to go forward. On Form 1, L.A.F., the member signs an agreement in the following terms:—

“I hereby apply to the National Union of Teachers for aid from the Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund in the case short particulars of which are given above. In the event of my case being adopted by the Union, I undertake to sign a retainer to the solicitor instructed by the Law Committee to conduct the case, and to place in the hands of such solicitor all evidence within my knowledge or power; and I agree that the Law Committee shall have absolute power to carry on, compromise, or withdraw the proceedings in such manner, and on such terms, as shall appear to them advisable; and I undertake to pay to the Treasurer for the time being of the Union, on demand, all costs incurred by the Union in relation to the case, which may become payable to me under the bye-laws for the administration of the Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund.”

The Committee have decided that in future this agreement shall be stamped, so that upon it, if necessary, proceedings for the recovery of costs can be taken. The Executive venture to express a hope that the need for such proceedings will never arise. Action for the recovery of costs from the member will be taken only when wilful misrepresentation has been clearly established, after exhaustive inquiry.

Forms of Agreement between Managers and Teachers.—Owing to the altered conditions under which many teachers are working, consequent on the operation of the Free Education Act, 1891, it has been found necessary to redraft the Union form of agreement. It has also been decided to supply one copy gratuitously to each member of the Union on application. Teachers who are not in the Union can obtain a copy on payment of 2s. 6d. Members also have another advantage. Arrangements have been made for the stamping of agreements, so that they “can be given in evidence” should necessity arise.

How Help may be obtained.—Not seldom has application for information as to the exact method of obtaining help been received. The Law Committee have drawn up the following statement, which supplies this information.

ADVICE.

1. Any member of the Union may obtain advice from the Secretary of the Union by direct application. (At the present time such advice is given by the Chairman of the Committee, owing to the prolonged illness of the Secretary.)

2. The advice of the Solicitor may be obtained by any member of the Union on payment of an “Enquiry Fee” of five shillings, or it may be obtained free if the case be submitted to the Local Association and recommended by them.

LAW CASES.

A case may be taken up on behalf of any member of the Union* on the recommendation of the Local Association. If a member wish for legal assistance he should obtain "Legal Assistance Form No. 1," and forward it to the Secretary of his Association, who should bring it before a meeting of the officers (if urgent) or a general meeting of the Association. The case is then considered by the Law Committee of the Union, and instructions given by them as to what course shall be pursued. In the event of urgency the officers of the Local Association are empowered to instruct the local solicitor, on the understanding that they at once communicate with the Law Committee. If this be not done, the Local Association is held responsible for all costs incurred.

Criminal Assaults.—One of the most serious difficulties to which teachers are exposed arises from prosecution for offences under this head. Three cases have arisen this year. In one a powerful society instituted proceedings. The Committee are glad to state that in each case the member was successfully defended. The expenses in one case alone amounted to £120.

Extraneous Duties.—A decided departure in connection with this subject has been taken during the past year. On the recommendation of the Committee, the following resolution was adopted:—

"That the Executive inform Mr. ——— that if dismissal follow on his refusal to perform the extraneous duties demanded, they will make a grant from the Sustentation Fund; and that the members of the Union be informed that any member accepting the situation vacated by Mr. ——— will be expelled from the Union."

It was, however, found that the Executive had exceeded their powers, and they could not put into effect the latter part of the resolution. This power the Executive are of opinion ought to be granted to them, and a resolution has been placed on the Conference Agenda which, if passed, will give them the power to expel a member should he be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct.

Heads and Assistants—It cannot be too often insisted upon that in this branch of the work, as well as in all the other branches, the Committee take no account of the professional status of individual members. They are "members of the Union," and as such have a claim to all the benefits of the Union. In any particular case the Law Committee have no knowledge of the professional status of the applicant, unless it arises as an incidental detail.

Typical Cases.—A few cases are given which will indicate the variety and magnitude of the work carried on.

* A member is eligible for aid if—

- (1) He was a member at the time the difficulty arose;
- (2) He has paid the subscription for the current year; and
- (3) His name is in the official list of members of the Union for the preceding year.

Claims for Salary.—(1) A teacher was ill, and the Board under which she worked made a deduction from her salary for the time she was away. The General Solicitor and Standing Counsel advised that the Board had no legal right to make the deduction, and the agreement contained nothing which could be construed into such a right. The case was taken into the County Court, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, with the usual costs.

(2) No meeting of the Board could be held owing to the impossibility of obtaining a quorum at any meetings which had been called, and that in consequence the head master had not received the balance of his salary and his share of the Grant. The General Solicitor advised that no action should be taken until the Education Department had superseded the School Board as a Board in default, to see if any good would come from the interposition of the Department. As the amount was not forthcoming as a result of the action of the Department, the General Solicitor was instructed to commence proceedings, and, in consequence of this action, the salary and share of Grant, amounting to nearly £50, was paid over without taking the case into Court.

Libel.—(1) The Curate of a Parish Church, in a sermon, made reflections on the teachers of the National Schools. The case was submitted to the General Solicitor, who advised that the words spoken were slanderous and actionable, and as the words were spoken of the teachers in relation to their profession, correspondence took place between the General Solicitor and the defendant's Solicitors, with the result that an apology was obtained and published in two London and two provincial newspapers at the expense of the defendant; also that a sum of ten guineas was paid to the Charities of the National Union of Teachers as well as the costs of the General Solicitor.

(2) This was a case in which a member of a School Board had given notice of a motion for the next Board meeting, containing words disparaging to the teacher as such. A copy of the Board's printed agenda, containing the motion, was then placed by the member in his shop window for three days. The opinion of the General Solicitor was obtained, who advised that an action for damages for libel should be commenced. The case was tried at the Exeter Assizes, the plaintiff's briefs being in the hands of Mr. Bucknill, Q.C., and Mr. Garland. When the case came before the Assizes, an apology was made in Court, and judgment was given for 40s. and costs. The costs allowed by the Taxing Master were £113 2s. 9d.

(3) Brew v. Andrews.—It will be seen from the last Annual Report that this case was taken into Court and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, Mr. Brew, with damages 40s., which also carried the costs of the action. The costs were taxed at £119 11s. 6d., but were not paid by the defendant. The opinion of Mr. Sidney Woolf, Q.C., was then taken as to whether bankruptcy proceedings could be successfully instituted against Mr. Andrews so as to prevent him obtaining a seat on the School Board at the next election. The opinion was favourable, and a receiving order in Bankruptcy was made against the defendant with the result that he was adjudicated a bankrupt.

Slander.—A teacher was being slandered by a man living in the village, and the managers having heard of it, called upon the master to either meet the charges fairly or resign his office. The Chairman of the Law Committee went to the village, interviewed the managers, and, as a result, instructions were given to the General Solicitor to demand a retraction and apology. These proceedings led to the matter being brought before the magistrate on a summons taken out by the person making the charge. Standing Counsel was briefed, but the case was dismissed without calling upon him for the defence.

Assault.—(1) Teacher charged with indecent assault and dismissed by School Board. The case of assault was taken before the local magistrates, and by them sent for trial to the Assizes. When the case came on, the Judge spoke in terms of strong disapproval of the action of a Vigilance Society who were pushing on the prosecution. He said some of the evidence he could only regard as most mischievous and unreliable. After the hearing of the case, the jury, in a few minutes, returned a verdict of "Not Guilty."

Steps are now being taken to obtain damages from the Board for wrongful dismissal.

(2) An assistant master was suspended by a manager, who stated that he had been charged with indecent assault on one of his girl pupils on the preceding day. A managers' meeting was held in the evening, the assistant at that meeting being represented by a Solicitor engaged by the Union. The summons was taken out, and at the hearing before the magistrates the assistant master was committed for trial to the Sessions. At the trial the defendant was represented by the leading Counsel attending the Sessions, and a verdict of "Not Guilty" was returned. The costs in this case amounted to over £80.

PARLIAMENTARY WORK OF THE UNION.

The past year has been an important one in regard to Parliamentary work, many questions relating to education being before the House during the last Session. The organisation for carrying on the Parliamentary work through Parliamentary correspondents in connection with the various local associations has been continued during the year, and the services rendered by these officers have been of valuable assistance in bringing under the notice of Members of Parliament the various matters decided upon by the Executive.

Factories and Workshops Bill.—Immediately before the last Conference a petition to the House of Commons was prepared with reference to the Home Secretary's Bill, which had been referred to the Grand Committee on Trade. The petition, which appears on page cci, was placed in the hands of Mr. Mundella for presentation to the House. The Executive immediately after the Conference appointed a deputation, including representatives of the Half-Time Council, to wait upon the Home Secretary, and the Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee obtained the names of several Members of Parliament who were willing to accompany and support the deputation. The reply from the Home Department expressed regret that at that late stage the Secretary did not see his way to receive any more deputations with regard to the Factory Bill, but stated that the views of this Society if expressed by writing would receive his attention. A meeting of the Parliamentary Committee was called to sanction the sending of such a document, but in consequence of the death of the President the meeting was not held. As the question for raising the age for full-time and half-time exemption was to be discussed in Committee on 30th April on an amendment by Mr. Sydney Buxton, a memorandum was as a matter of emergency prepared and forwarded to the Home Secretary with a covering letter. This document contained the resolutions on the subject arrived at by Conference and the Executive, and the arguments supplied by the Half-time Council for the purpose of the petition. The Parliamentary correspondents were also requested to communicate with their local members, and the Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee spent a considerable amount of time among members of Parliament in reference to the subject. The amendments for raising the age for the employment of children having been lost in Committee the question was again raised on the report of the Committee to the House. Special information was given to members who proposed to speak on the question. A statement was also prepared and sent to members of Parliament, and Parliamentary correspondents were again utilised for calling the special attention of members to the subject. A communication

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Custom has laid upon the Treasurer the duty of reporting to Conferences the financial position and prospects of the Union. The decision of the Cardiff Conference, that a "professional" auditor should in future examine the accounts and report, leaves little for me to do beyond presenting the various Statements and Balance Sheets for your approval.

The Auditor's Report goes fully into the position of the Union's means, and plainly points out that we have no Cash to spare upon the Utopian ideas with which the air in some quarters appears to be loaded.

The sad events of the past year have necessarily added largely to our expenditure in the matter of salaries, while the activity of the supervisors, together with the larger proportion of Provincial Members on the Executive, have considerably raised the outlay upon travelling expenses. The only other serious item of increase in expenditure is that for Commission to Local Associations, and one which, as we have supervisors going on deputation work, seems to me altogether unnecessary, especially looking to our present and prospective responsibilities. As doubtless the matter will come before Conference, I leave the arguments against the principle involved to those more competent to debate the subject than I can hope to do.

I have only to add upon the General Funds that the adverse balance is considerably larger now than at the close of the year, and, in addition, it has not been possible to make the necessary transfers to either the Legal or Parliamentary Funds.

The Excess of Law Costs over those of last year is mainly due to the fact that a large number of accounts for cases then in progress have been received and paid during the year under review.

With reference to the Parliamentary Fund, since the Audit a further investment has been made by the purchase of £1,000 Canadian 3½ per cent. stock.

Looking at matters all round, if the Union is to develop in the directions that are suggested, and at the same time to pay its way, the members will have to seriously face the necessity of raising the subscription so that the amount available for the General Work may be adequate for the purpose.

The Officers of the Local Associations continue the unenviable work of beating up recruits, and to them my sincere thanks are due for their assistance.

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

110, Cannon Street, London,
22nd February, 1892.

TO THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS.

GENTLEMEN,—Having been appointed Auditor under the amended rules, in accordance therewith I beg to report upon the accounts.

My certificate embodies generally the result of my audit. I have compared the counterfoils of all the accounts for which receipts have been given, with the entries in cash book under the various funds, and also seen that all payments that can be reached are so accounted for.

I have thought it necessary to amend the form of Statements of Liabilities and Assets in some particulars, especially so as to show a comparison of the balance of each fund with that of the previous year.

In explanation of the manner in which the decrease in balance of General Fund has been arrived at, I append the following details:—

The gross income as shown by the cash statement (eliminating the balances at beginning and end of year) amounts to £5,000. To this must be added the estimated outstanding subscriptions belonging to 1891, and received subsequent to closing accounts for the year, but prior to date of audit, £50 0 0.

Less outstanding subscriptions for 1890, estimated in the accounts for that year at, £50 0 0

Income for 1891 of, £5,000 0 0

Subscriptions for 1890 actually received in 1891, amounted to £5,157 10 0

From this must be deducted the following items, viz.:

Cost of loan, £25 0 0

Furniture included under the heading

Expenditure and Repairs, £22 2 0

£5,110 7 6

10 per cent. depreciation of furniture, £29 4 3

Expenditure of, £5,139 11 9

From income as stated above, £5,063 3 4

Expenditure over income, £276 8 5

The items of income and expenditure under the Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund and Parliamentary Fund are sufficiently explanatory in themselves.

I do not think there is anything further upon which I consider it my duty to report; except to state that the books have been carefully and correctly kept, and every facility has been afforded me by Mr. James, the Acting Secretary, during my investigations.

I am, Gentlemen, yours faithfully,

(Signed)

SPECIAL REPORTS.

I.—SUPERANNUATION OF TEACHERS.

SPECIAL REPORT OF EXECUTIVE.

At the last Conference the Executive reported the Draft Bill which they had prepared. The Conference endorsed the action taken by the Executive to carry out the resolutions of the London Conference with respect to Superannuation, approved the Draft Bill prepared by them, and instructed them to use every effort to secure its passage through Parliament.

The Executive stated in their last report that they had suggested to the Chairman of the Select Committee the names of persons who might be called to give evidence on behalf of the Union. Of these, only two were called before the Committee, Mr. Collins and Mr. Gray.

It will be recollected that the Union has never been in possession of sufficient data with respect to the ages and years of service of teachers employed in elementary schools on which to base adequate actuarial calculations. Such a return has, however, been obtained from the Education Department for the use of the Select Committee, and the Government Actuary, Mr. Sutton, was employed by the Select Committee to prepare such calculations. In order, if necessary, to check the result arrived at by Mr. Sutton, the Executive empowered the Superannuation Subcommittee to employ the services of Mr. Andras. The results at which he arrived were practically the same as those given by Mr. Sutton. The questions submitted to Mr. Andras and his report thereon are given in Appendix A to this report.

The results obtained by both Mr. Andras and Mr. Sutton were such as to convince your Committee that any further progress with the scheme submitted to the last Conference was impossible. Mr. Sutton was also instructed by the Committee of the House to prepare a series of tables on which a superannuation scheme might be based. These were submitted to the Select Committee, and a draft report founded thereon was prepared by Sir Richard Temple. The Committee then adjourned, owing to the termination of the Parliamentary session. When the report of the Select Committee appeared, the Executive instructed the Finance Committee to prepare an abstract of the evidence, and if necessary, to prepare new or rebutting evidence. The Press Committee were also instructed to prepare a manifesto for broadcast circulation setting forth the reasons and need for a Superannuation Fund for primary school teachers. This document, which is appended to this report, was subsequently adopted by the Executive and sent to the principal newspapers of the country. A summary of the evidence given before the Select Committee, so far as it related to the establishment of the National Scheme of Superannuation, was also prepared. This is also appended to the report. The Executive then requested the local associations to take into consideration the report made by the Actuary to the Select Committee with regard to the general scheme of Superannuation. This report indicated the suggestions made to the Actuary by the Select Committee and was therefore of considerable value. A series of questions was prepared and issued to the Associations, together with the summary of evidence and an explanatory circular letter which appear as Appendices C and D to this report. These documents were also published in THE SCHOOLMASTER in order that the details might be carefully considered by all Union and teachers generally. The replies were report thereon was submitted to the Sub-Committee of the Sub-Committee the report of Mr. Sutton was as it did not deal with any State provision for years rendered by teachers. At their request Mr. Andrus covering these questions of State aid. The report is E on p. xvii.

The Acting Secretary on the replies received from local associations indicated a general approval of all the questions submitted, but additional suggestions were made, the principal of which were as follows:—

1. There should be a subsidy from the State for future teachers.
2. That there should also be a subsidy for future years of service for present teachers.
3. Repayment is regarded as essential by most associations, and of the three courses suggested, that by means of an auxiliary scheme appeared to find most favour.
4. Many associations desire an earlier age for retirement than that suggested.
5. A number of associations point out that some provision should be made for those teachers who become incapacitated before reaching the pension age.

The sub-committee carefully considered these replies, together with valuable information obtained from other sources, and, on their recommendation, the Executive adopted the following outline of a scheme:—

Different Treatment for Present and Future Teachers.—The existing conditions require a difference of treatment for the teachers already working in the schools, and those who may enter the profession after the adoption of a scheme of Superannuation. Future teachers should be understood to mean certificated teachers; and present teachers should include those referred to under Sub-Sections (c), (d), and (e) of Art. 81—i.e., assistant teachers, provisionally certificated teachers, and certificated teachers.

Suggestions for Future Teachers.—The Executive are of opinion that the pension for future teachers should be provided by a minimum contribution of £2, and a maximum contribution of £20 to purchase an annuity in accordance with Mr. Sutton's table where the premiums are not returnable, the State guaranteeing interest at not less than 5 per cent. and also providing free management, together with a subsidy of 10s. per annum for each year of service.

In considering this question the Executive had before them the following information:—That not less than 1,000 teachers will annually enter the profession in order to meet the normal waste and the requirements of the increased population. The Actuary estimates that to provide a subsidy of £1 for each year of service for teachers retiring at the age of 60, that is an annuity of £40, the present cost would be £75,750 per thousand teachers, or £159,440; and this would really be the annual grant required from the State to provide the continuation of such system of subsidy, or in other words this sum must be paid annually for future teachers alone, the payment commencing from the first year after the passing of the Pension Bill. If the retiring age be 65 instead of 60 the annual cost would be about £109,620. Considering that this sum would have to be provided during each of the next 40 years side by side with the subsidy for existing teachers as well as for all time, the Executive are of opinion that it will be distinctly unwise to insist on such a subsidy, and in that opinion they are supported by the votes recorded on this question. The Executive, therefore, recommend that instead of an annuity of £1 per annum the subsidy from the State should be 10s. per annum for each year of service. With retirement at 65 this would involve the payment of £54,810 annually, commencing from the present date; but if the usual course be adopted of meeting the annuities when they fall due, the amount would naturally be very much higher.

Suggestions for Present Teachers.—The Executive are of opinion that the Pension should be provided by a minimum contribution of £3, and a maximum of £20, purchasing an annuity in accordance with the table where premiums are not returnable in Mr. Sutton's report, the ordinary State guarantee and management being given as for future teachers, together with the following subsidy:—An annuity of £1 for each year of back service—that is, for service rendered as a teacher before the passing of the Pension Bill, and a further annuity of 10s. for every year of service rendered after the passing of the Pension Bill to the date of retirement.

This would cost the State roughly £1,500,000 for the years of service already rendered, and a similar amount for years of service yet to be rendered, or together a capitalised sum of about £3,000,000.

Mr. Sutton's Tables.—The Executive are of opinion that the figures given by Mr. Sutton without any Government subsidy would not be more favourable than those given by other societies.

Repayment of Premiums.—The Executive decided that repayment should be provided by means of an ancillary scheme, which should be optional.

Incapacity.—The Executive were of opinion that some provision should be made by way of a pension for those who become incapacitated before reaching the pension age; but no decision was arrived at as to the best means of meeting this difficulty.

This outline of a Pension Scheme for teachers, in accordance with the above decisions, has been given in evidence before the Select Committee by Messrs. Gray (Chairman of Parliamentary Committee), Yoxall (Acting President), Bowden, Horobin, John, and Ellery (Chairman of Superannuation Sub-Committee), who were summoned as witnesses on behalf of the Union. Mr. Clancy also gave evidence as a teacher well acquainted with the views of Roman Catholic teachers.

In the evidence given on behalf of the Union it was suggested that provision should be made for the repayment of premiums at death by teachers having the option of contributing under the alternative table given by Mr. Sutton, where, taking the age of entry at twenty, a contribution of £4 instead of £3 would secure the same annuity at the age of sixty, together with the return of premiums in the event of death before reaching that age. For those leaving the profession while in a sound state of health it was suggested that they should take their surrender value; and, looking to the fact that this value varies very considerably at the end of different periods of service, it was suggested that these values might be averaged.

With respect to incapacity, it was clear that provision must be made outside the tables already submitted, and be met by a further subsidy from the State.

The proceedings of the Select Committee have been carefully watched by Mr. Gray, the Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee, on behalf of the Union, who was requested by the Chairman of the Select Committee to discuss with the Actuary the various points of difficulty which had arisen during the progress of the enquiry. In support of the Union's claims for State aid, Mr. Gray also presented to the Committee a paper giving the conditions which prevail in the various countries of Europe for the superannuation of teachers.

As time would not allow the details of the scheme now proposed to be submitted to Conference, the Executive report the action they have taken, and trust it will receive the unanimous approval of Conference and of the teachers generally.

APPENDIX A.

REPORT OF MR. ANDRAS ON DRAFT BILL OF 1891.

The following questions with reference to the Draft Bill were submitted to Mr. Andras on 13th May, 1891:—

1. What percentage deduction from the salaries of teachers would be sufficient to provide the pensions under the conditions in the Draft Bill provided the scheme were commencing with no years of service beyond those during which deductions from salary were made?
2. What amount would be sufficient, without any provision for repayment of deductions in the event of death or retirement?
3. (a) What percentage deduction would now be required if the years of service of those who entered since 1861 were counted.
(b) What sum would be required from the Government to meet the claims from these additional years of service without contributions?
4. (a) What percentage deduction would now be required if all the years of service were counted as provided in the Bill?
(b) What sum would be required from the Government to meet the claims for these years of service without contributions?
5. To what extent, if any, would the Government guarantee which obviates the necessity for accumulating capital sufficient to meet all liabilities if the fund were closed at any time, diminish the amount otherwise required to be deducted from the salaries?

The following is the Actuary's report in reply to the inquiries submitted:—

TO THE COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT OF THE NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS.

GENTLEMEN,—In accordance with your instructions, conveyed by the Acting Secretary in his letter of the 18th inst., I have examined the various documents submitted to me, and have considered the questions referred for my opinion.

I first investigated the sufficiency of the proposed 4 per cent. deduction (upon the salaries) from the Annual Grant to provide a pension consisting of one-sixtieth of the annual salary at the date of retirement for every completed year of service as a certificated teacher. The average salary of a male teacher I have taken at £120, and of a female teacher at £76, and I am informed by inquiry at your office that the salaries of certificated teachers do not, as a rule, increase with length of service. The percentage deduction from the salary does not therefore increase the amount contributed towards the pension by the teacher as time goes on. As a preliminary step I calculated the accompanying table of contributions for every £10 of deferred annuity, and the headings are sufficiently explanatory of the contents of the table. By inspection of the Parliamentary Return of the 22nd April, 1891, I concluded that the average pension of a male teacher at the rate provided in the proposed Bill would be £60, and for a female teacher £30. Four per cent. of the average salary of £120 (male) is £4 16s., and 4 per cent. of £76 (female) is £3 0s. 10d., and it is clear from the accompanying table that these are insufficient contributions at even the earlier ages for deferred annuities of £60 and £30 respectively. It is clear that the financial basis of the scheme is unsound unless the contributions from new entrants, whether contributed by the teachers alone, or by the teachers and the Education Department, are sufficient to meet the benefits, and it appeared to me useless to go into the further calculations suggested until the contributions had been put upon a satisfactory basis. As to this matter, I think it would be better that I should first have an interview with your Committee, and then, if they desire it, submit to them a fresh scheme upon a more secure financial basis.—I am, Gentlemen, your obedient Servant,

Mr. ANDRAS had an interview with the Committee, and subsequently sent in the following report:—

25, Pall Mall, London, S.W., 30th June, 1891.

To the Committee of Management of the National Union of Teachers.

GENTLEMEN,—Since reporting to you on the 25th ult., I have had under further consideration the various questions contained in your Secretary's letter of the 19th ult. It is well known to you that in the meantime the Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed to investigate the London School Board Superannuation Scheme, as set forth in a Bill prepared for introduction to Parliament, has rejected that Scheme, and has also given an unfavourable reception to the Bill proposed by your Executive. Having regard to the unsatisfactory nature of the propositions made from outside sources the members of the Committee have referred a case for opinion to the Actuary to the Treasury, and have directed him to formulate a sound scheme for the superannuation of all certificated teachers, such scheme to involve either a subsidy from or a guarantee by Government or both. The Actuary to the Treasury has, as a preliminary step, formed certain tables of contributions for deferred annuities, and in all these tables it will be observed that he has omitted from the calculation the element of secessions, thus confirming the view expressed by me on the 25th ult., that it is not legitimate to introduce such an element into the calculation of rates of contribution. Having regard, then, to the fact that it seems finally settled that the element of secession should not be introduced into rates of contribution for pensions, and that there is an evident disposition on the part of the members of the Select Committee to advise a Government guarantee at least, and perhaps a Government subsidy, to any scheme favourably reported on by them, I am inclined to use $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. interest in the calculation of rates of contribution in lieu of 3 per cent. interest, the rate used by me in the scale submitted to you on the 25th ult., which scale was merely intended to convince your Committee of the inadequacy of the terms proposed in their Bill, rather than to be used as final rates in any scheme.

For the sake of illustration of the proposed rates, if we take age 21 (last birthday) at entry, the annual rate for every £10 of annuity after 60 years of age is for males 16s. 4d. (as against 17s. 5d. in the table previously submitted), and for females 18s. 7d. These rates assume $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. interest, and that the present value of an annuity of £10 a year at age 60 is, for males £105 16s. 7d., and for females £115 9s. 1d. (according to the last published tables of annuities calculated at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. interest, the rate of mortality being that experienced by Government annuitants after four years or more have elapsed from the date of purchase of the annuity). Taking the average salary of a male teacher at £120, and of a female teacher at £76, and assuming that the average pension of a male teacher will be £60, and of a female teacher £35, the cost of such pensions at the above rates will be, for a male teacher entering at 21 years of age £4 18s., and for a female teacher £3 5s. If, therefore, such a rough method of approximation to the necessary percentage of deduction from salary can be admitted as giving some preliminary idea of the all-round percentage required, $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the salaries in the case of males and $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. in the case of females would be a close approximation to the proper provision for the pension benefits proposed in your abandoned Bill, but without return of premiums. Having regard, however, to the danger of using averages in statistics when combined with compound interest calculations, this can only be considered a very rough approximation.

With regard to a general Scheme of Pensions, I am inclined to the opinion that in the case of new entrants each individual should be compelled to spend in the purchase of a pension, after a fixed age, some proportion (to be yet decided) of his salary—in other words, that a system of deferred pay should be introduced. Whatever sum may be annually granted by Parliament as a subsidy to the Scheme should be utilised in the first place towards the provision of pensions which should have been provided by existing teachers had the same system of deferred pay been in existence when they entered the service, but with the understanding that from the commencement of the Scheme existing teachers shall contribute the fixed proportion of their salaries thenceforward, and in the second place to the provision of supplementary pensions to those already paid for by the new teachers themselves with some regard to the salary and length of service of the pensioner.

I would suggest that you take no steps to formulate any scheme of your own until you have had an opportunity of examining the propositions to be made by the Actuary to the Treasury to the Select Committee. It would be of little use to spend time and money in the elaboration of a scheme which would not receive the approval of the Select Committee.

until it had been referred to the Actuary to the Treasury for his opinion, which would be guided by his own investigations in the matter.—Yours faithfully.

(Signed)

H. W. ANDRAS, Actuary.

APPENDIX B.

MEMORANDUM ON SUPERANNUATION OF TEACHERS IN PUBLIC ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

As the question of the superannuation of teachers in public elementary schools, which has recently been under the consideration of a Select Committee of the House of Commons, will be further dealt with during the next Session, the Executive of the National Union of Teachers desire to express their opinion that it would be for the advantage of education generally if provision were made for the retirement of those teachers who, by reason of age, have become unable to efficiently discharge their duties. They consider this result would be best obtained by the Government compelling all certificated teachers to make some provision for themselves which should be supplemented by State-aid. The following are a few of the reasons why they consider the State should contribute for this purpose :—

1. Teachers, although not recognised as Civil servants, are discharging public duties, and are entirely under the control of a Government Department.
2. The teacher's certificate is granted by the State, and by the same authority may be suspended.
3. In consequence of the Government admitting to the certificate as many teachers as they please each year, the law of supply and demand does not apply to the teaching profession.
4. The Government do not undertake to find employment for those they certify.
5. The practice of the Government in admitting to the certificate a larger number than can find employment in schools has had the effect of reducing the salaries below their natural level.
6. Most teachers receive such small salaries that it is impossible for them to make provision for old age. Of the certificated masters 41 per cent. are receiving less than £100 a year; and 58 per cent. of the certificated mistresses receive less than £75 per annum.
7. It is impossible for a teacher in a public elementary school to secure a marketable "goodwill" as the result of long and successful service.
8. Teachers who, by reason of age, have become unable to efficiently discharge their duties retain their appointments, as a means of livelihood, and the education of the children consequently suffers.

In support of their opinion, the Executive append a few extracts from public and official documents.

REPORT OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON EDUCATION, 1888 (p. 84).

"On the whole we should be glad to see a superannuation scheme established. . . . We are of opinion that this scheme of superannuation should be made compulsory upon all teachers certificated after a date to be decided by Parliament. We think that cases not capable of being covered by these simple provisions would not be large in number, and might be met by grants from the Department in augmentation of benevolent funds, until the effect of the above scheme was fully developed."

REPORT OF SPEECH OF THE RIGHT HON. J. CHAMBERLAIN, M.P., AT THE PUBLIC MEETING IN THE TOWN HALL, BIRMINGHAM, AT EASTER, 1889.

"But as far as the pension-list applicable to the civil service of this country is concerned, I think the objection to it is based upon a misapprehension. I regard the pensions so granted as being part of the engagement of service. I regard them as a system of compulsory thrift enforced by the State upon its servants. They are deductions from the salary of those servants, and they are taken into account when they accept their position. They are justified, they are desirable, on two grounds—in the first place, because they avoid the scandal which would otherwise exist of public servants who have passed the best years of their life in the public service, and who afterwards, in advanced years, might have to claim the bread of charity; and, in the second place, because they enable the heads of the great departments to secure efficiency by superannuations—by putting aside, without hardship or injustice, those who, from ill-health or other causes, are no longer able to render the services which they have rendered during the better part of their lives. I say, then, ladies and gentlemen, that for these reasons I am in favour of a pension or superannuation system in connection with the civil service of the country. And for the life of me I cannot see why the teachers—the national teachers—should not be included in the ranks of the Civil Service; and why, upon the same terms and the same conditions, and for the same objects and purposes, they also should not be entitled to superannuation."

MR. J. R. DIGGLE, CHAIRMAN OF THE SCHOOL BOARD FOR LONDON, IN HIS EVIDENCE BEFORE THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON THE SCHOOL BOARD FOR LONDON SUPERANNUATION BILL (1891).

(Question 8).—"From that time to this there has been a growing conviction upon the part of the Board, and a growing conviction amongst the officers of the Board, that superannuation allowances were absolutely necessary for the proper conduct of the Board's work in the future. I have always personally supported this scheme, not in the interests of any section of the officers, but in the general interests of the Board's work. I find that, practically, especially amongst the teachers, as soon as a teacher has reached the age of sixty, he becomes less fit for the charge of schools than he has been in years past; and there is always in a public body a natural indisposition to discharge officers simply on account of age, even though their services are not so efficient as they might be; and that hesitancy on the part of public boards is almost an insuperable difficulty, unless some provision can be made for the officer in question. That provision can only be made through a superannuation fund. I think that fairly expresses the feeling of the Board with respect to the reason why a superannuation fund is absolutely necessary."

(Question 263).—"I should be prepared to pay a large part out of the rates in order to have superannuation, if that should be necessary in the future, because I say that the advantages to the instruction of children in having younger, brighter, and brisker teachers, is worth the money."

THE HON. EDWARD LYULPH STANLEY IN HIS EVIDENCE BEFORE THE SAME COMMITTEE.

(Question 851).—Referring to the recommendation of the Royal Commission, which would give a woman £35 a year and a man £45 a year annuity, of which £15 would be the maximum amount provided from public money—"I think that is inadequate. It might have been thought adequate 30 or 40 years ago, when the whole status of the teaching body was lower, but I do not think any such pension as that is adequate in the present day. I think that in any figures you consider you ought to consider a more liberal scale than that; but the principle was so far sound that it required an effort on the part of the teacher himself; and you will be forced, if you adopt superannuation, to subsidise your scheme by public aid, which amounts to a specific grant ear-marked for the purpose of superannuation of teachers for the benefit of public education."

(Question 868).—"It [a national scheme of superannuation for teachers would be for the advantage of education."

(Question 884).—"Upon the question whether any scheme should be supported out of public money—in principle it ought to be a solvent scheme—the teachers should support it out of their own pockets; but I cannot help thinking, in regard to the wretched salaries people have been receiving in the rural schools, that it would be necessary to increase the salaries of the teachers in the rural schools by yearly payments, and to ear-mark a part of the grant for that purpose."

(Question 886).—"I have said that under the present conditions of England, with the inadequate salaries which are paid in voluntary schools, you cannot treat teachers as in the independent position of being able to make provision for the future."

EXTRACT FROM THE DRAFT REPORT OF SIR RICHARD TEMPLE, BART., M.P., CHAIRMAN OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

Par. 1.—"The evidence, together with a study of educational conditions, convince your Committee that superannuation is desirable for the sake not only of the teachers, but of the schools. It is proved that after a certain age the teachers lose the vivacity needful for success, and that, unless they can be superannuated, they will be retained in positions which, despite their best exertions, they cannot efficiently fill. The question thus becomes one of educational policy, as well as that of benevolence towards a body of public servants. In this body your Committee will include both men and women belonging to voluntary schools and board schools."

Par. 2.—“It is impossible, as your Committee apprehend, that pensions should be allowed to teachers from public funds without contributions from themselves. If that be so, then they must be prepared to make this provision partly or wholly by their own contributions. As a matter of possibility, a pension fund from their own contributions could be established and maintained by private arrangements, but, in practice, it is known from experience that this will not be done to a sufficient extent, and that many persons will reach a pensionable age without having provided for pension. If, then, a system of superannuation is to be called into existence, there must be some authority, some organisation, and even some aid from the State.”

APPENDIX C.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE GIVEN BEFORE THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON SCHOOL BOARD FOR LONDON (SUPER-ANNUATION) BILL SO FAR AS IT RELATES TO A NATIONAL SCHEME OF SUPERANNUATION.

THE SCHOOL BOARD FOR LONDON (SUPERANNUATION) BILL was read a second time on January 27th, 1891, and committed to a Select Committee, who were instructed to consider the whole question of Superannuation of Elementary School Teachers in England and Wales.

The Committee after taking evidence adopted on July 20th the following special report:—

REPORT.

“Your Committee think it is not desirable to proceed with the Bill referred to them; they, therefore, report the same without amendment to the House.

“Some witnesses have been examined by your Committee upon the general subject referred to them, but as the actuarial evidence is very complex, and has only recently been placed before them, and as further evidence will be required, your Committee have not been able to consider any report.

“They have, therefore, agreed to report to the House the evidence they have already taken, and recommend that a Committee be re-appointed in the next Session of Parliament.”

SCHEME OF LONDON SCHOOL BOARD.

As the Committee have reported against proceeding with the London School Board Bill, it has not been thought necessary to give an abstract of the evidence in reference to it. The evidence of the following witnesses which related entirely to this Bill is consequently not summarised:—Mr. J. R. Diggle, Chairman of the Board; Mr. G. Attenborough, Accountant to the Board; Mr. G. H. Croad, Clerk to the Board; Mr. G. A. Christian, Representative of the Metropolitan Board Teachers' Association; Miss J. Pitt, Repre-representative of the School Board Mistresses' Association; and Mr. T. B. Sprague, Actuary.

The following statement contains a summary of the evidence of the various witnesses with reference to a National Scheme of Superannuation for teachers in elementary schools:—

NATIONAL SCHEME OF SUPERANNUATION.

The Hon. E. L. STANLEY stated that he would not like to go quite so far as to say he was in favour of a National Superannuation Scheme for teachers on account of the immense difficulties he saw in the way; but if a practical scheme could be devised he considered that a scheme of superannuation for all teachers would be a great benefit to elementary education, and would secure greater efficiency in the teaching staff. If they were to have superannuation at all it was essential that it should be national and cover all classes of teachers, both Board and Voluntary. He considered that the recommendation made by the majority of the Royal Commission in favour of a modified system of general superannuation did not go far enough in liberality to the teachers. That scheme proposed to use the agency of the Post Office Insurance, and required new teachers coming into the service to secure an annuity through the post-office of £20 for women and £30 for men. The commissioners recommended that the State should, at the age of fifty-five, supplement that annuity by an additional annuity from the public money according to length of service, the maximum augmentation being £15 per year, thus providing for women £35 a year, and men £45 a year. He considered that amount inadequate. It might have been thought adequate, thirty or forty years ago when the whole status of the teaching body was lower. He thought the Committee ought to consider a more liberal scheme than that; but the principle was so far sound that it required an effort on the part of the teacher himself. They would be forced if they adopted superannuation to subsidise their scheme by public aid which amounted to a specific grant ear-marked for the purpose of superannuation of teachers, and for the benefit of public education. He considered the benefits should be graduated according to the age of entering the profession. He did not say that because he thought it ought to be self-supporting; it might be subsidised, but the scheme should be financially sound, and the State should know what amount would be required from them. They might do something special for existing teachers, but he suggested they should not complicate a scheme for new teachers with special considerations of compassion for existing teachers. If a scheme were proposed which was self-supporting and sound financially, it would be desirable that the beneficiaries should manage it, and there would be no reason for limiting the amount, but a scheme subsidised with public money should be limited to the necessities of the case. He considered a maximum pension of £80 for a man and £60 for a woman would be sufficient to enable them to live respectably in their declining years. Such a pension would prevent anyone from being able to say that the managers were harsh if they called upon a person who was past his work to make room for a more efficient teacher. The question was one of immense difficulty, owing to the mixed system of education and the precarious tenure of office. The liability to lose employment was so serious that it was difficult to frame a fair superannuation scheme. He informed the Committee that Mr. Chamberlain, in his speech at Birmingham, expressed his belief in the possibility of a National Scheme, and stated that he saw no reason why teachers should not be treated as if they were Civil Servants. Upon the question whether any scheme should be supported out of public money, he (the witness) considered that in principle it ought to be a solvent scheme, and that the teachers should support it out of their own pockets; but, having regard to the wretched salaries received by teachers in rural schools, he thought it would be necessary to increase the salaries (& contributions) of the teachers in the rural schools by yearly payments, and to ear-mark part of the grant for that purpose. With the inadequate salaries paid in elementary schools they could not treat teachers as in the independent position of being able to make provision for the future. He suggested that possibly one-fourth of the maximum pension suggested above might be provided from public money.

Mr. G. COLLINS, Vice-President of the National Union of Teachers, was strongly of opinion that it was absolutely necessary, in the interests of the country, that a satisfactory scheme for the superannuation of teachers should be devised. The National Union had provided a tentative scheme which they submitted for the consideration of the Committee. About £8,000,000 was spent every year from rates, grants, fees, and subscriptions upon the Voluntary and Board schools. The introduction of a scheme of superannuation for aged and incapacitated teachers would result in an improvement in the efficiency of the schools of from 5 to 10 per cent. Five per cent. on an expenditure of £8,000,000 would represent £400,000. His idea was that the expense of such a scheme should be shared between the teachers and the State, seeing that the State as well as the teachers would benefit. The teachers of the country would accept a scheme which did not involve payments beyond their means. He considered that 4 per cent. on the salaries would be within the means of teachers.

Mr. E. GRAY, Chairman of the Parliamentary Committee of the National Union of Teachers, submitted the draft Bill prepared by the Union, and explained that the principles of the Bill were contained in the following resolution of their Conference in 1890:—

“That the Bill be based on the following general principles :

- (a) The fund to be formed by the annual contributions of all teachers to whom this scheme is applicable, such contributions not to exceed in any case a sum equal to 4 per cent. on the teacher's salary ; and the fund to provide for not only superannuation, but repayment of premiums in case of death or retirement before the pension falls due.
- (b) The Government to guarantee the solvency of the fund.
- (c) The amount of pension to be awarded in each case to be calculated at the rate of one-sixtieth of the salary at the retirement for each year of service up to a maximum of forty years of service."

The scheme provided for ordinary and special pensions. The ordinary pension for retirement at the age of sixty for males and fifty-five for females was one-sixtieth of the annual salary at the date of retirement for each complete year of service. The special pension would be given after ten years' service if it were shown that the teacher had become incapacitated. A gratuity not exceeding the amount of salary at the time of retirement might be given after less than ten years of service. The scheme proposed that the Education Department should deduct 4 per cent. on the teachers' salaries from the annual grant; and that the managers should recoup themselves by deducting a corresponding amount from the teachers' salaries, thus simplifying the mode and reducing the cost of collection. That amount would be handed over to the committee appointed to manage the scheme. It was proposed that the committee should consist of nine persons, four representing the State, four elected by the National Union of Teachers, and the Secretary of the Education Department. The scheme had been prepared on the lines of the London School Board Bill, but the repayment fund would not be distinct from the pension fund. There was some reason for considering the case of the existing teachers from an actuarial point of view separately from the scheme as a whole for the future. He doubted whether teachers would support a scheme in which the case of the old teachers was not in some way met. He did not consider that a scheme for superannuating the future teachers should be self-supporting, as it would not be possible for teachers in rural schools to contribute the necessary amounts, and the State would gain so much by the removal of teachers who had done good work, but become incapacitated, that it should assist in their removal. The State contribution might be in the form of a guarantee of solvency. It was desirable that some arrangement should be made for the repayment of amounts contributed in the event of death before the pension was obtained, notwithstanding that this would raise the scale of contributions; but he would not go so far as to say that such an arrangement was essential. Questions were put as to the membership of the Union, and whether the teachers who were not members would accept the proposed arrangement for constituting the pension committee, seeing that the Union represented only a proportion of the teachers, but the witness was unable to speak for them; he had no idea how representation for them could be secured. He believed the members of the Union were all agreed upon the scheme. If the proposed scheme were adopted, the pensions paid under the minutes of 1846 and 1851 could be merged into the scheme. Asked whether, in the event of the scheme being unsound, he would desire to have a larger deduction than 4 per cent. from the salaries or take what that amount would produce, he considered the 4 per cent. deduction was the greatest amount the teachers could afford. He thought the Union would assent to an arrangement by which those teachers who would shortly come into the benefits of the scheme should pay more than those who would have to subscribe for many years. There might be a distinction either in the rate of payment or in the rate of pension.

or in the number of years that should be counted. No actuarial opinion had been obtained on the scheme as the Union were waiting for the necessary figures from the Education Department. He thought teachers would be satisfied with a scheme actuarially sound for future teachers, but having the Government guarantee to fall back upon. He considered the £80 and £60 suggested by Mr. Stanley too small for the maximum pension. The amount suggested by the Union was two-thirds of the salary. If the 4 per cent. deduction was insufficient for that, he thought the maximum pension should be reduced rather than the contributions increased. The difficulty of setting up a scheme for the present teachers was very great, but not insuperable. He thought the State should provide liberally for the immediate difficulty with respect to the older teachers. A question was raised as to the position of those teachers who have already provided for superannuation through the Provident Society. The State having the control of the supply of teachers in their own hands, and manufacturing more teachers than were required, salaries were reduced, and were now reaching a point when it was next to impossible for the teacher to make any provision for old age. This established a claim on the part of teachers to some assistance from the Government towards their pension scheme.

Mr. J. BARTON, representing the Voluntary Teachers' Association of London, did not concur in the proposal of the National Union that the pension should be calculated on the final salary, but would prefer it on the average salary. He also objected to the proposal to repay without interest the amount of the deductions to a teacher withdrawing from the profession. With these exceptions his Association agreed with the Bill proposed by the Union. He admitted that some repayment in the way of making provision for a widow would be desirable. They agreed that all teachers, whether in Voluntary or Board Schools, should be compulsorily required to pay contributions towards a superannuation scheme. Whatever scheme was adopted for existing teachers, there must be a Government subsidy, as it was impossible for them to make sufficient provision without it.

Mr. SUTTON, who made the actuarial calculations for the Committee, points out in his report that in a scheme of superannuation the assumptions, from an actuarial point of view, should be as few as possible. The rate of mortality among members, and the rate of interest to be earned by the funds, are indispensable; but beyond these in many Superannuation Funds capricious elements are introduced, such as the rates of secession of members (that is, members leaving active service otherwise than by death or retirement), and rates of salaries, on which depend the amount of contributions to the fund, as well as the amount of pension. He also points out that by fixing a uniform percentage deduction from salaries the assumption is implied contrary to the facts that all members of the fund will have their salaries uniformly and proportionately increased throughout membership, with the result that the class of members whose salary only rises to a small extent or is practically stationary will be called upon to pay heavier contributions to meet the shortcomings of those whose salaries have, throughout membership, steadily, if not heavily, increased.

He advises that in any general scheme there should be no attempt to deal with salaries.

The return of ages of teachers and years of service obtained from the Education Department was found insufficient, inasmuch as it gave the particulars in bulk, while the Actuary wanted the number of teachers at each age who had served one, two, three, &c., years for males and females separately. This return was also furnished by the Education Department.

PENSIONS PURCHASABLE BY CONTRIBUTIONS OF TEACHERS.

Mr. Sutton has prepared tables showing:—

What £1, paid at any age, will amount to at age sixty and sixty-five respectively at $2\frac{1}{2}$, and at 3 per cent. ;

The amount of pension which this accumulated sum will purchase at the given pension age ; and

The total pension which the payment of £1 at any age, with a further payment of £1 each year afterwards, will purchase at the given pension age, taking mortality and interest only into consideration.

The tables give the figures for all ages, but the following extract containing the amounts for ages at intervals of five years, will give a general idea of the amount of pension purchasable by contribution commencing at intermediate ages. (Interest at 3 per cent.).

Table A.

Showing amount of Pension which a Contribution of £1 a year, from given age, will buy.*

Age for commencing Contribution.	Amount of Pension commencing at Age 60.	Amount of Pension commencing at Age 65.
25	8 11 0	14 13 0
30	6 9 0	11 4 0
35	4 14 0	8 8 0
40	3 6 0	6 2 0
45	2 3 0	4 4 0
50	1 5 0	2 14 0
55	0 11 0	1 11 0

The above figures are for males, the amounts for females being slightly less.

* The pence have been disregarded in stating the amounts of pensions which are given in the Actuary's tables in decimals of £1.

Mr. Sutton also furnishes tables showing the present value of a pension of £1 per annum, payable quarterly, for males and females separately (interest calculated at 2½ and 3 per cent.). The figures are worked out for all ages, from 18 to 65.

The following specimen ages taken from the table, calculated at 3 per cent., will indicate the character of the table:—

Present value of a Pension of £1 per annum.

COST TO THE GOVERNMENT OF SUBSIDISING THE FUND TO MAKE PROVISION FOR EXISTING TEACHERS.

1. By giving every Existing Teacher a Pension of £1 a year for each year of Service.

Assuming interest at 3 per cent., it is calculated that the amount which it would be necessary for the Government to pay down immediately to provide for the present teachers a pension commencing at the age of sixty of £1 a year for each year of service, completed to August, 1890, would be

£1,169,408 for the males,
1,288,527 for the females.

Total ... £2,457,935

If the pension age were sixty-five, the amounts would be £725,774 for the males.

812,202 for the females.

Total ... £1,537,976

2. By giving to each of the existing Teachers a Pension of £1.

Assuming, as before, interest at 3 per cent., it would be necessary for the Government to pay down immediately to provide for the present teachers a pension of £1 on reaching the age of sixty:—

£73,176 for the males
107,456 for the females

Total ... £180,632

If the pension of £1 were provided at the age of sixty-five the amount required would be—

£44,823 for the males,
67,491 for the females.

Total ... £112,314

In other words, these figures give the present value of a pension at the given age of £1 a year to every existing teacher.

The £1 has been selected in order that the Committee might arrive at a conclusion as to what it would cost the Government to provide for every existing teacher a pension of, say, £20 or £40. It would be simply necessary to multiply the amounts by 20 or 40, or any other number, according to the amount of the pension required.

3. By giving the sum required to make up a Pension of a certain amount if each of the present Teachers paid a uniform Contribution.

An estimate is given of the cost of starting the fund, by making all the existing male teachers pay a uniform contribution sufficient at age 21 to buy a pension at age 65 of £100 a year, £80 a year, and £71 17s. a year respectively (interest at 3 per cent.); the amount of pensions for ages above 21 being made up to £100, £80, or £71 17s. a year respectively by State subsidy; all teachers entering hereafter to pay strictly according to the scale laid down in the tables.

Uniform contribution per annum in advance for a pension of ...	£100	0	0	a year would be	£5	11	0

" " ...	80	0	0	" "	4	9	0
" " ...	71	17	0	" "	4	0	0

The cost to the State would be £2,687,827, £2,150,048, or £1,931,858, according to the pension selected.

To provide in a similar manner for females the amounts would be—

Uniform contribution per annum in advance for a pension of ...	£80	12	0	would be	£5

" " ...	64	10	0	"	£4

The cost to the State would be £2,756,819 or £2,205,469. according to the pension selected.

It thus appears that the total cost to the State to subsidise the fund so as to provide in this manner for a pension of £100 for males and £80 12s. for females would be £5,444,646, while the teachers would pay—males £5 11s. and females £5, per annum. If the amount were distributed over the next ten years, the annual payment required from the State would be approximately £619,700.

If the pensions were £80 males and £64 10s. females, the cost to the State would be £4,355,517, or, distributed over ten years, about £495,730 per annum; while at the same time the teachers would pay—males £4 9s. and females £4 per annum.

The Actuary points out in his report a difficulty in fixing the minimum pension without having some regard to the salaries of the teachers, as it is not unlikely that cases would arise in which the minimum granted by the State without payment might exceed the teacher's actual salary.

REPAYMENT OF PREMIUMS.

It is stated in the evidence that the tables referred to above do not provide for the return of contributions; nor do they contemplate any provision for the wife or family in the event of a teacher dying before receiving his pension. The amounts paid would go towards forming the fund for those who lived to receive their pensions. Provision might be made for the payment of a smaller pension to those who became incapacitated before reaching the pension age, but any provision of this kind or for payment at death before receiving the pension would necessitate a fresh scheme or essential modifications of that now proposed. An ancillary scheme could be prepared to meet such cases.

1. Return of Premiums in event of Death before the Pension is entered upon.

If premiums are returned in the event of death before entering upon the pension, the amount of pension is reduced for those who live to receive it. The difference in the amount of pension will be seen by comparing the following table with Table A. (supra):—

Table B.

Showing the amount of Pension which a Contribution of £1 a year from given age will buy, the payments to be returned without interest in the event of death before entering upon the Annuity.

Age for commencing Contribution.	Amount of Pension commencing at Age 60.	Amount of Pension commencing at Age 65.
25	6 12 0	10 12 0
30	5 1 0	8 3 0
35	3 15 0	6 3 0
40	2 14 0	4 10 0
45	1 16 0	3 4 0
50	1 2 0	2 3 0
55	0 10 0	1 6 0
60	—	0 11 0

The above table is for Males only, and interest is calculated at 3 per cent.

2. Surrender value.

With respect to the surrender value, Mr. Sutton reports that any surrender value given to present or future teachers would of course only be in respect of their own contributions. The granting of any surrender value would be in the nature of a commutation of a deferred pension, and accordingly it would be necessary, in the interests of the fund, that satisfactory evidence should be given as to the teacher being in a good state of health.

If the form of table adopted were similar to the (Table A), the Actuary points out that the amount of contribution had bought could be readily computed and exact surrender value could be deduced by estimating such annuity by means of the tables appended to like this surrender value could be given as it would back all past payments with interest, and even more of a method which, he thought, might be adopted male teacher contributing £3 annually from twenty inclusive. At three per cent. the payments made as a pension at sixty-five amounting to £24 14s. The value of thirty, of a pension of £24 14s. at the age of sixty teacher has only paid in £33, and if the £40 6s. were him not only the benefit of the death since he began interest earned. If, now, the £33 he has paid be taken at age thirty, it would purchase a pension at six difference between these two amounts is £24 14s.—£20 3s.=£4 11s., and the present value of this in cash is £7 8s. This is the amount which should be allowed as surrender value in this case. Where the medical evidence on surrender was unsatisfactory, this amount would have to be reduced according to a scale to be drawn up. The Actuary in his evidence states that the method given above of calculating a surrender value would require some modification at the extreme ages, and he accordingly suggests the following table of surrender values, which shows the percentage of contributions which might be allowed on surrender, but advised that in no case should more than 75 or 80 per cent. of the total amount contributed be returned.

*Table of Surrender Values.
(Males—Pension at Sixty-five—Interest at 3 per cent.).*

Number of Payments made,	Percentage of Contributions allowed on Surrender.
	Age at time of beginning to contribute.
	20	25	30	35	40
Five	8.1	8.2	8.6	8.8	9.2
Ten	19.8	20.4	21.6	22.1	23.6
Fifteen	33.7	34.9	36.6	39.0	42.8
Twenty	50.5	52.7	56.2	61.6	69.9
Twenty-five and upwards	71.0	75.4	82.7	—	—

It is stated in the evidence that in the event of a teacher becoming incapacitated before reaching the pension age, there would be no difficulty in giving him a smaller pension, such as his surrender value would buy at the particular age.

Auxiliary Schemes.

Mr. Sutton suggests in his evidence that the contributions might be insured by a fund conducted by the members themselves, and states that this need not be compulsory. It would be found that some of the intelligent and energetic men among the members would soon start it. The Civil Servants (for whose family no provision is made in the event of death) have adopted a voluntary system of insurance, but this does not take the form of directly covering the contributions for pensions. They have made a contract with a life insurance company under which they may assure their lives or take out certain other policies at a reduced rate of contribution. They were also accepted without medical examination for life assurance up to £1,000 during a limited time. They arranged that the deductions from their salaries for the payment of premiums shall be made quarterly by the Paymaster-General, and paid over in a lump sum to the company.

The opinion of the Actuary is that if sickness and resignation have to be provided for it would be more satisfactory to supplement the fund by an additional scheme.

APPENDIX D.

CIRCULAR LETTER TO LOCAL SECRETARIES.

71, RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.,
Nov. 17th, 1891.

DEAR SIR (OR MADAM):

SUPERANNUATION FOR TEACHERS.

I am directed by the Executive to forward, for the information of your Association, the enclosed summary of the evidence given before the Select Committee of the House of Commons with reference to a National Scheme of Superannuation for teachers in elementary schools, and to call special attention to the report and actuarial calculations of Mr. Sutton. The summary has been prepared with the object of furnishing the principal points to those teachers who have not the time or the facilities for making a study of the volume containing the full evidence given before the Committee.

The Executive also send a copy of a memorandum prepared for general circulation showing briefly the need for superannuation of primary teachers from the point of view of the public welfare. A copy of this document has been forwarded to every newspaper in the country. If it has not appeared in your local papers, I have to request that the influence of your members should be utilised for securing that the memorandum or some article on the subject shall appear. I should be glad to supply you with as many copies as may be required for this purpose.

The specific questions upon which the Executive desire the Association to vote are set out on the enclosed paper (Form 34). Permit me to suggest that in the notice of the meeting at which this subject will be considered special attention should be called to the importance of members attending and recording their vote, as in the event of further evidence being given before the Select Committee of the House of Commons it is of the greatest importance that the representatives of the Union should speak in the name of as many teachers as possible. The numbers voting "Yes" or "No" on each question, together with any suggestions agreed to by the Association, should be recorded on the enclosed Form, which should be returned to the Executive not later than January 16th, 1892. A duplicate copy of the Form is sent in order that it may be retained by the Association.

The Executive desire to offer a few observations upon the questions submitted.

FOR FUTURE TEACHERS.

1. Shall the basis be the Table contained in the Actuary's Report [see Table A in summary], with State guarantee (to cover faults in Table or fluctuations in interest, the minimum interest being maintained at 3 per cent.), together with free management by the State?

In the event of the arrangement suggested in this question being adopted, those persons who may hereafter enter the profession would be required to provide their own pension in accordance with the table, but the State would guarantee that the pensions should be paid when due, and would provide the working expenses. The Actuary has pointed out that no statistics are available for ascertaining the rate of mortality among teachers in recent years. The possibility that the mortality may be less among teachers than among the general community, and also the fact that there is no means of knowing whether in the future the Fund will be able to obtain so high a rate of interest as 3 per cent., make the State guarantee a very appreciable consideration. The working expenses, if provided from the contributions, would also necessitate a substantial addition to the rate of contribution. It should also be borne in mind that those desirous of entering the profession would know that one of the conditions would be that they were required to make this provision, and this might have some influence upon the supply of teachers. The existence of a pension scheme involving State aid would also have the effect of limiting the number annually admitted by the Education Department to the teaching profession. At the same time, as education and the public will benefit by the compulsory retirement of teachers, and as many teachers, if they provide their own pension, might reasonably consider that they should be at liberty to continue their work as long as their health permitted, it is a question whether the teachers should not expect the State to do more towards making the provision for their retirement than is suggested in this question. The London County Council have, during the last session, taken power to establish a scheme of pensions for their servants in which the Council provides an amount equal to that contributed by their servants; while, at the same time, the Council guarantees the solvency of the Fund and pays the expenses of management. In this and similar instances the salaries are directly under the control of the contributing body.

In the event of your Association replying to this question in the negative, kindly indicate what further provision should, in their opinion, be made for future entrants to the profession.

FOR PRESENT TEACHERS.

2. Shall the basis be the Table in the Actuary's Report (same as above), together with Government subsidy?

The advantage of adopting such an arrangement is that the table shows exactly the amount of pension provided by the contributions of the teachers themselves, and thus the cost to the Government of providing such a pension as might be decided upon could be calculated without difficulty.

3. Shall the Government subsidy be an annuity of not less than £1 a year for each year of back service?

This is a simple and on the whole appears to be a fairly equitable plan of meeting the difficulty of starting a fund, as it would be impossible for those who are now near the pension age to contribute a sufficient amount to provide their own pension. This arrangement, if adopted, would provide for a teacher of forty years' service, a pension of £40 a year, for a teacher of twenty years' service, £20 a year; and so on. This amount would be provided by the Government entirely and would be an addition to such a pension as a teacher might purchase according to the table by his own contributions. It should be noted that this subsidy for "back service" applies only to the years of service before the fund is started, and that any additional pension would be paid for by existing teachers in accordance with the tables. If retirement were compulsory at sixty-five years of age, 108 males and 85 females would be immediately superannuated, or if the age for compulsory retirement were sixty, the numbers would be 322 males and 229 females. This immediate retirement would afford opportunities for the promotion of younger teachers. Taking the years of service for existing teachers to August, 1890, the Actuary estimates that the cost to the Government of making this provision, calculating interest at 3 per cent., and assuming the pension to commence at the age of sixty-five, would be a present payment once for all of £1,537,976, or if distributed over the next ten years, it would require an annual payment at the commencement of each year of approximately £175,050. Of course, if the amount of the subsidy were 30s. for each year of service instead of £1, these figures would be increased accordingly.

The other methods suggested by the Actuary for subsidising the Fund are referred to in the summary of his evidence and report, and the amount which would be required from the Government is there indicated. It will be observed that these methods do not take into consideration the years of service.

4. Shall the minimum contribution be fixed at (say) £3?

It is found from the table that a minimum contribution of £3 per annum would purchase a pension at the age of sixty-five (interest at 3 per cent.) as follows:

Payments commencing at age	Amount of Pension with Premiums not returnable.		Amount of Pension with Premiums returnable without interest in the event of death. Males.
	Males.	Females.
20	56 12 0	50 15 0	41 10 0
30	33 14 0	30 6 0	24 10 0
40	18 6 0	16 11 0	13 12 0
50	8 4 0	7 11 0	6 10 0

5. Shall the maximum contribution be fixed at (say) £20?

This contribution per annum would purchase a pension at the age of sixty-five (interest at 3 per cent.) as follows:—

	Males.	Females.
20	377 7 0	338 13 0	273 11 0
30	224 18 0	202 3 0	163 10 0
40	122 3 0	110 12 0	90 19 0
50	54 17 0	50 10 0	43 8 0

As the tables are calculated for a contribution of £1 commencing from any age, it would not be difficult to calculate the pension purchased by the contributions of the teacher if he were permitted to contribute according to his means between the limits of £3 and £20 per annum, and to vary his rate from time to time as circumstances permitted.

6. Is repayment essential under a National Scheme?

If no provision for repayment of premiums be made, the contributions of those who die before reaching the pension age would go to increase the amount of pension for those who lived to receive it; but this arrangement would frequently leave the wife and family destitute in the event of the death of a member before reaching the pension age.

7. If repayment be considered essential or desirable, which of the following forms would be preferable:—

- (a.) Repayment at death, such repayment resulting in a considerably diminished pension.
- (b.) Repayment of present value of deferred annuity (payable to contributor while in a sound state of health).
- (c.) Repayment under any conditions by means of an auxiliary scheme founded on additional subscriptions.

No provision is made in the tables submitted to the Committee to meet the case of a teacher who becomes incapacitated before reaching the pension age. A reduced pension might be granted in such cases, the amount being such as the surrender value from the original fund would buy at the earlier age.

(a.) If the contribution be returned without interest in the event of death before entering upon the pension, the amount of pension purchasable by the contributions is reduced. The difference in the amount of pension as the result of adopting this method of repayment will be seen on comparing Tables A and B in the summary of the report, and also on comparing the tables in this circular given under Questions 4 and 5. It will be noted that this does not provide for any repayment to members leaving the service.

(b.) The Actuary in his report states that the present value of the deferred annuity which a teacher's own contributions would purchase could be readily ascertained from the tables, but that nothing like that surrender value could be given as it would be tantamount to giving back all past payments with interest, and even more. He suggests an arrangement by which a surrender value might be given without injury to the Fund to those leaving the profession. The outline of his suggestion is given in the summary of his report, and the table is also given showing the percentage of contributions which might be allowed on surrender. It will be noticed that the surrender value could only be given to those certified to be in good health. The Actuary points out that if teachers at the point of death were allowed to claim their surrender value it would materially injure the Fund.

(c.) As will be seen from the summary, the Actuary suggests in his evidence that this would be the best mode of dealing with the question of repayment. It appears from the evidence that the Civil Servants (for whose families no provision is made by the State in the event of death) have adopted a voluntary system of life insurance, which is referred to more fully in the summary of the evidence. In the event of a scheme being adopted by the Committee which does not provide for the return of premiums it would be quite possible for an arrangement somewhat similar to that of the Civil Servants to be made by the teachers themselves, under which, through the Teachers' Provident Society, or a life insurance office, they should be allowed to insure their lives for a sum not exceeding say £200 at a reduced rate, and without medical examination, within a certain time after the starting of the fund or of being admitted to the profession.

8. Shall retirement with pension be voluntary at 60 and compulsory at 65?

It will be understood from the tables that retirement at sixty years of age would necessarily be with a smaller pension than at sixty-five.

As the Executive are unable to supply sufficient copies of the summary and of this circular letter for each member of the Union, and, as it is important that members should be in possession of the whole of the facts before recording their votes, I have to suggest that in issuing the notice of the meeting at which this question will be considered you should inform the members that the summary and circular are printed in the Schoolmaster of November 21st, 1891.

I am, Dear Sir (or Madam),

Yours faithfully,

CHARLES JAMES, Acting Secretary.

APPENDIX E.

REPORT OF ACTUARY.

25, Pall Mall, London, S.W.,

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE OF THE N. U. T.

GENTLEMEN—With reference to the questions submitted to me in the Acting Secretary's letter of the 25th ult., I have the pleasure to submit the following report:—

QUESTION I.—Future Teachers.

Required, the present value of an annuity of £1 for each year of service per 1,000 teachers by the Carlisle 3 per cent. table—

- (a) Commencing at age 60.
- (b) Commencing at age 65.

N.B.—Under (a) there would be 40 years of service to count for every annuitant.
Under (b) there would be 45 years of service to count for every annuitant.
Both calculations are to relate to the present value for age at entry 20.

ANSWER.

It is assumed in the following quotations the annuities are payable in quarterly instalments, the first instalment being paid three months from the date of attaining the retiring age and no proportion of the pension to be paid to the representatives of a deceased annuitant for the interval between the last quarterly payment and the date of death. Some assumption of this kind is necessary, as it is unlikely that a full year's pension would be paid immediately on reaching the given age or that the annuitant would have to wait twelve months after the retiring age before receiving any portion of the pension. If necessary, the value on the assumption of payment by monthly instalments or a proportion to the date of death could be calculated. These points may be considered by some persons mere details, but, in dealing with large figures, it is important that they should be considered. Quarterly payments are assumed in Mr. Sutton's report, but no proportionate payment to the date of death.

The present values at age 20 of a pension of the amount stated at the retiring ages given (and payable by quarterly instalments) are, by the Carlisle 3 per cent. table, as follows:—

Pension of £40 a year, payable after age 60,	Pension of £45 a year, payable after age 65,
£79,720.	£54,810.
Or for a thousand persons :
£79,720.	£54,810.

The Carlisle table was derived from statistics comprising both males and females, about 45 per cent. males and about 55 per cent. females, and in the above calculations the Carlisle table is used throughout in accordance with the instructions. To show the effect on the present values of similar annuities, when (1) the peculiarities of female mortality are considered, and (2) the fact that retirement from active work on a pension may have a favourable effect on the rate of mortality after the age of retirement, I submit the following results in comparison with the above:—

The present value at age 20 of a pension of the given amount, payable in quarterly instalments after the retiring age, assuming 3 per cent. interest.

	£40 pension after 60.	£45 pension after 65.
1. Males and Females. —Carlisle Table throughout...	£79,720	£54,810
2. Males. —Mr. Sutton's assumption as to mortality (in the Report) ...	£72,840	49,950
3. Females. —Mr. Sutton's assumption as to mortality (in the Report) ...	79,580	55,755
4. Males. —English Life Table (males) before retiring age and Government Annuitant rate (1884) after 4 or more years have elapsed from the date of purchase of the annuity thereafter (as in my Report to the National Union of Teachers of 30th June, 1891) ...	72,920	48,105
5. Females. —Do. Do. ...	83,200	56,925

QUESTION II.—PRESENT TEACHERS.

Required the present value of a subsidy of £1 per annum for every year of service, pension at age 65, Rate 3 per cent.

Mr. Sutton gives the amount for all over 65, and also the present value of such a subsidy for all years of service already rendered. It is now required to estimate, from particulars of teachers given in report of Committee, the cost of carrying the scheme on to all years of service yet to be rendered.

ANSWER.

I presume the subsidy referred to is a subsidy in the form of an extra pension after the retiring age.

I find the present value of the subsidy in respect of all years of service yet to be rendered is upon the assumptions as to mortality made by Mr. Sutton in his report, and at 3 per cent. interest:—

we get:— £1,858,298	£2,755,545
and the total present values for all years of service, i.e., a grand total of £4,613,843.—I am,

II.—ELECTION OF THE EXECUTIVE.

ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

Reference from Conference.—At the Cardiff Conference held last Easter, the following resolution was adopted:—

“That the country be divided into twenty-four Electoral Districts or any other number as may be deemed expedient; that there shall be at least ten members of the Executive elected by the metropolitan districts, and that one member shall be elected by each of these districts to form the Executive.”

The Executive at their first meeting on April 11th referred this resolution to the Organisation Committee for consideration and report.

Previous action of the Union on the subject.—The Committee, before dealing with the special reference from Conference, had a statement prepared showing what had been done by the Union with respect to this subject in previous years.

The following summary of previous action is now submitted for the information of members of Conference:—

1881. The Conference referred a motion respecting the method of electing the Executive together with the question of electoral district representation to a Special Committee of the Executive.
1882. The Special Committee submitted to Conference a report with a scheme based on the principle of electoral district representation. This was received by Conference and remitted to the Associations for consideration, the Executive being instructed to report to the next Conference.
1883. The Executive presented a special report showing that the scheme submitted to Conference in 1882 was rejected by 75 Associations numbering 4,669 members and accepted by 25 Associations with 1,074 members. The report also dealt with other questions which had been submitted to Associations respecting the constitution and election of the Executive. The report was received by Conference but not discussed.

1884. The report was again sent up and received by Conference but not considered.

1885. Executive once more submitted the report, which was not reached by Conference.

1886. Conference resolved :—

“That in order to bring the Executive more ‘in touch’ with the general body of teachers, England and Wales shall be divided into electoral districts, and each district shall elect either a metropolitan or provincial teacher to represent it on the Executive.”

A scheme was prepared containing 27 districts and was submitted to the local Associations for their consideration, with the result that—

38	Associations,	representing	2,076	members,	were in favour of the scheme,
42	”	”	2,122	”	”

opposed to ” and opposed the particular scheme, but were in favour of the principle of electoral districts.

1887. The Executive submitted the scheme to Conference but reported against it and recommended that the resolution agreed to at Bradford should be rescinded. This recommendation was adopted by Conference. An alternative scheme submitted by the Executive for improving the mode of electing the Executive was not reached by Conference.

1888. At the Cheltenham Conference in 1888, the rules were altered so as to provide for the election of the Executive by the individual members of the Union, the voting papers being issued and returned through the local Associations. This is the method of election at present in force, the previous plan having been by the votes of the representatives at Conference.

Action taken on the Reference of April 11th, 1891.—At the meetings of the Organisation Committee, in May and June, the subject was not reached, owing to the heavy pressure of other special organisation work, but on July 4th, the Committee requested the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Mr. Bowden, to prepare and submit to the Committee a Scheme of Electoral Districts based on the scheme prepared in 1887, but modified to meet the requirements of the resolution of the last Conference. The Sub-Committee entered upon the work immediately by means of correspondence, and after two meetings held on September 5th and October 3rd, their report was presented to the Organisation Committee on the latter date. The Committee subsequently adopted this scheme with a schedule of districts which had been prepared by Mr. Bowden, to whom the thanks of the Committee were given. This schedule is submitted as Appendix A. to this report.

The Committee reported to the Executive on December 5th a scheme which, in their opinion, would best carry out the resolution of Conference, stating that the instruction of Conference with respect to ten metropolitan districts made it impracticable for them to adopt the twenty-seven districts suggested in 1887 as the basis of the scheme, and that they had accordingly utilised the present Supervisors' districts, with such alterations as were rendered necessary by the following considerations :—

- (a) Voting power should be in proportion to numbers as far as possible, modified by character of constituency and area of district.
- (b) Travelling expenses should not be increased any more than possible.
- (c) Any increase of number of members should not increase travelling expenses if possible.
- (d) Executive should have power to alter, re-arrange, or create districts every three years to equalise numbers.
- (e) The President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer should be elected members of the Executive.

At the same time the Committee reported their opinion that such scheme was altogether unworkable, and that no scheme of electoral districts would conduce to the welfare of the Union ; and they recommended the Executive to report to that effect to the Leeds Conference and to place on the agenda a motion rescinding the resolution passed at the Cardiff Conference.

The Executive referred the report back to the Committee with instructions to bring up an amended scheme in January, and they requested the Committee to consider and report on the difficulties as well as the advantages of a scheme of electoral districts, and to draw up a scheme if considered practicable.

A special meeting of the Organisation Committee was held on December 19 for this purpose, when schedules of districts prepared by Mr. John, the Chairman of the Committee, and by Mr. Staines were submitted. The Committee expressed their thanks to Messrs. John and Staines, and after considering the details with respect to the method of election, adopted the principle contained in the schedule of districts suggested by the Chairman. This schedule is submitted as Appendix II. to this report.

The time at the disposal of the Committee on December 19th was insufficient for the full consideration of the advantages and difficulties of a scheme of electoral districts, but they further dealt with this portion of the reference at their meeting on January 9th, 1892, when they agreed to report the following advantages :—

- 1. Increased Union activity in each locality.
- 2. The thorough supervision by member of Executive.
- 3. More Supervisors' visits could be paid to apathetic districts without additional expense.

4. Members would have a better knowledge of the persons for whom they were voting.
5. Decentralisation in Union matters.
6. Healthy rivalry between the various Associations in each district.

The Committee were of opinion that the following difficulties or disadvantages would be found in connection with any scheme of electoral districts:—

1. The Executive would not be more "in touch" with the country than at present, unless the members resided in the districts which they represented.
2. The expenses of the Union would be considerably increased.
3. The Members of the Executive would no longer be able to speak in the name of the teachers of the country.

The report was again referred back by the Executive to the Organisation Committee, and upon further consideration of the subject at another special meeting, the Committee reported on March 4th that they had adopted the following resolution:—"That the Committee having further considered the reference from Conference re Electoral Districts, and having endeavoured to formulate the best possible scheme under the reference, is of opinion that such a scheme is altogether unworkable; and they recommend the Executive to report to that effect to the Leeds Conference, and to place on the agenda a motion rescinding the resolution passed at the Cardiff Conference." The Executive adopted the recommendation, and now report to that effect, and submit to Conference a rescinding motion in accordance with that decision.

The above list of advantages and disadvantages was not considered by the Executive. On April 2nd the Executive therefore appointed a special Committee to revise the draft report for presentation to Conference. This Committee reports to Conference as follows:—

ADVANTAGE.

Members would have a better knowledge of the persons for whom they were voting, providing that the candidates lived in the district which they sought to represent.

DISADVANTAGES.

1. The Executive would not be more in touch with the country than at present, unless the members resided in the district which they represented.
2. The travelling expenses of members of the Executive would be considerably increased, so much so that there would be a necessity for an increased subscription.
3. The members of the Executive would no longer be able to speak in the name of the teachers of the country.

4. Unhealthy rivalry and jealousy between the various associations in each district.

5. The Union would be under the control of the officials and a few London teachers.

6. The large associations would monopolise the representation.

7. The small associations would be disfranchised, and thereby lose all interest in Union work.

8. The rural and other classes of teachers would no longer be able to combine for the purposes of securing representation.

9. The influence of each voter would be restricted to the election of one representative.

10. The votes of members would be largely influenced by local prejudices, and broad views of educational policy would be sacrificed.

The following is the outline of a scheme for the election of the Executive by electoral districts, submitted to the Executive by the Organisation Committee.

SCHEME FOR THE ELECTION OF THE EXECUTIVE BY ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

1. The Executive shall consist of twenty-nine members (including the President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer) chosen by the Electoral Districts as set out in schedule.

2. The President, Vice-President, Ex-President, and Treasurer shall be selected from among the elected members of the Executive. In the districts represented by the President and Vice-President no election will take place until the representative ceases to be an officer of the Union.

3. All nominations for the Executive shall be made not later than December 31st.

4. The Associations in each district shall, not later than the end of February, elect in a manner hereafter set forth a representative to serve as a member of the Executive.

5. No person may represent more than one district. In the event of any person being returned for more than one district the said person shall declare in writing to the Secretary within three days of the announcement of the poll for which district he or she elects to sit. Any vacancy created by a double return shall be filled up at a second election to be held within four (4) weeks of the announcement of the vacancy.

6. Voting papers for each district shall be prepared by the Secretary, and sufficient copies for all members shall be issued to each local Association, if required, not later than January 15th. The poll shall be taken at a general meeting of the Association to be held at a date to be fixed by the Executive at their first meeting in January. The election shall take place in all Associations on the same day. At least seven days' notice, stating the business of the meeting, shall be given by the local Secretary to every person who was a member of the Association for the previous year. With the notice of such meeting shall be sent a copy of the voting paper.

7. The President (or in his absence the Vice-President or duly elected Chairman) of the Association shall be the presiding officer, and the poll shall remain open for one hour after the time fixed for the commencement of the meeting. Members may hand their papers to the presiding officer at the meeting, or may forward them to the Secretary of the Association previous to the election. At the close of the poll the presiding officer (or scrutineers appointed by the meeting) shall ascertain the number of votes for each candidate, and place such number opposite each candidate's name on the official return.

8. The Official Return from each Association shall be signed by the presiding officer and by the Secretary of the local Association and shall be forwarded, together with the voting papers, to the Secretary of the Union within forty-eight hours.

9. The votes sent up by the Associations shall be totalled by scrutineers appointed by the Executive at their first meeting in January, and the result of the elections shall be published in the organ of the Union immediately it is known.

(The election of officers to be conducted in the same manner as at present, but the voting papers to be issued to individual members by March 15th, and returned to the general Secretary not later than March 20th. The votes to be counted by scrutineers appointed by the Executive as at present, and the result published in the educational papers immediately it is known. The nominations for officers must be made not later than .)

The rules of the Union to be amended in order to give effect to the above changes.

PAPER READ AT CONFERENCE.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

By Mr. T. J. MACNAMARA, Member of Executive, and Editor of the Schoolmaster.

I confess I approach this task with something of the hopelessness of despair—the task of once again endeavouring to rub into the public intellect an accurate appreciation of the appalling national loss involved in the persistent irregularity of a comparatively small section of English primary school pupils.

One-and-twenty years ago it was laid down by the law of this country that unless a child between the ages of five and thirteen years, and not having reached the standard of education specified in the bye-laws, were, (1) under efficient instruction in other than an elementary school, (2) or prevented from attending by sickness or other unavoidable cause, or (3) lived more than three miles away from an elementary school, his absence on every occasion that the schools were opened became a breach of the law, punishable for every such abstention by a fine not exceeding, with costs, five shillings.

Six years later the principles enunciated by Mr. Forster were rendered universally applicable by a further Act, which made it, by statutory enactment, “the duty of the parent of every child to cause such child to receive efficient elementary instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic,” and failure in such duty involved liability to such orders and penalties as were provided by that Act.

Taken together the Acts of 1870 and 1876 undertook, firstly, that the State should provide schools for the people; and, secondly, that the people should be compelled to send their children regularly to those schools.

MR. FORSTER'S FIRST AIM—A SCHOOL PLACE FOR EVERY CHILD.

In his own words, Mr. Forster's first problem was: “How can we cover the country with good schools?” The history of the two decades which have passed since his Act was inscribed on the Statute Book gives a sufficient and satisfactory solution of the difficulty.

In 1870 the working-class child-population was estimated at 4,400,000, and to meet the needs of these children there should have been, roughly, 3,700,000 school seats provided. As a matter of fact only 1,878,584 school places were then in existence. In round numbers, then, Mr. Forster was faced by a deficiency in school accommodation of one and a half million seats. To-day the working-class child-population is estimated at 5,881,530. To meet the needs of this juvenile army there should be at least 4,901,275 school seats. Happily, the 1,878,584 seats which Mr. Forster found in existence have grown under his Act to 5,539,285, so that, except in the growing urban centres, his first problem is more than solved, although of course, much of the fabric is so antiquated and unsuitable as to need immediate replacement.

MR. FORSTER'S SECOND AIM—EVERY CHILD IN ITS SCHOOL PLACE.

Then Mr. Forster turned naturally to the filling of the schools and the question of Compulsory Attendance. "This," said he, "is a difficult question, but we must face it. To leave it alone is to leave the children untaught, and to force the rate and taxpayers to pay for useless schools." How far this second aim of his is as yet unaccomplished, every person who has had the most passing acquaintance with the work of elementary education is only too painfully aware.

Whatever may have been the reason, it very soon became apparent that no serious endeavour would be made to put effectively into operation the compulsory powers assumed under the Acts of 1870-76. The consequence has been that, from that time to this, everybody practically concerned in the work of elementary education has continued to beg and pray in the interests of the children, and through them of the State, for the initiation of a more thorough administration of the law.

Failing legislative support they have exercised untold ingenuity in devising all sorts of expedients for securing a better attendance, and the cruel irony of the whole business is that the children influenced by these efforts have been, exactly those, and those only, who would have attended regularly without them. Teachers, for instance, have most unjustly been driven to take up not only their own exacting and onerous duties but those of the attendance officer to boot, though probably no one will be so bold as to contend that the exercise of the teacher's functions can legitimately be held to commence before the child is placed at the threshold of the school door, or to assert that the teacher has not quite enough to do to educate his pupils without having to worry his wits as to how they are to be got into the school.

It is scarcely possible to pick up a practical educational journal which does not teem with the latest plans of brains incessantly ransacked for methods whereby an improved attendance may be secured. Here it is a free magic lantern show once a month, there a weekly treat of another sort in order that by hook or crook parents may be induced—as a sort of unspeakable favour to somebody or other—to do that which the law warns them not to leave undone under penalty of a fine. Everywhere it is the same story. So low is the estimate put by an appreciable minority of English parents upon the value of the advantages offered by the common schools, and so indifferent are they as to whether their youngsters go out into the world educationally equipped or condemned to the life-long bondage of ignorance, that they will suffer little or no inconvenience, and make few or no sacrifices in order that the children may be kept in regular and continuous attendance at the schools.

To-day there might be 5,881,530 names on the rolls of the primary schools. There are only 4,804,149 ; so that after one-and-twenty years of a compulsory system of education, upon which, roughly, we are now spending eight millions a year, and engaged in the administration of which there are no fewer than 3,064 distinct local authorities, there are 1,077,381 of the working-class children quite outside the pale of State Education.

Worse even than this is the fact that of the 4,804,149 children who have been nominally drawn into the net, every time the school doors are opened there are on an average 1,086,232 always away. So far, therefore, from having succeeded in filling each school-place with the child for whom it was designed, the existing state of the facts twenty-one years after Mr. Forster's project was launched may thus be put in brief:—Of every three of the children whose names should be on the rolls of the elementary schools, the registers show the names of two only ; and of every four of the children actually enrolled, one is always away.

That it should be possible to make such a statement as this in the year 1892 cannot be viewed in the light of anything short of a national disgrace. We congratulate ourselves year by year upon the higher efficiency and the wider universality of our State-aided system of primary schools ; we take especial unction to our souls that there are more schools, more schoolmasters, more extensive curricula of studies, and altogether a more perfect and far-reaching scheme for the State regeneration of the masses ; but what sufficeth all this if the great bulk of the very class by whom this beneficent agency is most needed is permitted to attend the schools with such deplorable irregularity as not to be under continuous control and instruction for a couple of days together ?

UNREMOVABLE OBSTACLES TO A HIGH LEVEL OF REGULARITY.

Now I readily admit that there will always be real and unremovable obstacles to a very high level of regularity. There is the fell swoop of the measles and the scarlatina ; the empty cupboard and the cheerless fire-grate ; the ubiquitous "baby to mind" ; and in the bye-ways of Rural England the miles of puddly lane ways—often impassable when "the waters are out," when blocked with snow, or held in the iron grip of frost. No number of Acts of Parliament will touch these of the factors that make for irregularity. But after allowing in the fullest and most generous spirit for that wide margin of irregularity which must always be reckoned with, the facts adduced cannot be held to indicate other than the existence of a deplorably large percentage of absenteeism altogether inexcusable in the interests of the children, in the interests of the State, which now makes such considerable subventions in aid of primary education, and in the interests of the rate and taxpayers who are in each locality doubly burdened to recoup school authorities for the loss in Government grants involved in the irregularity under reference.

And what makes the matter more deplorable still is the fact that, so far as a certain class of parents is concerned, "school attendance," as an Inspector of Schools puts it in the current Education Blue Book, "is surely proceeding on the downward road from bad to worse."

But a closer investigation of the facts discloses this important feature, that the majority of the pupils do attend, after all, with praiseworthy regularity—gross and inexcusable absenteeism being confined to a minority of the pupils. It is not only true then that, roughly, a fourth of the children whose names are on the rolls, are always away, but it comes very nearly being true that it is the same fourth which is a'ways away.

SHALL ANYTHING BE DONE TO REMEDY THE EVIL?

And respecting these neglected children, many of whom are practically the foster-children of the State, the issue is a simple one. Are they to grow up, condemned in too many cases by the negligence and indifference of their natural parents, to a life of gloom and enthrallment? Are they to grow up, permeating at every turn, with the leaven of vice and abandonment the more fortunate children of industrious and thrifty parents? Or shall such steps be taken as will effectively secure to them the privileges designed for them by the Houses of Parliament a generation ago?

Surely, even at this advanced hour, there must be many who will respond to our appeal, and will join us in the endeavour to sweep away such obstacles to regular attendance as are possible of removal, and that as speedily as practicable.

I purpose, therefore, to consider briefly the causes responsible for the failure of Mr. Forster's Act in this particular, and to submit, further, such suggestive remedies as seem to make for that reasonable regularity of attendance, without which the teacher must inevitably labour in vain, much of the educational machinery stand idle, and a considerable moiety of the national expenditure on national education be absolutely thrown away.

The Government is at this moment engaged upon the task of framing for Ireland an educational measure which shall be to some extent an Act of 1870 and an Act of 1891 rolled into one. The moment for such a consideration of the subject as I now propose is the more opportune since it may serve not only to put the English machinery in gear, but also to anticipate the CERTAIN FAILURE BY WHICH THE INTRODUCTION OF COMPULSORY EDUCATION INTO IRELAND IS BOUND TO BE FOLLOWED IF THE MACHINERY IS PLAYED WITH AS IT HAS BEEN DURING THE PAST TWENTY-ONE YEARS IN THIS COUNTRY.

THE MAGISTRACY.

In the first place then, I have no hesitation in placing the lion's share in the failure of the Act of 1870 to fill the schools, at the doors of the magistracy. No one who has had any practical acquaintance with the working of the compulsory powers assumed under that Act will deny that their administration has been rendered nugatory, to a very considerable extent, by the reluctance of the magistracy to deal effectively with delinquent parents. Probably with some magistrates the incongruity between the fee payment and compulsion has been a stumbling-block. If so, the passing of the Act of 1891 clears the way for a proper administration of the law so far as they are concerned. The contention "If Compulsory then Free" having been practically met, I appeal to them to see that the converse shall also be insisted upon—If Free then Compulsory.

But the reluctance of the magistracy to properly administer this particular law arises more frequently from an easily-provoked and often misplaced sympathy with the parents brought before them. Not a few magistrates preface their investigation of School-Board cases by declaring themselves either absolutely hostile to, or quite out of sympathy with, the prosecutions, and inflict the most trivial fines in cases of the grossest irregularity. Indeed, I have the particulars of a case in my possession where a bench fined a parent, and later in the day, after the fine had been paid, sent him back the amount by the next post!

"It seems to me," writes another Inspector in the current Blue Book, "that if a parent elects to systematically defy the law he can quite easily do so. If his child is in regular work he laughs at a fine." Says a third Inspector, "It is unfortunately true that Attendance Committees and Boards are acquiring the knowledge that prosecution for non-attendance is an expensive and unremunerative business, while parents are discovering that defiance of the bye-laws, when the certain earnings of the truant are put in the balance against the possible fine, is, on the whole, a cheap and even lucrative amusement;" and these opinions are but the ground bass of a chorus of similarly couched strictures, in which not only the whole body of the Inspectorate, but school managers and teachers take vigorous parts. A more thorough and summary jurisdiction is a crying necessity. In many districts three, six, and even more months of continuous absence elapse before even an Attendance Order is made out. Following this, another period of similarly protracted absence ensues before it is possible to punish the persistently defaulting parent to the extent of a sixpenny fine, and at this stage the case invariably breaks down in many of the magisterial courts if human ingenuity can devise or discover any excuse, no matter how trumpery or irrelevant. Even if the attendance officer has steered his case safely thus far and secured a six-penny conviction, it is quite a toss-up as to whether the fine will ever be enforced. Within the past few weeks, for instance, the Under-Secretary of the Home Office had to draw attention to the fact that 147 of the fines ordered to be paid at the Southwark Police Court during the half year ending 30th June, 1891, are still outstanding—and, what is more, are likely to remain outstanding. Then still another spell of absence must ensue before the fine reaches the dimensions of a shilling, which is as often as not paid with alacrity out of the forty to forty-five which the child has earned meanwhile. A doctor's certificate, produced at any stage of the proceedings, condones any amount of previous irregularity, and apparently holds good for the greater part of the remainder of the child's school life. By the time that the third or fourth prosecution is entered upon it not unfrequently happens that the child—not having been got into the schools at all up to eight, nine, or even ten years of age—is found to have reached within twelve months of the exemption age. Knowing the temper of the Bench the attendance officer is often compelled to give the case up as a bad job, and the cultivated product of Mr. Forster's Act scurries off to work barely able to say his letters.

My late school is situated in an operative district of Extra-Municipal East Bristol. All the boys live quite near the school; yet I can put my hands on dozens of cases of children who have lived within a biscuit throw of the school all their lives, have not been got into the schools until seven, eight, nine, and even ten years of age, have been permitted to shamble through the farce of attending for a year or two, and then to clear off exactly as I have described, barely able to say their letters. And what are they doing now? Most of them are rendering the street corners hideous by their foul expletives and expectorations. Some of them have already received at the hands of the magistracy that sharp and summary jurisdiction which should have been the portion of their parents years ago.

In advocating more stringent compulsion for a certain class of parents, I shall, probably, be reproved for my excess of zeal, and reminded that a healthy public opinion in favour of regularity must, necessarily, be the growth of years. Conventionalism and Opportunism will shrug their shoulders and placidly murmur "trop de zèle!" "Wait," it will be said, "until the next generation is sending its children to school, and then you will see with what commendable regularity they will attend." But I have already pointed out that the majority of English parents could not possibly send their children more regularly than they are doing at present. They could not possibly make greater personal sacrifices than they are doing to-day. The very pinch of the question rests with the attitude of that minority of indifferent, negligent parents who have been the despair of the school authorities in the past. What of them? Are they improving as time goes on? Has the fee-abolition materially altered their attitude? My answer is emphatic and uncompromising. IT HAS NOT! And, what is more, their negligence is being fostered by the obliquity of a large section of the magistracy on the one hand, and the inefficiency of many of the local authorities on the other.

These parents have long ago found out that the machinery of compulsion is cumbrously slow in movement, erratic in incidence, and ludicrously inadequate in effect. They therefore break the law and chance the result. They hold that one law designed to teach them their duty towards their children in the liveliest contempt, and, as things are going, there will be no advance towards a healthier attitude on their part—rather the contrary. Legislation, and legislation alone, can develop the proper conscience, and when, and not until, that is developed will the need for effectively-administered compulsion diminish.

Meanwhile, I think the venue of the proceedings against the defaulting parent should be changed. What is needed is a special court, other than the Police Court, in which school attendance cases may be adjudicated upon. The association of the school with the contaminating atmosphere of the police court has always been an unhappy one.

Moreover, I would advocate the appointment of special Magistrates for school cases, both for London and the provinces.

THE LOCAL ATTENDANCE AUTHORITIES.

Scarcely less responsible for the breakdown of compulsion are many of the Rural School Boards and School Attendance Committees. These bodies are, of course, charged with the duty of compelling the regular attendance at the schools of the children living within the areas of their administration. Usually they are composed of farmers and others, infinitely more interested in obtaining the child's labour in the fields at a low figure than in seeing that he attends school.

"We admit," says the Minority Report of the recent Education Commission, "that the small Rural Boards are very reluctant to summon their neighbours for not sending their children to school, and that not unfrequently members of the Board may be offenders against the law by employing children who should be at school."

One example must suffice of the many similar criticisms which year by year grace the pages of the Education Blue Books. In that for 1889-90 Mr. Coward, the then Chief Inspector for the north-west counties, writes:—

"The apathy and often wilful neglect of the small School Boards in performing this part of their duty [properly administering their own bye-laws] are responsible for much of the irregularity in country districts. I see little remedy for this. Weakness, inefficiency, and worse, are not uncommon in small bodies, acting remotely and out of the glare of public opinion. My hope is that sooner or later we may have larger bodies acting over wider areas, with larger views of their office and greater independence of mind, to direct the important interests of public education."

As a single concrete example of the use made by the small School Board of its powers, I hold in my hand a certificate granting leave of absence from school, torn from a cheque-book, supplied on its own authority to the members of a small Board in this very county. It reads as follows:—

I, the undersigned, by the authority of the ——— School Board, do hereby order that the child of shall be allowed leave of absence from school, from the to the for the purpose of (the copy I hold has the word "WORK" filled in here). Dated this day of 18 . . .

*Signed
Member of the Board.*

The spectacle of the members of this enlightened Parish Council of Education trotting round the village scattering broadcast these leaves of absence is altogether too charming.

Before leaving the Rural School Boards I may say that it is a well-ascertained fact that no power on earth can induce some of these bodies to proceed against a parent—if the triennial election is anywhere near at hand.

As for the Rural School Attendance Committees, many of these exist in name only. The guardians meet for the discharge of parochial business, and if a couple of volunteers can be got to go into an adjoining room and look through the officer's returns, well and good. If not, the work is neglected. It frequently happens, therefore, that school attendance work is not touched more than two or three times a year.

Holding the views they do on this question of school attendance it is not surprising to learn that some of the rural authorities do not trouble themselves to appoint an attendance officer to look up the irregulars in their district. Even when they do treat themselves to this luxury they pay him so abominably and expect him to cover so much ground that the meagre wage offered would—if it were physically possible for him to discharge a half of the obligations laid upon him—be several times swallowed up in the provision of shoe-leather alone. In one case which has come under my notice I find the attendance officer vainly essaying to look up the irregulars of forty-five parishes; in another of sixty-two parishes, covering a stretch of country twenty miles by seven; in a third, of ninety parishes; and in a fourth, of twenty-one parishes, with an aggregate area of ninety square miles, and in this case the good man only devotes three days a week to his task.

As in many cases the local authority pays its attendance officers not more than from 30s. to 40s. a year, he is compelled to treat the work of following up irregular attenders as far and away the least important of his multifarious duties. To keep body and soul together he is bound to couple his educational appointment with the work of relieving officer, sanitary inspector, collector of bad debts, rates, taxes, &c., &c., admittedly visiting contumacious absentees only when his other duties take him their way.

And side by side with the paltry wage often paid to the rural attendance officer put this astounding fact, that under some attendance authorities, even again in this very county, the officer has to advance out of his own pocket the cost of the summons applied for. If, as I am reliably assured, he is not recouped in some cases for over twelve months, it is not difficult to see that he is likely to think half-a-dozen times before he goes the length of prosecuting a parent. In connection with this phase of the question I plead for the early creation of a more efficient system of local administration and for the appointment of attendance officers sufficiently well-remunerated to be in a position to devote their whole time to the work.

THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT AND SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

But, admitting that the creation of a more efficient system of local control is a very big question and one not to be settled by the stroke of a pen, very much might be done, even with the existing confessedly inefficient Boards of local authority, if the Education Department could only be induced to take up its proper attitude towards this question of school attendance. The duty of securing a regular attendance is distinctly held by the Department to be a local obligation, and the increasingly large grants payable upon the average attendance are pointed to as powerful agencies for stimulating local activity. But something more than a mere pious exhortation is necessary if the average rural attendance authority is to be awakened to a proper sense of its duty; and I cannot but find that the Department's conspiracy of silence in respect of the shortcomings of such authorities has been largely responsible for the pitiable ignorance with which hundreds of thousands of rural children have gone out into the world during the past twenty-one years. The Department is invested with Executive powers under the Acts of 1870 and 1876; it can declare local authorities failing to administer their own bye-laws effectively, in default. As a matter of fact, according to the return furnished to the last Education Commission by the late Mr. Camin, it is possible to count on the fingers of one hand the cases in which such powers have been exercised for failure to perform the particular duty under reference. I am strongly of opinion that, for the Central Executive thus to wash its hands of this question of school attendance—and that is practically what has happened—is a distinct and serious repudiation of obligations devolving upon it as the authority charged with the proper administration of the Education Acts, and I desire to urge upon the Department the immediate necessity for the appointment of Inspectors of school attendance whose duty it shall be to supervise the local administrations in respect of the daily attendance of the children, as closely as are those affecting their daily instruction.

INDIRECT COMPULSION.

There still remains another potent means of improving school attendance, and that is by directly enlisting the co-operation of the parents themselves. Many of them are burningly anxious that their youngsters shall be off to work at the earliest possible date. In the past they have known very well that whether the child attended regularly or not it would be the peculiar privilege of his teacher to have to move heaven and earth to get him through his annual standard examination. They have discovered the fact that a child might attend irregularly for the early part of each year and yet, thanks to the extraordinary effort his teacher has been driven to make, he would, if he tumbled in regularly year by year for the last few months, reach the exemption standard quite as soon as the consistently regular pupil.

The liberty of classification happily extended to the manager and teacher by the present admirable Vice-President should do something to rectify this obvious injustice, because under it regularity of attendance may legitimately be made a sine qua non for progress. But more than this can easily be achieved. Suppose we say to the parent who is deeply interested in anticipating the earliest date at which he may expect pecuniary assistance for his child's labour, "You shall have an opportunity of propitiating that end and of earning exemption from school for your child by seeing that he makes a record of reasonably regular attendance extending over the several years of his school life." Suppose we say "fourteen years of age shall be the ordinary limit of compulsion, but if at thirteen years of age your child has a record of four-fifths of the possible attendance year by year since his fifth birthday—and surely this represents no extravagantly high level of regularity—he shall be entitled to leave school," then it seems to me that we shall enlist on our side the best efforts of some, at any rate, of that class of parents concerning whom we are in despair at this moment.

But in order to make such a system worth the paper on which it would stand, it would be absolutely necessary to deal much more summarily and effectively with illegal employers of juvenile labour than is at present the case. I am, from an investigation of the facts relating to attendance in France, the more convinced that this method of obtaining the practical co-operation of the parents would result in an improved condition of attendance. There, this system of interesting the parents is in existence—though in a much more elaborate and complicated form than would be possible with us—and, partly as a result of the same, I observe that Dr. Fitch was able recently to report as follows:—

"The statistics of attendance and of regularity in the French schools are remarkable, and yield very satisfactory results. Of the whole number of enrolled scholars, the ratio of those found actually present on two days, one in December, and one in June, on which an enumeration was made, was as follows:—

"In December there were 94 per cent. of scholars present in the higher grade schools, 90 per cent. in the primary schools, and 80 per cent. in the infant schools. In June the proportions were 93·8 per cent. in the higher schools, 89 per cent. in the primary, and 82 in the infant schools."

The corresponding figures for English schools would, as you are aware, be found to be between 10 and 15 per cent. below this level.

But our own experience provides even a more conclusive argument in favour of this indirect form of compulsion. You will remember that between the years 1876-1882 every child presented for examination was bound to have made a minimum number of attendances. During those six years the increase in average attendance was 1,030,578. Between 1884 and 1890, the following six years, during which time the minimum-attendance rule has been abrogated, the increase in average attendance has only been 444,793, although the whole population has increased, roughly, by about 10 per cent. in the meantime.

I am not now advocating the re-institution of an attendance qualification for examination purposes, of course. My present contention is that regularity of attendance should be a main condition in the qualification for exemption from school, and I commend the suggestion also to those interested in the ultimate success of the Irish Education Bill.

FREE EDUCATION.

I have already referred incidentally to the question of Free Education, but probably you will look for a more specific reference from me to the Act of 1891 before I close this paper. I cannot pretend that the seven months which have elapsed since the passing of that Act represent a period of, time of sufficient length to enable me to draw any very reliable deductions from its experience.

I think, however, that the very large accessions to the numbers on the rolls of the infant schools and classes unmistakably prove that in the poorer localities the abolition of the fee has proved to be a genuine relief to the parents. My own observation assures me also that very many most deserving people have been enabled to do their duty to their children—and have seized the opportunity gladly—with much less pinching than heretofore. But, on the other hand, I cannot find that the freedom from fee-payment, wherever it has been enjoyed, has in the slightest degree altered the attitude of that class of parents of whom I have spoken as having been the despair of the school authorities in the past. Neither do I think that the mere remission of the weekly pence will cause the old struggle between them and those who are anxious to do a good turn for their children to abate one jot. And I have no hesitation in distinctly affirming that something supplementary to the Act of 1891, in the direction I have indicated, is urgently necessary if a considerable part of the additional public expenditure which that Act entails is not to be absolutely wasted.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

A Paper on this subject was read by Mr. T. J. MACNAMARA.

(The Paper is printed on p. cxxii.)

22. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to Mr. T. J. Macnamara for his Paper."

23. "That this Conference begs leave to submit the following suggestions to the Vice-President of the Council and to the Home Secretary, in the hope that by their speedy adoption the deplorable irregularity of attendance, which, notwithstanding twenty-one years of so-called compulsion, still continues materially to reduce the efficiency of our system of primary education, and to render nugatory very much of the work of the teacher may be effectively dealt with :—

- (1) "That the attention of the magistracy generally should be drawn to the altered complexion of compulsion since the very general abolition of school fees, with the view of initiating a more summary and effective administration of the law.
- (2) "That age and attendance should be the only qualifications for labour, and that illegal employers of juvenile labour should be much more sharply dealt with than at present.
- (3) "That special Inspectors of school attendance, who should supervise the administration of local authorities, should be imperially appointed ; and that generally the Education Department should take up a more responsible attitude towards the question of school attendance.
- (4) "That special magistrates should be appointed both for London and the provinces who should adjudicate on school cases in places other than the police courts.
- (5) "That no 'domestic' half-time should be recognised, and that so long as factory half-time exists, certificates qualifying for half-time labour should be granted only where it can be shown that the children will be 'beneficially and necessarily' employed.
- (6) "That in very many localities it is imperatively necessary that the attendance officers should be better paid and reinforced in number. It should also be possible for them to devote the whole of their time to the work."

RECEPTION OF DEPUTATIONS.

24. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to the Deputations from Ireland and Scotland for their presence, and this Conference hopes that education may be advanced by these interchanges of opinion and goodwill between the teachers of various countries. The Conference also expresses its regret that the deputation appointed to represent the Belgian teachers was unable to attend."

REPORT OF PRIVATE SESSION.

25. "That the educational journals be permitted to report the proceedings of the private session."

RE-ORGANISATION OF THE UNION.

26. "That the action of the Executive in postponing since the consideration of the instruction from Conference, 1891, to take a vote of the individual members of the Union as to the possibility of placing the Union subscriptions on a Trades' Union basis be approved."

27. "That the following resolution of Conference, 1891, be rescinded:— 'That the Executive be instructed to take a vote of the individual members of the Union as to the advisability of placing the subscription on a trades' union basis, and that, until this question is decided by a conclusive vote of the members or upon a report to the next Conference, it is inadvisable to alter the terms of membership of the Union.'"

ADMISSION TO THE UNION.

28. "That an admission fee be charged according to the following scale:—

After 31st December, 1892 ...	0	2	6
" " " " 1893 ...	0	5	0

This rule not to apply to those who have recently qualified as teachers, and who may join the Union within twelve months after being placed on the staff of an elementary school."

ALTERATIONS OF RULES AND BYE-LAWS.

29. "That Rule 5 read as follows:— 'That the Executive, or any local association (subject to the approval of the Executive) may expel any member whose character or conduct makes it desirable that member's name should not be retained on the roll of members.'"

30. "That Rule 19 be amended by the substitution of '30th November' for '31st December.'"

31. "That Bye-law 11 of the Legal Assistance Fund be amended by deleting the word 'appoint' and inserting between 'to' and 'a local solicitor' the words 'recommend the Executive for appointment.'"

32. "That Bye-law 12 of the Legal Assistance Fund be amended by the omission of all words after 'desirable.'"

ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

(A Special Report on this subject is printed on pages c—cxi.)

33. "That the report be now received."

34. "Seeing that the principle of electoral districts has been twice confirmed, this Conference regrets that the outgoing Executive has not submitted to the associations a scheme which would carry that principle into effect, and it hereby requests the new Executive to prepare a scheme and submit it to the associations by October next."

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT.

35. "That this Conference, while anxious to see the infliction of corporal punishment reduced to a minimum, is nevertheless of opinion that the present prohibitive regulations, by fostering a spirit of defiance, tend to increase the amount of corporal punishment inflicted, and thus defeat the end they have in view; and, being under many circumstances utterly unworkable, place assistants in a false and degrading position."

36. "That the adoption of a regulative system, by which all certificated assistants should have power to administer a certain limited amount of corporal punishment, would remove, to a great extent, the tendency towards defiance that the present prohibitive regulations generate, would lessen the friction that exists between managers and teachers, and teachers and parents, and contribute materially to the improvement of education; and that the Executive be requested to send out deputations to the large provincial School Boards on this question."

SUPERANNUATION OF TEACHERS.

(A Special Report on this subject is printed on pages lxxiii—xcix.)

37. "That the report be now received."

38. "That the scheme for superannuation of teachers adopted by the Executive and submitted in evidence to the Select Committee be, and it hereby, approved."

LIFE ASSURANCE.

39. "That this Conference requests the Executive to endeavour to secure for members of the N. U. T., from some leading insurance society, concessions similar to those granted by the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company to members of H.M. Civil Service."

EXTRANEOUS DUTIES.

40. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, a clause should be inserted in the Code providing that no teacher shall be required as a condition of holding his appointment to undertake or abstain from any duties out of the ordinary school hours as shown by the time-table of the school."

41. "That the Education Department be memorialised to take such steps as may be necessary to amend the Elementary Education Acts or Orders in Council, in order to carry out the following recommendations:—

I.—That the parish should be no longer maintained as the unit for the organisation of our rural school system, but that areas should be substituted with a minimum limit of population to be afterwards fixed.

II.—That notwithstanding anything contained in the 35th Section of the Elementary Education Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vic. c. 75), or in any Act amending the same, and notwithstanding any custom existing as to the appointment or dismissal of teachers in public elementary schools, no teacher, whose appointment has been recognised by the Education Department, may be removed from his office save and except in manner following, that is to say—

Any notice for the dismissal of a teacher must be specifically stated on the agenda, to be issued not less than four clear days to every member of the Board or committee of managers, and must be agreed to by a two-thirds majority of the School Board in the case of Board schools, and of the committee of management in the case of Voluntary schools, and shall take effect three calendar months after date in the case of a head teacher, and one calendar month after date in the case of an assistant teacher.

III.—Every Voluntary school receiving grants in aid to be under the management of a committee of not less than seven persons. If, under existing deeds of trust, no provision is made for the appointment of a school committee, the existing trustees, subscribers, or managers to be required to appoint a school committee of any number of not less than seven.

IV.—Every Voluntary school committee to meet regularly, and to conduct its business in accordance with the following schedule of regulations to be appended to the Education Acts:—

- (1) Every school committee shall meet at least once a month except during two months of the year. Minutes of all proceedings of the committee shall be recorded in a book provided for the purpose, no business to be transacted if a quorum be not present; three to form a quorum.
- (2) Each school committee shall appoint a chairman, a treasurer, and a secretary. Not more than one of these offices to be held by the same person. The accounts and the receipt for the share of the Government grant to be signed by at least three managers.

- (3) All accounts and minutes of the committee shall be open to the inspection of the Education Department, and all receipts for salaries shall be given in accordance with the form appended.

“Received from the Managers of——School, the sum of——pounds in payment of one——’s salary for duties performed solely as schoolm——of the said——school

“Signed——.”

- (4) If at any time a vacancy shall occur in a school committee which reduces the number of members to less than seven, it shall be filled up by those qualified to appoint within a period of two calendar months.

V.—That a new clause be added to Art. 85 of the Code, ‘That the appointment of any teacher employed in the school does not depend on the performance of, or the abstention from any duties other than those in connection with the subjects named on the time-table of the school, together with the instruction of pupil teachers.’

VI.—That the following questions be added to Form IX. :—

- (i) ‘Does the appointment of any teacher employed in the school depend on the performance of, or the abstention from any duties other than those shown on the time-table of the school, together with the instruction of pupil teachers?’”

(Replies to be furnished by managers and teachers.)

42. “That the best thanks of the Conference be given to the Education Department for making the following addition to Form 9 :—‘The salary entered must be the amount paid to each teacher for service as teacher; and must not include any sum paid to the teacher for any service in any other capacity.’”

ORGAN OF THE UNION.

43. “That The Schoolmaster be reconstituted the Organ of the Union on the terms agreed upon by the Executive and the Directors of the Educational Newspaper Company, and set out in the annual report of the Executive.”

CAPRICIOUS DISMISSALS.

44. “That provision should be made in the Code for effective means of appeal against the capricious removal of teachers from their position.”

AREAS OF SCHOOL BOARDS.

45. “That the practice of creating and maintaining school authorities for small districts has proved to be injurious to the best interests of national education, and therefore that the Education Department and Parliament be again memorialised in favour of making the areas of School Boards to correspond with those of the administrative counties of the country."

SALARIES OF ASSISTANT TEACHERS.

46. "That this Conference deploras the inadequacy of the salaries paid to the great majority of teachers, and especially of assistant teachers. It deems them hostile to the best interests of education, and, considering the prolonged training required, the severe duties exacted, the outward respectability demanded, and the reduced chance of promotion resulting from the modern tendency towards large schools, utterly unjust to teachers."

INSPECTION OF SCHOOLS.

47. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, the time has arrived when for the national good H. M. Inspectors shall not be compelled to formally examine schools at the end of the financial year, but that the annual report shall be based on data furnished by intermittent inspection."

THE NEW CODE AND INSTRUCTIONS.

48. "That this Conference notes with satisfaction the following amendments to the Code and Instructions to Inspectors:—

- (1) That the following words have been added to the Instructions to Inspectors—"Their Lordships think it well to state explicitly that such lists (lists containing names of children irregularly presented) should never be asked for, except in the case of children presented in specific subjects." (Paragraph 15, Instructions.)
- (2) That absolute freedom of classification in drawing has been conceded; and that this Conference looks for the early modification of the existing regulations issued by the Science and Art Department, in order that full effect may be given to this intention. (See p. ccxxxv of Annual Volume.)
- (3) That the 'D' certificate is not required as a qualification for giving instruction in drawing in Elementary schools.
- (4) That the words 'for other sufficient reasons' have been inserted in Paragraph 51 of the Instructions, and that Sir William Hart-Dyke has declared that 'It was never contemplated that old teachers should be subjected to any pressure, worry or expense in order to obtain the 'D' certificate, and, in administering the drawing regulations, both Departments desire to show the utmost consideration to the legitimate interests of schools and teachers and to bring the general teaching of drawing into effect without friction or hardship.' (See letter from the Vice-President of the Council in The Schoolmaster, 12th March, 1892, p. 452).
- (5) That the following words have been added to Section 53 of the Instructions, 'Small details of criticism on points which you consider that improvement is desirable, may be conveniently communicated to the managers and teachers at your visit, and need not be embodied in your report.' This Conference expresses a hope that the Department may see their way to granting the request that no adverse report should be made upon the school work unless the attention of the head teacher and the assistant teachers concerned be drawn to the matter by H. M. Inspector at the time of the examination.

(6) That a choice of two additional class subjects and four additional specific subjects has been given.

(7) That a scheme of arithmetic has been provided for small schools arranged in three divisions, and that permission has been given to vary the order of teaching the rules of arithmetic, and especially that the following words have been included in the Instructions: 'In cases where this arrangement is adopted and children are consequently examined in Standards IV. or VI. who have not done the work of the preceding Standard, you will be careful to see that in the cards set the problem does not involve a knowledge of the rules to be learnt in that Standard.' (See Paragraph 24.)

(8) That payment on individual passes in Specific Subjects has disappeared. (Art. 101 (f).)"

49. "That while recognising the advantages of increasing the curriculum by requiring a class subject to be taught in all schools, this Conference regrets that the Department have not made such arrangements as will provide that each school shall be properly staffed and equipped."

50. "That this Conference expresses its regret:—

(1) That the teacher's diploma is not allowed to cover all the obligatory subjects of instruction in elementary schools.

(2) That the teaching of drawing is not optional in all schools while insufficient staff and means of teaching exist.

(3) That the grant for drawing is not increased.

(4) That cookery is still required as a condition for girls earning a grant for drawing.

(5) That girls attending cookery classes during any of the school hours devoted to needlework are no longer exempt from presenting a garment to H.M. Inspector.

(6) That Article 98 (d), referring to the grant for singing in infant schools and classes, still provides that the grant of 1s. will not be paid unless the older scholars in the school, whether forming a separate department or not, are taught to sing by note."

APPOINTMENT OF INSPECTORS.

51. "That no person should be appointed as Inspector's Assistant who has not served for at least five years as a teacher in a public elementary school, and that all grades of the Inspectorate should be open to practical teachers."

52. "That this Conference regrets that in the recent appointments to Inspectorships of Schools, My Lords have not granted the request of the National Union of Teachers, that such appointments should be given to those who have had adequate experience in public elementary schools."

ADVERSE REPORTS.

53. "That no adverse report be made upon the school work unless the attention of the head teacher and the assistant teachers concerned be drawn to the matter by H. M. Inspector at the time of the examination, and that definite and easy means of appeal against unfair reports be provided."

PUPIL TEACHERS.

54. "That the regulations respecting the examination of pupil teachers at the end of the second year should be rigidly enforced."

55. "That before sanctioning the appointment of any candidate for pupil-teachership the Education Department should satisfy itself that the school in which it is proposed to apprentice the candidate is organised so as to afford opportunities for the due training of pupil teachers in the art and science of teaching."

56. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, one pupil teacher only should be allowed to each certificated teacher, and not more than two pupil teachers in any department of a school."

SCHOOL STAFF.

57. "That no teacher shall have sole control of a class with more than 60 children in average attendance; and that any class with more than 100 children in average attendance should be in charge of at least two certificated teachers or their staff equivalents."

SALARIES OF TEACHERS.

58. "That this Conference is of opinion that a fixed automatic mode of increase, by which all teachers should, except in cases of proved incapacity and wilful neglect, be entitled to claim advances, would act in the interests of education, and be a bare act of justice to teachers."

ARITHMETIC.

59. "That as interpreted by some of Her Majesty's Inspectors, Paragraph 24 in 'Instructions to Inspectors' is causing serious loss to many schools, some of which have hitherto been classed as 'Excellent,' and that the wording of this paragraph should be so altered as to make it clear that failure to attain the standard of excellence defined in the last sentence of the paragraph shall not necessarily imply a reduction of the fixed grant from fourteen shillings to twelve shillings and sixpence, or in other words, a fine of three twenty-eighths of the fixed grant."

DECIMAL SYSTEM.

60. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, the time has arrived when the interests of commerce and education demand the introduction into this country of a decimal system of money, weights, and measures."

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE UNION.

61. "That the subscription to the N. U. T. be increased by one shilling per annum—this amount to be expended for Parliamentary purposes."

62. "That the increase of subscription take effect from January 1st, 1893."

VERBAL ALTERATIONS OF RULES.

63. "That the Executive be, and they are hereby, empowered to re-number the rules of the Union, and to make such verbal alterations as are necessary to give effect to the resolutions adopted by this Conference."

VOTES OF THANKS.

64. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to Mr. Alderman Boothroyd, Mayor of Leeds, to the representatives of the Borough County Council, of the Yorkshire College, of the Leeds School Board, and of the managers of Voluntary schools, for the cordial reception given to the Conference."

65. "That the best thanks of the Conference be given to Lady Betty Balfour for receiving the purses containing the contributions from the various local associations to the charities of the Union."

66. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to Mr. A. Gardiner (Chairman), Dr. Forsyth and Mr. Sheppard (Vice-Chairmen), Mr. Smythe (Treasurer), Mr. T. G. West (Secretary), and Mr. J. Lang (Minuting Secretary), and the other members of the Local Conference Committee, for their very successful arrangements, and for the courteous attention to the convenience of members of Conference."

67. "That the best thanks of the Conference be, and they are hereby, given to Mr. Columbine (Chairman), Mrs. Holmes and Mr. Price (Vice-Chairmen), Mr. T. G. West (Treasurer), and Mr. A. Blenkinsop (Secretary), and the members of the Benevolent Purposes Committee, for their valuable and self-denying labours in the cause of benevolence."

68. "That the best thanks of the Conference be given to the various sub-committees of the Local Conference Committee for their excellent and successful arrangements."

69. "That the best thanks of the Conference be given to the scrutineers for the efficient manner in which they have performed their onerous duties."

70. "That the best thanks of the Conference be given to the President, Mr. J. H. Yoxall, for his able conduct in the chair."

DOCUMENTS ISSUED DURING THE YEAR.

I.—REPORT ON SCHOOL ATTENDANCE IN ENGLAND AND WALES.

PREPARED BY T. J. MACNAMARA.
(Issued by the Executive, October, 1891.)

In July, 1890, the Executive Council of the National Union of Teachers unanimously adopted the following resolution :—

“That a Report on School Attendance be at once prepared for issue to Members of Parliament, the Department, and the Press, drawing attention to the deplorable irregularity of attendance, which, notwithstanding twenty years of so-called compulsion, still continues materially to reduce the efficiency of our system of Primary Education, and to render nugatory very much of the work of the teacher; the Report to indicate what steps should be taken in respect of the duties of local attendance authorities and the magistracy, in order that a more effective administration of the compulsory clauses may be initiated.”

A form of inquiry was prepared and issued to the Hon. Secretaries of the Local Associations affiliated in Union.

As these Associations are scattered over the whole of the country, and include on their rolls 16,100 of the teachers in Public Elementary Schools—Board and Voluntary—it will at once be seen that the result of any effective inquiry through the medium of the Teachers' Union must necessarily be a valuable contribution to the discussion of this extremely important question of school attendance—a question which has become of even greater public moment since the very general abolition of school fees in the primary schools.

I.—PUPILS ATTENDING SCHOOL HALF-TIME.

The form of inquiry asked for the actual number of factory and other Half-Timers. A recently issued official return supplies the required information more completely :—

Half-Timers under the Factory Act	73,819
„ „ Education Act	96,867
Total..	170,686

Total number of pupils over 10 years of age1,410,636

Percentage of children over 10 years of age attending Half-Time = 12·9 per cent.

The great bulk of the Rural, and all the metropolitan returns show that there are few “recognised” Half-Timers in the districts under reference. It is pointed out however, that in many rural districts directly a child passes Standard II. or III. (both of which Standards are largely taken as the Standard for Half Time exemption) he proceeds at once to stay at home half-time—always supposing that he is over ten years of age. The following is a typical reply under the point. “Children who have passed the Third Standard stay from school at will, even if they have to play about the roads; no notice whatever being taken of such absence.” One return says, “We have none, but the attendance officers call all who have passed Standard III. Half-Timers.”

II.—STANDARDS OF EXEMPTION.

It may be well here to observe that according to a Return prepared for the Education Commission by the late Mr. Cumin, there were at that time ninety-one parishes (peopled by 104,309 persons) in which Standard I. was fixed as the Standard for Half Time Labour; there were 1,518 parishes and twenty-eight boroughs (aggregate estimated pop. 2,544,503 or 9·79 per cent. of the total pop. of the country) with Standard II. as the Half Time Standard; and there were 8,793 parishes, and 119 boroughs including London (total pop. 15,274,281 or 58·8 per cent. of country) with Standard III. as the Standard for Half Time exemption.

Equally to be deplored are the facts that there were sixty-seven parishes and one borough (pop. 44,162) in which no educational qualification for labour existed, compulsion merely being exercised between the ages of five and ten years; there were seven parishes (pop. 14,930) making Standard III. the Full limit of Time exemption for labour; and there were 9,303 parishes and sixty-nine boroughs (pop. 8,230,109 or 31·68 per cent. of entire pop.) with Standard IV. (reachable at ten years of age) as the Standard for Full Time exemption for labour.

While it is a fact that since the compilation of that return in some localities the Standards have been raised, the Executive wishes to take this opportunity of emphasising the pressing need that still exists in many parts of the country for levelling up the qualifications for labour, and thus materially extending the length of the child's school life.

Referring again to Half Time labour, several of the returns now under notice speak of the need for enforcing the provision that evidence must be shown to the satisfaction of the Local Authority that the child is beneficially and necessarily employed as a Half Timer. One return from a large Midland centre says, "In the opinion of many teachers Half Time is frequently granted when there is no necessity for the child to be employed, and sometimes the application is merely to cover irregularity." (Of course the italicised portion of this extract refers to Half Time other than factory labour.)

III.—THE STATE OF SCHOOL ATTENDANCE GENERALLY.

The following extract from the Blue Book for 1889-90, illustrates the general condition of attendance :—

"We have said that to meet the wants of the children for whom our schools are provided, and who constitute one-fifth of the total population, the number of school places to be provided ought to be equal to that of one-sixth of the population. If the supply of seats is, on the whole, somewhat in excess of this number, the attendance of scholars falls considerably short of it. This may be seen from the fact that while, with our present population, there might be 5,803,122 (1 in 5) on the registers, and 4,835,935 (1 in 6) in average daily attendance, our returns show only 4,755,835 children on the registers, and 3,682,625 in attendance. For every 100 seats provided there is an average attendance of not more than 76·65 children in board and 60·04 in voluntary schools ; for every 100 scholars on the registers there is an average attendance of only 68·03 in infant schools and classes, but of 82·22 in schools for older scholars. It is apparent that much yet remains to be done, in many districts, in the way of enforcing the byelaws, which now extend over the whole of the country. The number of empty seats, in schools which have been provided at so large a cost to public funds and private benevolence, bears out the statements, so frequently made in the reports of the Inspectors and elsewhere, as to the extent to which many local authorities fail, or are hindered by the indifference of magistrates, in performing the duty of securing the early and regular attendance of the children in the districts under their jurisdiction."

Comparing the average attendance with the number of the children whose names should be on the rolls, the actual attendances made are 63 out of every 100 possible.

Taking under consideration a comparison between the actual and possible attendances of those whose names are on the rolls, 78 attendances are made out of every 100 possible.

IV.—AN APPRECIABLE MINORITY OF THE CHILDREN PERSISTENTLY AND GROSSLY IRREGULAR.

Putting these figures roughly, and taking no note of children not already enrolled, one-fourth of the children on the rolls are always away, and it is the universal testimony of teachers that the general average of 78 attendances per hundred of the number possible, is not obtained by a fairly regular attendance (say from 75 to 85 per 100) on the part of the whole body of the pupils.

Briefly, it is obtained by three-fourths of the pupils making a thoroughly good attendance (from 90 onwards per 100) and the remainder a thoroughly bad attendance (from 10 to 50 times per 100).

This point is overwhelmingly attested in the returns now before the Executive.

A.—The replies from the Rural districts teem with such statements as—

- (1) "34 children absent over 100 times during the year in a school of about 200."
- (2) "One child absent 20 weeks consecutively."
- (3) "One boy not made an attendance for 15 months."
- (4) "We have instances of children illegally absent for over 13 months."
- (5) "A boy in ——— parish, over 13, never attended any school."
- (6) "Some children in this parish of school age who have never been in the school, others begin school life at 8 or 9 years of age."
- (7) "About 12 per cent. of my pupils make less than half time."
- (8) "One teacher has 12 boys, not one of whom has made a whole week's attendance during the year."
- (9) "Over 16 per cent. of the children in this district attend less than half time."
- (10) "From 5 to 10 per cent. attend less than 50 times per year. Schools open over 400 times."
- (11) "In my own school, about one-third attend less than half time, and one-twelfth make less than 50 times out of over 400."

The following figures are from different Rural Schools:—

(1)	With 92 children on books, the yearly average is 62.
(2)	" 80 " " 47.
(3)	" 34 " " 23.
(4)	" 92 " " 62.
(5)	" 41 " " 28.
(6)	" 43 " " 28.

B.—Exactly the same tale is told from the urban and metropolitan districts. The following are a few typical replies representing town localities north, south, east, and west.

(1) "This school has stood here (a slum district) for seven and a half years. There are boys who have lived within a biscuit throw the whole time who have never entered this or any other school. There are dozens more who have attended so wretchedly as scarcely to have learnt to read before leaving for good at thirteen years of age.

"Last week, with 284 on books, the average was 198, or 69 per cent. and all the boys live quite close to the school. I placed a list before the School Board yesterday containing 62 names. None of these 62 have any legitimate cause for absence. The return is for the last seven weeks. The aggregate of possible attendances for the 62 cases is, therefore, 4,340; the actual attendances are 1,195, the percentage of attendance for the 62 cases being 27. Six of the 62 have not been here at all during the 7 weeks. Twenty-two others have made less than 20 times out of the possible 70. Many of the parents in a locality like this are actively hostile to the school and its work."

(2) "Roughly, about 20 per cent. of the children attend less than half-time."

(3) "We constantly admit children 10 years of age and upwards who have never been in a school."

(4) "The attendance is exceedingly bad, especially in the poor districts. In my school I have about 340 children on the books. On Mondays and Fridays I have often less than 200 present, and I think the average for this year will not be much over 230."

(5) "I send my weekly percentage of attendances for the past quarter :—77, 79, 81, 77, 69, 67, 69, 68, 72, 68, 65, 70, 63."

(6) "Here are half-a-dozen cases:—A. made no attendances in three months; B. and C. made 0 in four months; D. and E. made 0 in five months; and F. made 0 in ten months."

V.—WHAT SCHOOL INSPECTORS SAY IN THE EDUCATION BLUE BOOKS.

It should be clearly understood that the complaints made by teachers as to the deplorable condition of school attendance are more than re-echoed year by year in the chorus of dissatisfaction which goes up from the inspectorate. To do more than give the briefest extracts from the current Blue Book would be now impossible, but the following may very well be put in :—

(1) "The attendance might often be a great deal better than it is if those concerned in the administration of the Education Acts had more belief in the benefits that children derive from a regular attendance at school."

(2) "In the country unions and in small towns there is very great reluctance to press the law of compulsion. The supineness of the Attendance Committees is fostered, if not engendered, by the leniency of the magistrates."

(3) "The country districts, however, as a rule do little and will continue to do little so long as the inducements to the employment of young children are not more efficiently counteracted."

(4) "There is but little activity among the rural school attendance committees to record, and it has long been recognised that the machinery available for putting compulsory attendance into effect is by no means a success."

(5) "That the attendance as a whole is satisfactory no one can contend. That under the existing machinery it is likely to be much better seems extremely doubtful. I have heard the local authorities' side of the question, I have heard what the teachers say, and I have listened to cases on the bench; and it seems to me that if a parent elects to systematically defy the law he can quite easily do so. If his child is in regular work he laughs at a fine; and except in the very worst of cases the authorities are very reluctant to adopt the extreme measure of sending to an industrial school."

(6) "The working of the machinery for compelling attendance is very unsatisfactory."

(7) "The attendance is far from satisfactory. I can only repeat the remark I have been compelled to make on previous occasions, that no systematic attempt is made to secure regular attendance at school. Irregularity is especially prevalent in small parishes where the local authority is not always adequate to its important functions, and in the market gardening districts. In these last the local authorities allege that the earnings of the children are so considerable that their parents disregard any penalties they incur by breaches of the bye-laws."

(8) "The present maximum penalty on conviction is altogether inadequate to produce a deterrent effect on really recalcitrant parents. In a large town I am sure there are some children who escape school altogether. Only children who are enrolled on the school books are subjects of solicitude on the part of the authorities."

(9) "I think the most unsatisfactory feature with regard to attendance is the utter indifference of many of the parents. As soon as the standard of exemption has been reached the child is taken away, in many cases too young to be employed, and allowed to run about the streets. The natural remedy for this state of things is to raise the standard of exemption."

(10) "The attendance is worse in the unions of Bedwellty and Crickhowel; and, as I have before reported, the indiscreet leniency of the magistrates is partly to blame for the fact. Gross cases of truancy are often dismissed with the smallest possible fine, which is not always recovered, and the School Boards in the district named naturally feel that they do but little good by their prosecutions. Several of the magistrates in the Vale of Glamorgan are reported to me as being equally disposed to condone violations of the Education Act by parents or employers. . . . The contrast between the paid and the unpaid magistrates in this respect is so great that one wishes heartily for a large increase in the number of the former."

(11) "Some School Boards eschew prosecutions as far as they can on the score of expense. Such short-sighted policy I, of course, never fail to lay bare to them. In such districts the attendance naturally is very inferior, and, what is worse, it is just as surely proceeding on the downward road from bad to worse. A few boards also seldom resort to prosecution, either from misplaced leniency or particularly on the eve of an election. . . . It is often a matter of surprise to note how many of the children in these populous districts are reported as being over six or seven years of age, and as having recently come to the school for the first time 'not knowing a letter.'"

(12) "The prime causes of irregularity are, of course, the indifference, ignorance, poverty, and cupidity of parents, and the reasons assigned why the compulsory powers are not more effectively enforced are (a) the laxity of some of the smaller School Boards and of some of the attendance committees; and (b) the failure of some magistrates to deal with judicious fairness with the cases brought before them."

(13) "I must report very unfavourably, nor can I discern any substantial improvement since the time that I first took charge of this district."

(14) "The attendance of the children in many schools continues to be very irregular. Many complaints reach me as to the laxity of the magistrates near Alford, who often only order a shilling fine after months of almost complete absence from school. No wonder that it is said that these parents jeer at the unfortunate attendance officer, and tell him that it pays them to keep the children at work when they should have been at school. These officers have too much work assigned to them to do it properly; the one for Louth Union has about sixty parishes to visit."

(15) "Irregularity is still an obstacle which should and could be removed. Ten more in every hundred might without hardship attend daily."

(16) "It is unfortunately true that attendance committees and boards are acquiring the knowledge that prosecution for non-attendance is an expensive and unremunerative business, while parents are discovering that defiance of the byelaws, when the certain earnings of the truant are put in the balance against the possible fine, is, on the whole, a cheap and even lucrative amusement."

(17) "The old obstacles to the efficient carrying out of the law still exist, viz. :—

"(1.) The composition of most of the rural School Boards and school attendance committees.

"(2.) The want of method in their working.

"(3.) The insufficient number of attendance officers, and the haphazard and unequal working that results from these officers having indefinite instructions, and being left too much to their own initiative.

"(4.) The confusion resulting from differing bye-laws in adjoining districts.

"(5.) The dislike of the magistrates to enforce the law.

"(6.) The unwillingness of the local authorities to prosecute employers.

"(7.) The fact that the Act of 1876 mentions one age and the bye-laws another for total exemption."

(18) "The machinery for enforcing attendance is by no means perfect as yet. In the early days of compulsion festina lente was a safe motto, but the time has now arrived when the summons might follow more quickly upon the warning."

VI.—CONSTITUTION AND CHARACTER OF THE LOCAL AUTHORITY.

A.—In Rural Districts.—The most severe strictures are passed upon the local authorities (School Boards and School Attendance Committees) in the returns under consideration. They are frequently spoken of as "indifferent," "hostile," and "illiterate." The indisposition on the part of members of small School Boards to compel the school attendance of their neighbours' children is constantly referred to. The local authority, if not exclusively composed of farmers, in most instances includes two or three farmers, who are more interested in the child's field-labour than in its school attendance. One return says: "The teachers are absolutely unanimous in denouncing the indifference, not to say disgraceful way, in which the attendance committees do their work."

Several returns show that the School Attendance Committees in some instances exist only in name. The following extract will explain the circumstances under which these Committees act: "As a matter of fact the meetings of the Committee are held while the fortnightly meetings of the Guardians are in actual progress. Volunteers are asked to examine the school attendance officers' books in an adjoining room. The last meeting of which I have definite information consisted of a retired publican and a small shopkeeper—both guardians, but not members of the attendance committee.

B.—Naturally, things are much better in the urban districts, where the local authority is either the School Board or an attendance committee appointed by the Town Council.

C.—The local authority in the districts under the London School Board is the “Divisional Committee” of the Board.

Extra-municipal metropolitan districts have of course their School Boards as their local authorities.

In Mr. Coward’s report for the North-West Division (Blue Book 1889-90) the following striking criticism of the character of the “Local Authority” occurs:—

“The apathy and often wilful neglect of the small School Boards in performing this important part of their duty are responsible for much of the irregularity in country districts. I see little remedy for this. Weakness, inefficiency, and worse are not uncommon in small bodies acting remotely and out of the glare of public opinion. My hope is that sooner or later we may have larger bodies acting over wider areas, with larger views of their office and greater independence of mind, to direct the important interests of public education.”

VII.—ARE ANY MEMBERS OF THE LOCAL AUTHORITY EMPLOYERS OF JUVENILE LABOUR?

A.—Rural.—Of the 135 rural returns in which this question was answered seventy-six show replies in the affirmative, fifty-four in the negative, and in five cases the answers show an inability to definitely say either way.

In a large number of the seventy-six returns where “Yes” is given, it is also explicitly stated that the children were illegally employed.

The farmers are the chief offenders. The exigencies of harvest time, hop-picking, potato-dropping, and fruit gathering seem to leave those persons no time for consideration of the fact that they are breaking the law in employing children of school age. In many instances children are spoken of as helping their elder brothers or sisters, or their parents, in the fields, with the full knowledge, and on the land of members of the local authority.

Cover beating several times occurs as a form of illegal juvenile labour.

B.—Urban.—Twenty-five of the thirty-six urban returns in which this question is dealt with answer distinctly “No”; eleven give the reply “Yes,” but in only three cases is the charge made that the children are illegally employed. It should be added that in those three cases the towns are small.

C.—Metropolitan.—“No” is the invariable reply. Under this point it may be noted that the minority of the Education Commission reported that not infrequently members of small School Boards had been found to be offenders against the law by illegally employing children of school age.

VIII.—HOW OFTEN DOES THE LOCAL AUTHORITY MEET?

A.—Rural.—The great bulk of the replies give “monthly” as the answer. The meeting place is either the School Board room, the guardians’ room at the workhouse, or a class-room of the school. “Quarterly” is the reply in one return; “eight times a year” in another; “supposed once a month, but often not a quorum,” in a third; “either before or after guardians’ meeting, if they are not too busy” in a fourth; “four times a year at Union Workhouse,” in a fifth; “have been known to go nine months without a meeting,” in a sixth; “once a month in a school-room or a public-house,” in a seventh; “rarely,” in an eighth; and “supposed monthly, but three or four months often elapse without a meeting,” in a ninth. In some cases fortnightly is the answer, but there is plenty of evidence to show that the meeting very frequently depends upon the state of other Union business. “Not always a quorum,” is a common reply; “Guardians too busy,” in another.

B.—Urban.—The usual reply here is “Monthly,” or “Fortnightly,” either at the “Board Office,” “Guildhall,” or “Council Office.” In four or five cases the reply shows that the local authority meets “weekly”; and in some cases the meetings are held in one of the rooms connected with the school.

C.—Metropolitan.—“Except during scheduling time about once a week at the various schools.”

IX.—WHAT STEPS ARE TAKEN TO ASCERTAIN THE EFFICIENCY OF UNINSPECTED SCHOOLS?

A.—Rural.—146 of the returns give replies to this question. Four of the returns speak of H.M. Inspectors as making inquiries into the state of such schools.

Twelve of the returns show that there are no uninspected schools in the districts reported upon.

130 of the returns speak of the local authority as taking “no steps whatever.”

The following is typical of these last-named 130 replies:—

“No steps at all are taken, and this is one of our greatest troubles. Children are often removed for trivial causes and sent to dames’ schools. It is a common custom to send them to such schools if they are reported for irregularity of attendance.”

The statement that nominal attendance at a private school is the cover for gross irregularity of attendance occurs again and again.

B.—Urban.—26 of the Urban 39 Returns which deal with this question say that practically no steps are taken. The attendance officers are frequently spoken of as having the most haphazard and incomplete knowledge as to how many children there are of school age under their control. Private schools are spoken of as “harbours of refuge for the grossly irregular,” and the local authorities as “too indifferent” or “too ready to compromise.”

In some districts no private schools appear to exist (for children of primary school class, of course). In others the attendance officers occasionally endeavour to ascertain whether the children are attending regularly, this being all that is required. For the most part, children leave these schools “deplorably ignorant.”

13 of the returns show that steps are taken to ensure the efficiency of schools and the regularity of the scholars attending them. Those steps are usually taken by School Boards, where they exist. Prosecutions are spoken of, and inspection of the schools by H.M.I. or the Board’s Inspector.

C.—Metropolitan.—What has been said of the provincial urban districts will fairly apply to the Metropolis.

X.—WHAT STEPS ARE TAKEN TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER THE NAMES OF ALL CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE ARE ON THE REGISTERS OF CERTIFIED EFFICIENT SCHOOLS?

A.—Rural.—The very great majority of the returns show that nothing systematic is ever attempted in this direction. Here and there a census is taken yearly. In several instances a census was taken six, eight, or ten years ago, and in a few instances the Registrar of Births supplies a list periodically. But, generally speaking, the most inadequate and slipshod provision (where it exists at all) suffices for seeing that all children of school age are on the rolls. The following are a few typical replies:—

(1) “Only the children whose names appear on the rolls are looked up.”

(2) “Scarcely any notice taken of them, as shown by the fact that in many cases they come old enough for Standard I., not having been to school before.”

(3) “No steps taken beyond the casual observation of the officer.”

(4) “It is generally an accident which reveals the existence of children who should be at school and are not there.”

B.—Urban.—Many of the returns speak of a house-to-house visitation by the attendance officers annually; others speak of this as being done with less than annual frequency.

The migratory character of many urban populations seriously militates against a thoroughly reliable census being taken. One return says: “I have 230 children in average attendance, but I generally admit about 300 new pupils per year, and 300 leave me during the same time." In some instances returns are periodically sent by the Registrar of Births to the local authority, showing from time to time the children who have newly become amenable to the law compelling school attendance. "When a house becomes tenanted, inquiries are made to ascertain if the persons have any children of school age," says one return. "In this district, no census has been taken since 1870," says another. "No steps are taken beyond following a 'casual' home, or acting on the information of teachers," says a third. "Quinquennial census," says a fourth. "Six monthly census," says a fifth; and in several returns the answer is, "No steps taken at all."

C.—Metropolitan.—The London returns speak of "periodical scheduling, and constant comparison and checking the officers' books with the school registers."

XI.—DO THE LOCAL AUTHORITIES ALLOW CHILDREN TO LEAVE SCHOOL IN CONTRAVENTION OF THE BYE-LAWS?

A.—Rural.—64 of the returns say definitely, "No." 40 of them say, with equal distinctness, "Yes." 36 of the returns show that the local authority does not bother its head much about the matter. A few of these 36 are appended:—

- (1) "Generally, the children come when they like and go when they like. No one likes to incur popular odium by having the Bye-Laws observed."
- (2) "If near thirteen no notice taken."
- (3) "A number of children have done so with impunity."
- (4) "Can hardly say the local authority allows it; but could mention half a dozen cases where it has been done."
- (5) "It is useless to prosecute above Standard III. (Standard IV. is the exemption standard.)"
- (6) "Fines rarely inflicted, and parents elect to take the consequences and remove the children."

B.—Urban.—31 of the urban returns say "No." 9 say "Yes."

Attention is drawn to the very generous use made by some urban authorities of their right to grant exemption in special cases, although the qualifications for labour may not have been attained.

C.—Metropolitan.—"No," "Very seldom," and "Only in special cases" are the metropolitan answers.

XII.—ATTENDANCE OFFICERS.

(1) Are they sufficient in number?

A.—Rural.—70 reply “Yes.” 69 say “No.” 8 report that they have no attendance officers at all.

School Boards seem better supplied than School Attendance Committees. The following are several answers:—

- (1) “The school attendance officer has 45 parishes to look after.”
- (2) “None specially appointed; the clerk makes out and delivers the notices when ordered by the Board.”
- (3) “Has 62 parishes to cover 20 miles by 7.”
- (4) “90 parishes to look after.”
- (5) “The Union embraces 21 parishes with an aggregate area of 90 square miles, and the officer only pretends to devote 3 days a week.”
- (6) “One officer; district 20 miles in length.”
- (7) “Has a round of 17½ miles.”

B.—Urban.—28 reports show “Yes.” 14 reply “No.” One or two replies may be quoted:—

- (1) “1 for population of 31,000.”
- (2) “7 for population of 140,000.”
- (3) “Only 1 for whole town; 3 or 4 are needed.”

C.—Metropolitan.—“Fairly so” is the sum of the London opinion, although two districts report “No” emphatically.

(2) Are they of suitable Character and Position?

A.—Rural.—138 of the returns provide an answer to this question. 125 say distinctly “Yes”; 5 say with equal emphasis “No.” In addition, there are 8 replies, of which the following is typical:—“Not always; some of them are neither feared nor respected. Too often a good officer is not backed up by Board or any other authority.”

B.—Urban.—Of the 41 Associations replying to this query, 40 give “Yes” as the answer, and 1 Association replies “Fairly so.”

C.—Metropolitan.—“Yes” is the answer from the 6 London Associations reporting under this head.

(3) Are they otherwise employed ?

A.—Rural.—144 of the Rural Associations answer this question, and 132 of them say “Yes.” There is an overwhelming abundance of evidence to show that the work of looking up the irregular attenders is far and away the least important in the multifarious duties to which the rural attendance officer is pledged. 12 of the reports indicate that the officer is not otherwise employed. As a rule he is the relieving officer and not unfrequently sanitary inspector and collector of rates, taxes, and bad debts, as well as attendance officer.

Some reports speak of him as “keeping a shop,” others as being the registrar of births, deaths, &c.; this report makes him the “church cleaner and lamplighter,” that the “clerk to the School Board,” a third finds in him the “rural postman,” a fourth the “assistant overseer,” and a fifth speaks of him as being “the county court officer, town crier, bill sticker, auctioneer’s man, and collector of debts.” Still another describes him as “bird fancier and organist,” and finally one report says, “Yes, as farmers, shoemakers, tailors, &c., &c. One School Board has had two publicans as attendance officers, and at present the publican of one village is the clerk of the Board, while the publican of the neighbouring village is the attendance officer under the same Board. Their interests are antagonistic to the interests of the children and the school.”

B.—Urban.—Of 41 urban returns replying to this question, 36 give “No,” as the answer, 5 give “Yes,” and in each of these 5 cases the centre is one of the smaller urban districts.

C.—Metropolitan.—“No” is the invariable reply, except in one case where the officer “has a shop to attend to.”

(4) Do the Attendance Officers regularly visit the Schools ?

A.—Rural.—146 replies. 74 give “No” as the answer, 72 give “Yes.” The following are a few of the statements :—

- (1) “Visits at intervals. Often 3, 4, or more weeks apart.”
- (2) “Visits us 3 or 4 times a year.”
- (3) “Never comes.”
- (4) “Many of these schools are miles from the nearest railway station, far up on the ‘fells’ or moors, consequently teachers have to depend very much upon themselves.”
- (5) “About once in 2 or 3 months.”
- (6) “Comes when he has time.”

(7) "Have had 2 visits in 3 years. Average number of visits yearly, 2."

(8) "Will come when sent for."

(9) "During the year 1889 I saw no attendance officer for 4 months, and only then on account of a letter from my managers. Again, during the present year, he has not paid a visit to my school for 3 months."

(10) "The attendance officer is clerk to the Board. He has not paid 10 visits in 10 years. It is nine-and-a-half years ago since any parent was summoned, and then nominal fines were inflicted, which have not yet been paid."

"He visits the school monthly, to attend the meeting of the School Attendance Committee," is a constant answer.

B.—Urban.—"Yes" is the invariable reply, except from one large centre on the borders of Cheshire, whence comes the answer, "Emphatically, No."

C.—Metropolitan.—"Yes," and "Yes, except during scheduling time," is the burden of these replies.

(5) Do the Attendance Officers look up scholars reported as "irregular" by the Teachers?

A.—Rural.—"The answer here must be read in connection with the foregoing replies respecting attendance officers. Where the officer visits the school regularly and is sufficiently well paid to be able to look upon his school work as the main business of his life, the "irregulars" are looked up, though here the matter often ends by reason of the failure of the magisterial part of the machinery. Where, however, the attendance officer is the Jack-of-all-trades for the locality, and looks upon this phase of his work as the most inconsiderate of the many trifles he has in hand, "irregulars" have rarely cause to fear any danger arising from his vigilance. Many attendance officers appear to consider their duty as completely achieved when a post-card or circular has been sent to defaulting parents.

It is fortunate that the following is a solitary instance of the kind:—"The attendance officer, who is a publican, utilises his visits to disparage the school, to malign the teachers, and to do all he can to raise a prejudice against the school and its teacher."

B.—Urban.—"Yes," generally speaking is the reply. There is need however for a closer and more thorough system of visitation such as would only be possible with an increased staff of officers, the members of which should each be directly attached to certain blocks of schools.

C.—Metropolitan.—Briefly, here the same may be said as in the case of the provincial centres.

(6) To what extent is the Attendance Officer employed by the Attendance Committee in work other than visitation?

Summing up the whole of the returns under this question, generally speaking, it is the duty of the attendance officer to do all or most of the clerical work connected with his office. It is his duty, too, in many cases, to attend the meetings of the Attendance Committees. He transcribes his lists of absentees from the teachers' return into lists more convenient for his visitation, filling in the results of his efforts after the visit has been made, except, of course, where visitation gives place to warnings by circular, and these he generally fills up himself. He usually transacts the clerical work in connection with the "notice B's" served upon the parents, and attends these meetings. He goes on then to accomplish much of the clerical work connected with prosecutions, and has to attend personally at the police-courts to conduct these prosecutions. Then from time to time there are the "scheduling" processes and the "census" takings. Even where the officer is sufficiently well paid to be able to devote the whole of his time to the work, it not unfrequently transpires that only a minimum of that time is spent in actual visitation. When the multifarious engagements entered into by the rural attendance officer are taken under consideration, it is difficult to see what time, if any, can be found for the work for which, as an attendance officer, he is primarily appointed.

(7.)—Attendance Officers' Salaries.

A.—Rural.—Where the School Attendance Committee does not retain the whole of the officers' services, the salary ranges from £1 to £15. This, the recipient will augment by undertaking a variety of other duties already specified, or will engage to do the attendance work for several School Boards or Committees. Where the officer is fully engaged the salary ranges from £30 to £60, but very rarely does it reach the latter figure.

The following are a few of the replies:—

(1) "£20 for 43 parishes and £5 from each of the School Boards (may be 5 or 6) in addition."

(2) "£5; if he looked up all the irregulars of this school only, he would use the money up in shoe leather."

(3) "£1 for each parish, total £10."

(4) "£5 added to the Master's salary."

B.—Urban and C. Metropolitan.—The salaries here range from £60 to £120. Occasionally a uniform, or an allowance for the same, is provided. In several instances the Urban Boards have appointed Superintendents of Attendance Officers, whose salaries range from £150 to £200 per annum.

XIII.—THE MAGISTRATES. DO THEY LOYALLY APPLY THE LAW RESPECTING SCHOOL ATTENDANCE?

A.—Rural.—138 of the returns furnish replies to this question. 51 say "Yes," and 87 say "No." Everywhere there is evidence of the very great leniency with which the magistracy deals with irregularity of school attendance. This is shown by a flat refusal to convict, or the infliction of peppercorn fines either not collected, after all, or paid by the Court. The Executive wishes to evince a proper spirit of sympathy with the poor, and would shrink from advocating any undue legal pressure being put upon those who may be in straitened circumstances. But it cannot blink the fact that the children have interests at least as important as those of their parents. Neither can it disguise the overwhelmingly attested truth that an appreciable minority of the operative classes have no higher ideal before them than that of frustrating the intentions of the Education Acts, in order that they may enjoy the few pence that their little ones are sent out early morning and late at night to scrape together. The Executive has abundant evidence before it to show that peppercorn fines are paid with avidity, leaving a very substantial balance in the parents' pockets out of the child's earning. For parents of this description—and it has been admitted that they are a decided minority of those touched by Compulsory Education—there is absolutely nothing but downright effectively administered compulsion. Nor will the abolition of school fees materially diminish the necessity for this better administration of the law. It may be well to give a few of the answers under this head.

- (1) "I do not remember any case of the law being applied by the magistrates during my seven years' experience of this district."
- (2) "Only strong cases are brought before the magistrates, and they are very unwilling to convict for a first offence."
- (3) "Yes; if there is no loophole of escape."
- (4) "First offences often adjourned one month; if attendance improves, cases dismissed."
- (5) "They seldom if ever "fine"; when a child is brought before them a second time, they will admonish a parent, but take no severer measures."
- (6) "They will listen to any excuse."
- (7) "The magistrates openly say they are opposed to compulsion."
- (8) "No, decidedly not; continually letting delinquents off."
- (9) "Compulsion regarded, in many instances, as a hardship; therefore they often condone the offence."
- (10) "They have not the chance, for the local authority never applies for any summonses."
- (11) "No; it is very difficult to obtain a conviction unless cases are very bad. School Board reluctant, therefore, to prosecute."

(12) "The task is evidently distasteful, and if they do convict they too often show that their sympathy is with the parents."

(13) "They will not deal with any case in which seven-tenths of the attendances are made. Officers are very careful only to bring the most flagrant cases into court."

(14) "The School Boards here never summon a parent."

(15) "No summonses have been applied for since June, 1888."

(16) "They will only convict in very glaring cases."

(17) "They have crossed out fines during the present year to the extent of £5."

(18) "Children have to be absent three months out of six before a conviction can be got."

(19) "In some cases the magistrates themselves pay the fines."

(20) "One parent of children attending the above school has to my personal knowledge, been summoned before the — bench four times. He has never attended the court, but treats the matter with contempt, and has never been fined a single farthing. This is not an isolated case."

B.—Urban.—Most of the Urban returns reply "Yes"; but, as a rule, they speak of the law as being administered with the greatest clemency. A few answers are reproduced.

(1) "An ex-mayor has stated openly in court that he will not grant summonses."

(2) "Large number of cases adjourned to see if the children's attendance improves, which it may do for a month or so during the probationary period, but afterwards as bad as ever."

(3) "They will scarcely ever convict if the children make over 'half-time'; example, 53 out of a possible 100, conviction refused."

(4) "At a recent sitting of the court, Mr. —, J.P., publicly stated that he had no sympathy with the work of the School Board. A few days afterwards he retracted, and said he meant the way the work was done, and not the work itself."

C.—Metropolitan.—The following are one or two replies:—

(1) "The magistrates, as a rule, decide these cases as if there were no written laws on the subject, and as if the judgment rested merely with themselves. In this way the decisions are based, not on reason, but sentiment. Owing to pressure, only a few cases can be heard from each district each week. This makes, I believe, the Act unique in English law."

(2) "Yes; but with undue leniency to defaulters."

(3) "Emphatically, No."

XIV.—FINES.

(1) What are the amounts usually inflicted?

A., B., and C.—Rural, Urban, and Metropolitan.—The first step in the prosecution appears to be the making out of an "Attendance Order" in response to the summons taken out by the local authority. If this be disregarded, a fine is inflicted, which ranges from 6d. to 2s. 6d., usually without costs.

Then follows a further and protracted period of absence, and a third prosecution is entered upon. If the attendance officer has secured his case all round and safeguarded every loophole of escape, a second fine may be inflicted of, say, 1s. with costs (which will bring the total to between 3s. 6d. and 4s. 6d.). After continuous absenteeism and frequent prosecution, the maximum of 5s. may be reached, but on every occasion in very many of the magisterial courts of the country the case breaks down on the most frivolous grounds.

The Executive is firmly convinced that, generally speaking, it is practically the same round of parents year after year which gives all the trouble connected with the administration of compulsory education. It is, moreover, struck with the fact that wherever a bench of magistrates has gone to work systematically and fearlessly to firmly administer the law, school attendance has materially improved, and much of the friction now induced by the loose application of the law has been removed. A few of the replies are appended:—

- (1) "Costs of prosecution chargeable to the school authority on loss of case. This acts as a deterrent to prosecution."
- (2) "6d., 1s., or 2s. 6d. Magistrates often pay it."
- (3) "1s. and 4s. costs, which are remitted if child attends, which he does for a week or so."

The following important remark was made by the Chairman of the Bench of Magistrates at — in May, 1888:—"Parents who wish to evade the law can make it pay them to keep their children from school and employ them. If the magistrates could order payment of fines of £1, they would soon have none of these cases."

(2) Are the fines enforced?

A.—Rural.—121 of the returns give answers to this question. 76 say distinctly "Yes," 14 reply "No," and 31 show that sometimes the fine is inflicted and sometimes it isn't. Occasionally "distress warrants" are issued, with the result "No effects" not unfrequently. One return speaks of the fines being paid by those who employ the children, and another relates how a parent when fined replied, "Oh, my son will soon earn that." Several returns speak of the fines as being more rigidly enforced latterly than heretofore.

B.—Urban.—Of the 41 returns replying, 32 say "Yes," 2 say "No," and 7 show that the fines are not invariably enforced.

C.—Metropolitan.—"Yes, wherever possible," is the sum of the Metropolitan returns, although the Westminster return says distinctly "No."

(3) What time elapses between the offence and conviction?

A.—Rural.—No tabulated information can here be submitted, as the times elapsing are so extremely various. In the same districts they vary from 3 weeks to 6 months. Altogether the process is an absurdly slow one. Some returns speak of an "indefinite period" elapsing between offence and conviction, others tell of "several months" delay. Another again says, "From 6 months to 3 years." Still another reports, "Cases taken when the magistrates meet here in May and November."

One teacher, thoroughly tired of the irony of the whole proceeding, writes, "Time enough elapses to earn 100 fines." A second says, "It varies from 1 to 5 years"; a third says, "The irregularity generally goes on for about 6 months before proceedings are taken"; and a fourth says, "Repeated warnings, extending over a period of several weeks and generally months, are issued by the attendance officer, whose district is about 50 square miles in extent. He finally brings the worst cases under the notice of the School Attendance Committee of the Board of Guardians. Out of these cases two or three of the most flagrant are selected 'as examples,' and prosecutions are ordered." On the other hand, many reports speak of proceedings being taken within 14 days or a month of the offence, and where the sessions are held monthly or more frequently, of summary administration being effected.

The returns from all quarters of rural England and Wales show that similarly various and very often long protracted periods of time are allowed to elapse between the conviction and the enforcing of payment of the fine, where payment is enforced at all.

B. Urban and C. Metropolitan.—These returns show that after frequent warnings, and after the patience of the local authority has been thoroughly exhausted, when prosecution is determined upon, the daily sitting of the magistrates make it possible for legal treatment to be applied expeditiously. Usually School Board cases before the magistrates are taken in monthly batches. The same generous extension of grace, however, as to the collection of the imposed fine is here noticeable as in the rural returns.

XV.—WHAT ARE THE CHIEF OBSTACLES TO REGULAR ATTENDANCE?

A.—Rural.—With the view of accurately presenting the opinions of the practical experts who, in the returns under investigation now submit their views upon this point, the Executive has thought it well to give the reasons.

146 of the Rural returns answer the question.

The following are the chief obstacles, arranged in order according to the number of Associations from which they have been received :—

1. The employment of young children during portions of the year on field and farm labour.
2. Negligence, indifference, indolence, and thriftlessness of parents—low estimate put upon the value of the school work.
3. Lax way in which local authorities and magistrates administer the law.
4. The utter incapability and inefficiency of local authorities—School Boards and School Attendance Committees, many of the members of which are illegal employers of child labour; also insufficiency of attendance officers.
5. Distance from school, rough roads, &c..
6. Domestic reasons, minding baby, errands, &c.
7. Inclement weather.
8. Poverty.
9. Inability to pay fees and buy books.
10. The exigencies of the excursion season at sea-side resorts—attending on visitors, &c.
11. Sickness, epidemics, &c.
12. Lax treatment of persons who illegally employ juvenile labour.
13. Low Standard for Half and Full Time Exemption.
14. Insufficiency of Attendance Officers.
15. Medical certificate to excuse absence too easily obtained.
16. Expenses of Prosecution too high.
17. Private and Dame Schools.

Referring to the employment of agricultural children on farm and field, the following is an exact statement of the obstacles to regular attendance under this point, from one locality in North Wales.

(a) Spring.—Planting potatoes, cutting and drying peat, tending sheep and cattle. Gathering stones off meadow land.

(b) Summer.—Drying and stacking peat. Tending sheep and cattle. Hay Harvest. Visitors at watering places.

(c) Autumn.—Corn harvest. Gathering blackberries and mushrooms. Potato digging. Annual thanksgiving and other meetings.

(d) Winter.—Gathering leaves for manure. Carrying peat and firewood. Annual hiring fairs.

B.—Urban.—Number of returns providing answers to this question, 32. 9 additional returns merely say, "The usual excuses."

Obstacles arranged according to number of times received:—

1. Negligence, indifference, indolence, and thriftlessness of parents, resulting in truancy and gross irregularity.
2. Lax way in which local authorities and magistrates deal with the matter,
3. Domestic excuses—minding baby, running errands, &c.
4. Poverty.
5. Inability to pay fees and buy books.
6. Long-continued absence in summer at seaside places, and the like.
7. The idea that pupils can stay at home "half time" after a certain age or standard had been reached.
8. Desire on part of parents to profit by child's labour.
9. Inefficient staff of attendance officers.
10. Ease with which medical certificates are procurable.
11. Selling newspapers.

C.—Metropolitan.—Number of Associations reporting, 4.

Obstacles:—

1. Lax way in which law is administered.
2. Indifference, &c., of parents.
3. The "Block System."
4. Domestic excuses.
5. The withdrawal of visitors for a considerable period to do the "scheduling."
6. Shifting population.
7. Sickness.

XVI.—SUGGESTIONS FROM THE LOCAL ASSOCIATIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

Here again the suggestions are set out in detail, and are arranged according to the number of Associations from which they have been received.

A.—Rural.—109 of the returns give suggestions for the improvement of attendance as follows:—

1. More prompt, effective, and stringent administration of compulsory clauses.

2. Raise the varying Standards of exemption.
3. Provide for more frequent visitation by the attendance officers.
4. Reform the local authorities, and provide much greater efficiency in this department.
5. Appoint more attendance officers, pay them well, and retain the whole of their services.
6. Make age and attendance the only qualifications for labour.
7. The Department or County Council (as several of the returns suggest) to appoint a special Inspector of School Attendance—say one for each county.
8. Deal much more sharply with illegal employers of juvenile labour.
9. Enlarge the areas of small School Boards.
10. Abolish “domestic” and “agricultural” half-time.
11. Education Department to take up a more responsible attitude in respect of school attendance.
12. Abolish the school fees.
13. Appoint a special itinerant and stipendiary magistrate to hear attendance cases.
14. Award prizes and certificates for regular attendance.
15. Reduce the cost of prosecution.
16. Take census of children more thoroughly.
17. Look after “Dame” schools more thoroughly.
18. See that medical certificates are properly granted.

B.—Urban.—Number of Associations reporting, 26.

The following are the suggestions :—

1. More promptly, effectively, and stringently administer the Compulsory Clauses.
2. Make age and attendance the only qualifications for labour.
3. Appoint (imperial) special inspectors of school attendance.
4. Award prizes, certificates, medals, &c., for regular attendance, and generally make the schools more attractive.
5. Abolish the fees.
6. Deal sharply with illegal employers of juvenile labour.
7. Appoint more attendance officers.
8. Abolish “domestic” half-time.
9. See that medical certificates excusing absence are of a more bona fide character.

10. Give attendance officers right to take the "casuals" into custody and carry them off to the schools.

11. Grant "half-time" certificates only where it is ascertained that the children will be beneficially and necessarily employed.

12. Appoint special magistrates and set aside special day for School Board cases.

C.—Metropolitan.—Number of Associations reporting, 11.

Suggestions:—

1. Attach the attendance officers to schools instead of blocks, and make them responsible to the head teachers.

2. Appoint special magistrates to deal with attendance cases.

3. Abolish the system of annual scheduling, and institute continuous scheduling by district officers.

4. More prompt, effective, and stringent administration of compulsion.

5. Deal severely with illegal employers of juvenile labour.

6. Abolish the fees.

7. Make age and attendance the only qualification for labour.

8. Visitation weekly early in each week; Monday's absentees to be looked up on Tuesday.

XVII.—FREE EDUCATION.

The Executive cannot close this Report—issued as it is contemporaneously with the introduction of a system of assisted education—without a reference to the probable effects of that system upon school attendance. The Executive desires at once to correct the somewhat prevalent opinion that "Free" Education will necessarily induce greater regularity of attendance. The universal testimony from other countries, and in respect of English pupils hitherto gratuitously educated, is that alone it will do nothing of the kind. It will put more names on the rolls of the schools, and will certainly relieve many parents upon whom the weekly charge has pressed heavily. But it will not materially affect the attitude of the very great bulk of those parents who have given by far the greatest amount of trouble under the fee-paying system; neither will it compensate to the parent for the loss of the wages his child would have earned had he been permitted to proceed to labour day by day instead of having to attend school.

In this connection reference may be made to a memorandum by Dr. Fitch on the working of the free school system in America, France, and Belgium, recently issued. Dr. Fitch's conclusion is:—"The universal remission of fees, therefore, undoubtedly helps to remove one of the hindrances to regular attendance; but it still leaves many hindrances untouched, and it requires to be supplemented by other measures, if school attendance is to be raised to a high level."

XVIII.—CONCLUSIONS.

Whilst expressing the opinion that the liberty of classification recently conceded, together with other salutary reforms initiated, should do much to induce greater regularity of school attendance; the Executive must very strongly plead for a more effective, more stringent, and a prompter administration of the law compelling school attendance. It wishes, further, to associate itself more particularly with the suggestions—

1. That age and attendance should be the only qualifications for labour.
2. That illegal employers of juvenile labour should be much more sharply and effectively dealt with than at present.

(These two suggestions properly carried out would provide a system of indirect compulsion calculated of itself to have a considerable effect upon school attendance.)

3. That the Department should take up a more responsible attitude toward the subject, and should appoint special inspectors of school attendance.

4. That no "domestic" half-time should be recognised, and that, so long as factory half-time exists, certificates qualifying for half-time labour should be granted only where it can be shown that the children will be beneficially and necessarily employed.

5. That in very many localities the attendance officers should be better paid and reinforced in number. It should also be possible for them to devote the whole of their time to the work.

6. That special magistrates should be appointed to deal with attendance cases.

7. That more thorough and satisfactory steps should be taken to secure that all children of school age are in attendance at efficient schools. And

8. That immediate steps should be taken to provide a more efficient system of local administration, both as regards school attendance committees, small school boards, and the attendance officers these bodies appoint.

II.—COMPULSORY EXTRANEEOUS DUTIES.

REPORT OF DEPUTATION TO THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

A deputation from the National Union of Teachers, consisting of Mr. Yoxall (Acting President), with Messrs. Gray and Organ, waited upon the Vice-President of the Council of the Education Department on Saturday, December 12th, 1891. The Secretary of the Department was also present.

Mr. Yoxall said :—Sir William Hart-Dyke, My first duty is to thank you on the part of the National Union of Teachers for favouring us with this interview. We are grateful for it, as for the other marks of consideration shown to the body we represent, and we are none the less grateful because we are here again to-day. We are here to bring under your notice a grievance felt by thousands of teachers—a matter that calls for the exercise of the open ear, the open mind, and the reforming energy which have characterised your administration of this Department. I refer to the subject of compulsory extraneous tasks imposed upon teachers in public elementary schools. Believing these to obtain to a very large extent, the machinery of the National Union of Teachers has been used to obtain evidence from teachers on this point. Just as the N. U. T. is conducted without difference of party or creed, so the inquiry was conducted without party or creed. The results of the inquiry, my friends, Mr. Gray and Mr. Organ, who have had the inquiry more particularly in charge, will lay before you, together with the remedies we recommend.

Mr. Gray desired to state what occurred in the career of teachers in small Voluntary schools and in schools under small Boards. The advertisements showed that there was a demand on the part of managers of schools for a large amount of extraneous work from the teacher. He must be prepared beyond his school duties to play the organ, to take charge of the Sunday-school, and to engage in nearly every parochial office, without reference to additional payment, or without regard to his special qualifications as a school teacher. It was clear that in many instances the demand for extraneous work occupied a higher position in the mind of the advertiser than the necessity for securing a good teacher. He did not know that teachers themselves could much complain of these advertisements, but the public had a right to complain, because they diminished the number applying for the post, and good teachers were shut out through their inability to play the organ, or in consequence of their disinclination to take up this additional work. Naturally, teachers complained of the heavy pressure put upon them by this work, and that they had no spare time, no leisure to prepare their school work, or to enter into any congenial occupations for themselves. Some of the teachers admitted that it would be better for them to neglect their work at day-school than to neglect the Sunday work, as it would be less likely to give offence to their employers. There were many cases in which teachers took employment without any arrangement being made for this extra work, which was subsequently imposed bit by bit, the teachers being informed that they must take up this extra work or resign their appointments in the day school. The schools in which these cases generally occurred were those under "one man" management. Although he was speaking as a Conservative and a Churchman he was bound to say that these cases generally occurred where the Vicar of the Parish was practically the sole manager of the school. In such cases there was practically no control over his action; he called on the teacher to take up a secretaryship, to act as parish clerk, and act as his servant in Vestry work, and to undertake all varieties of work totally unconnected with the duties of the school. Other examples occurred under small School Boards where, although it was not stated publicly by the Board in its official capacity, some member interested in particular work made it a condition of his vote at the appointment that the teacher should consent to undertake that work. He had received a large number of original letters from managers and chairmen of Boards in which they had written to teachers informing them that their appointments would be conditional upon their undertaking certain duties outside the school. When the subject was discussed in the House of Commons last Session, an hon. member objected to the motion proposed, on the ground that it was an attempt to deprive teachers of the opportunities which existed for adding a little to their incomes. The Union did not attempt to interfere with the freedom of the teacher—in fact the deputation were there for the very opposite purpose; they were anxious to secure absolute freedom for every teacher outside school hours to undertake or abstain from any other work as he pleased. Those who heard the statement made in the House, and knew the facts of the case, could hardly have failed to have been amused at the ignorance of the true state of affairs which such a statement exhibited. Where payments were made they were exceedingly small, such as £3 per annum for salary as organist. He had worked out the figures for the payments of these extra duties, and found they amounted to about 1½d. or less per hour. But in the great majority of the cases the work was not paid for at all. He had explained this to the hon. member, who replied that although that might be so the extra work was considered by the managers when the teachers were appointed, and their salaries were thus higher than they otherwise would have been. What did that mean? That the teacher's salary was made larger in order to provide payment for the organist of the parish church. Many of these schools had no voluntary subscriptions whatever; the whole of their income was now derived from public money which was paid to the school for educational purposes, but was used, he did not hesitate to say, in a large number of cases for the payment of other offices altogether outside the school. He could quote cases where teachers were acting as assistant overseers and where money paid for that work was entered on Form 9 as part of the salary of the teacher, who was required to give duplicate receipts, one to satisfy the requirements of the Local Board and the other for the school inspector. It thus appeared that money paid by the State for purely educational purposes was improperly used for the payment for work outside the school or the teacher was compelled to discharge these duties without any consideration whatever. The executive had had evidence of this state of things for some years, but before taking action they were desirous of making a complete inquiry. They, therefore, submitted a series of questions to every teacher in certain districts, inquiring among other things whether their positions as school teachers depended upon the performance of this extraneous work. About 1,200 replies had been received, and from these it appeared that about 800 of these teachers had no extraneous work, or, at least, their positions as school teachers did not depend upon the performance of such work. The fact that there was such a number showed that there was no absolute necessity for the teacher to perform this extraneous work, and that certain classes of schools could exist without the teacher being necessarily required to be organist, choirmaster, &c. If some of the small Voluntary schools could manage without the teachers taking these offices there was no reason why others should not do the same. On the other hand, about 400 of the replies indicated that those teachers were so placed that their position depended upon the performance of this work, and they feared that if they gave up the work they would be dismissed from their schools. He gave an instance of a teacher who received notice to quit his school on the same day that he resigned his extraneous work, and the manager's notice gave as the reason for the dismissal difficulties connected with extraneous work. That was merely an example of many cases. Teachers dare not withdraw from this work. The principal question was how the education of the children was affected by this state of things. Many good teachers were prevented from applying, and the educational work was carried on year after year under the strain of constant worry in consequence of the teacher never knowing what might crop up in connection with outside work which might lead to his dismissal, or what further duties he would be required to perform. They had cases where the inspector had given excellent reports to the school, and had spoken in the highest possible way of the work of the teacher, yet he had been thrown out of employment in consequence of some disagreement on matters entirely unconnected with school work. Whenever a case of unnecessary disturbance of the teacher occurred the educational progress of the children suffered. A man could not properly carry on the work of a teacher when he was labouring under a sense of constant anxiety arising altogether from work outside his school. He thought the State should not allow the managers of schools to compel the State-trained man to undertake other work. He should be left free like every other citizen either to undertake or to abstain from it as he pleased. It might be said that this could be prevented by the teachers themselves. They would have the matter in their own hands to a great extent if they had control over the certification of teachers and the difficulties of over-supply; but there were grades of the certificate existing which made it necessary for the teachers to undertake employment under any conditions. Many managers disregarded almost entirely the skill of the teachers provided they could get from them the largest amount of extraneous work. He had cases showing how little depended upon pro-professional skill and how much on the ability and willingness to undertake certain other offices. In one case where a teacher was seeking a school the manager replied, "I acknowledge that your qualifications as a teacher are good, but I want a professional organist." He maintained that it was the duty of school managers to appoint the teacher with the best educational qualifications. The managers should exist for educational work alone, but the examination of the papers he had received convinced him that many managers of small schools maintained them, not for the education of the children of the district, but to provide themselves with an official who would carry on work outside the school at no cost to themselves. To further illustrate cases where the salary for outside work was paid from public funds, he mentioned the case of a teacher who received £50 salary as a school teacher and £17 as organist. Form 9 showed that the teacher's salary was £67. In another case where a teacher who had trained himself specially for the organist's work, asked for an increase of salary as organist, and was told that his salary as organist was not simply the £5, but that his salary as school teacher was higher than it would have been if he were not acting as organist. Teachers complained most bitterly of the duties which were thrown upon them; but it was most difficult for them to move, because if their names were mentioned or their cases quoted, so that they could be identified, it would result in their instant dismissal. He was, therefore, unable to give publicity to the names of these particular cases, but he had the original letters from the managers, and although he could not make them public he suggested that he might show them privately to Sir William Hart-Dyke. Many of the teachers dare not have any political opinions unless they were the same as their own managers. Many were absolutely afraid to be seen in the street with a stranger lest they should be taxed with taking part in some dreadful movement against the politics of the district or the interests of the church or chapel. It was impossible for men labouring under such conditions to exercise a wholesome influence upon the children committed to their care, and educational work in its best sense became almost impossible.

Mr. Organ stated that it had been left to him to ask the Department to take into their consideration certain recommendations which the Executive made with regard to how these difficulties might be removed. He then submitted the following recommendations which had been adopted by the Executive the previous evening, and briefly explained the object of the Executive in making these suggestions:

At the close of his statement the paper of recommendations was handed in to the Vice-President.

In reply to an inquiry by the Secretary of the Department as to how these conditions should be imposed, Mr. Organ suggested the withdrawal of the grant.

The Secretary pointed out that this loss would frequently fall upon the teacher.

Mr. Gray stated that in the form of agreement suggested by the Union, the teachers were protected from loss of grant caused by the neglect of managers to comply with the conditions which the code required of them.

Mr. Yoxall also pointed out that a few cases of withdrawal of grant would be sufficient by way of example for others.

Sir William Hart-Dyke said: I am glad to have seen you here to-day. You will not expect me to say much with regard to any changes which you have suggested or any possible changes which might be made to meet what are grievances in many instances. I do not deny that cases have been brought before Parliament and mentioned here to-day which are blots upon our system. I admit that so far as it goes. On the face of it, you are now asking us to change the policy of the Department in regard to the engagement of a teacher; that is to say, the present duty of the Department being to secure the efficiency of education, you assert that there may be cases—in fact, one has been mentioned to-day—in which the school was efficient, and yet there was a grievance; between the manager and the teacher with respect to the treatment of the teacher by the manager of the school, calling for the interference of the Department. That brings us to the crux of the case. Our duty is to secure that these schools should be thoroughly efficient. Then we are face to face with what is urged as a serious grievance, the treatment of certain teachers in small Voluntary and Board schools as to extraneous work, and we are asked to take cognizance of this grievance and to take some steps, through the Code or otherwise, to remedy such a state of things. If we are asked to remedy such a state of things by active interference for the first time between the managers and the teachers, by, in fact, constituting the Department an arbiter between the managers and the new teacher on his engagement, as to what basis that should take, that is a serious matter to my mind. It is extending centralisation to a very considerable and, to my mind, dangerous extent. It would be an alteration of our system which I for one should wish to avoid, but I do acknowledge that there are difficulties and there are grievances which now exist. One thing strikes me with regard to these difficulties under which teachers in some instances are labouring. The National Union of Teachers in itself as being a very powerful body might take some action to protect teachers on their engagement. I acknowledge these difficulties may occur, though I think they are difficulties which will lessen day by day, but looking at it from a practical point of view it is when the teacher is first engaged that the difficulty should be avoided. It seems to me it might be possible for some document to be drawn up which should be binding upon the managers and teachers by which the teachers should know on his engagement whether he would be called upon to undertake any extraneous work, and if so, what the maximum amount of that extraneous work would be; that by some means a teacher might know on his engagement to the very full the work he would be called upon to perform. That would be some protection. I merely throw this out as a suggestion. There is no doubt that by the extinction of the system of "one man" management very many of these evils might be removed. I believe the Act we passed last Session, the Free Education Act, will do much in that direction. Through the medium of that Act a very vast improvement has been made even in three months with regard to this system of "one man" management. I have been travelling about the country a good deal, and have been anxious to know how the Act worked, and as a universal result I have found that for the first time there is an active movement now to abolish this system of "one man" management; for the first time the parents are being largely called in to take part in the management of these small Voluntary schools, and in many instances I know that steps have been taken to form a Committee of Managers; and therefore I think so far as these small schools are concerned, Voluntary schools at all events, we shall find a change for the better in regard to that portion of the difficulty. I have very little more to say. I do not think in matters of this kind the Department is ever a gainer by acting like the ostrich in putting his head in the sand, seeing nothing, and knowing nothing. The solid promise I have to make you is this. I have told you the main difficulty the Department may feel in interfering in the appointment and dismissal of teachers, but there is no reason why we should not get all the information in regard to these matters. If you would place any information or correspondence before me, or any suggestions you have to make, I will give them my most careful consideration. I have only one more point to urge, that although of course the Department has interfered, and will propose to interfere, very little indeed as regards the dismissal of teachers by managers, I should like to mention that there are two ways of dismissing a teacher. He may be dismissed for some fault, no doubt, and perhaps in a manner which the teacher might regard as harsh, but I do think there is a distinction between such a case as that, and where a teacher is dismissed and harshly treated as regards his future; where the managers not only dismiss him but refuse to give him a testimonial, or give him such a testimonial as would prevent him getting another situation. When a teacher is treated in that way I think the Department ought to throw the aegis of their protection over him. If he be dismissed without a character, or with one which would injure his future, I think the Department might, on appeal, investigate the circumstances of the case, and, if the managers are found to have acted harshly, do their best to secure the teacher from any injurious consequences to himself. I do not think there is anything more I need say, except to state again that I know there are cases in which some hardship does occur; and to assure you that the Department is ever disposed to lend a willing ear to any genuine grievances which may be brought before them by the great mass of the teachers which are under their care. I have only now to say to you, gentlemen, that I have been very glad to hear what you have had to say, and I think you have urged it temperately and well.

An arrangement having been made by which the facts stated should be substantiated, Mr. Yoxall thanked the Vice-President, and the deputation withdrew.

III.—REPORT ON COMPULSORY EXTRANEIOUS DUTIES.

PREPARED BY ERNEST GRAY AND T. A. ORGAN, B.A.

(Adopted by the Executive on January 9th, 1892.)

“In a school receiving the fee grant no teacher shall be required, as a condition of holding his appointment, to undertake or abstain from any duties out of the ordinary school hours, as shown by the time-table of the school.”

This resolution was proposed by Mr. E. Robertson, M.P., as an amendment to the Elementary Education Act, 1891, and in spite of the opposition of the Government no less than 116 members of the House of Commons, including many prominent Liberals and Liberal Unionists, followed Mr. Robertson into the Lobby in its favour. It was, however, opposed by the Conservatives, although apart from the Vice-President of the Council, only one Conservative member spoke against it. As this resolution was directed against an evil which has long been vigorously condemned by the National Union of Teachers, it is needless to state that Mr. Robertson's effort had the very cordial support of the executive of that union. It is now our duty to justify the position the union has adopted on this question and also to endeavour to remove the ignorance which prevails, not only on the benches of the House, but amongst the general public.

The system which the above resolution sought to destroy is briefly and plainly this. In a very large number of schools throughout the country teachers are compelled, either as a condition of their appointments, or subsequently under pain of dismissal, to undertake nearly every variety of work totally unconnected with their schools. This system of parasitical tasks has been fastened on to the teachers engaged in our Elementary schools; it is injuring the schools, it is numbing the energies of the teacher, and has led, in a very large number of cases, to the misappropriation of public monies. The teacher must be organist, parish clerk, overseer, bellringer, Sunday-school superintendent, school cleaner, secretary to all the clubs and institutes which may exist in the parish, or any combination of these against the position which the union has occupied. First it is said that this system obtains in very few schools indeed, that it may be found here and there about the country, but to so small an extent as not in any way to warrant State interference. The second cry admits that the system does obtain widely, but, in palliation, endeavours to prove that from a manager's point of view, it is essential to the existence of certain classes of schools ; and that from a teacher's standpoint where extraneous work is undertaken it is a means of adding a little to his income, and that this is a condition with which no one has any right to interfere. We will say at once that the union directs its attack solely against compulsory extraneous work. We claim for every teacher absolute freedom to enter into any contract, or to abstain from entering into any contract which prescribes duties apart from school work, always providing that this liberty is not exercised so as to cause injury to the school.

The records of our Law Committee have long shown that this system of compulsory work exists. Many cases of dismissal, instances of years of worry followed by a premature death, have been demonstrated to result from this system. Members of our Executive also in their intercourse with thousands of teachers throughout the country have heard many and many a complaint from the village teacher respecting this extraneous work, but such evidence has been isolated in character, and afforded no sufficient basis for any generalisation as to the extent to which this system prevails. Such general evidence is furnished by an analysis of the advertisements which appear in the educational press. We have before us the details of an analysis of the advertisements which appeared in the Schoolmaster for the year 1890.

One hundred and seventy advertisements demanded as a condition of appointment that the applicant should be prepared to take organ or harmonium at the services ; 68, organ or choir ; 28, organ, choir, and Sunday-school ; 62, organ and Sunday-school ; 67, Sunday-school alone ; and 21, the choir alone. An analysis of those in the School Guardian for the ten weeks ending August 8th, 1891, produces the following figures :—37, organ or harmonium ; 10, organ or choir ; 7, organ, choir, and Sunday-school ; 30, Sunday-school only.

The following are specimens of advertisements which have appeared in the educational journals :—

School Guardian, May 30, 1891.—“Wanted, master with wife, or sister, or daughter, for needlework and lower standards. Distinct churchman. Choir, organ, Sunday-school. Joint salary £125, plus £5 for ‘good’ report or £10 for ‘excellent.’”

Schoolmaster, July 11, 1891.—“Wanted, in August, certificated master for mixed village national school. High churchman, communicant. Must be able to play organ and train choir. Wife or sister to teach needlework. Average attendance, 65. Salary £55 (including salary as organist), half grant and house. Average of grant, £20 to £30. Send references and copies of testimonials.”

School Guardian, Feb. 14, 1891.—“Schoolmaster wanted for village mixed school, near Peterborough. Average attendance, 40. Duties—day and Sunday-school, play organ in church, and take charge of post-office. Remuneration—house, coals, and about £100 a year. Only suitable applications answered. Communicant.”

We have analysed also the advertisements in the Guardian for the same period inserted by teachers seeking situations. There are ninety among them, in which the candidates offer to do other than school duties. Forty-two specify that they will undertake the organ or harmonium, and this usually includes training the choir; fifteen, organ and choir; and six, Sunday-school. The fact that teachers in some instances offer to undertake these duties is further evidence of the extent to which the system prevails: for they recognise that to secure employment as teachers it is better to rely on their willingness to perform extraneous tasks than on professional efficiency.

To obtain even fuller information than that supplied by these analyses, an inquiry on the subject has been made in four districts in England and Wales, by sending to every teacher at work in those districts a few questions, the replies to which are embodied in this report. We have at hand the replies to no less than 1,200 of these forms of inquiry, the complete tabulation of which is given in an appendix to this report. In these returns 749 teachers state that their positions as teachers do not depend on the performance of extraneous duties, while 310 state distinctly that their positions as school teachers do depend on the performance of other work; 27 are doubtful—that is, they have extraneous work, but whether they will have to vacate their positions as teachers, if they withdraw from this work they do not state. We have no reason to doubt that a similar proportion prevails throughout the country. If so, this would give a total of about 12,000 teachers whose chief qualification in the opinion of the Managers for the post of an educator of the young is ability or willingness to act as organist, parish clerk, sweep the walls of the school, or make a plan of the graveyard. If he declined to at once perform any of these duties he would be at once thrown out into the world, no matter how efficiently his duties as a school teacher had been performed.

These figures answer both the objections quoted above. The existence of such a large number of cases warrants the prompt intervention of the Education Department, while the fact that many teachers both in Board and voluntary schools are totally free destroys the argument that such work is essential to either the existence or well-being of any particular school or class of school.

It is sometimes said that this work is freely undertaken by the teachers. This is not the case. In a very large number of voluntary schools, and a not insignificant number of schools under small Boards, the appointment of the teacher is made conditional on his undertaking to perform other duties.

The following are the terms of an agreement between the managers and the teacher of a certain school. It states that the master engages for himself to attend the Sunday-school at a certain church and play the harmonium for the sum of £2. per annum to be paid by the rector; the master and his cousin, who acts as assistant, will be expected to attend the service at another church and there play the harmonium when required and assist in the choir, services being held alternately at the two churches. The assistant also engages to assist in the Sunday-school. Then follows this peculiar clause:—"These clauses respecting Sunday duty at X ——— and Y ——— Church are a private arrangement and do not bind the Board." The harmonium gave place to an organ, and, "when required" was interpreted to mean at "every service." The teacher ventured to point out that this was heavy work for a payment of £2 and in excess of that contemplated in his agreement. The reply was, "If you won't do it I'll get a schoolmaster that will."

In some few cases it appears that these duties fall on the teacher under the terms of old trust deeds. Thus, by a deed which dates from the middle of the last century, the whole of the teacher's time on Sunday is occupied with the children. It is only fair to add that this extraneous work was imposed because the author of the trust deed had in view what he certainly considered to be the good of the children, and provided means for giving effect to his wishes.

The following letters, the originals of which are in our possession, show, however, the conditions which usually obtain. The first instance is that of a voluntary school, and the extraneous work is made a condition of the appointment. It will be noted that no payment whatever is offered for the extraneous work. The salary is paid in one sum, and drawn entirely from the school funds, no separate payment whatever being made for the performance of outside duties. When, too, it is a question of obtaining work from the teacher, the vicar, who appears to be the sole manager of the school, employs the singular pronoun, when reference is made to payment for these duties the plural pronoun is used :—

“DEAR SIR,—I thank you for your reply to my advertisement. There are several points about your application which lead me to think we should get on together. I shall, therefore, be glad if you will kindly send me by return full answers to all my questions, and any other information you may think necessary. Your teaching powers seem undeniably good. What is your manner in school? Are you a thoroughly good disciplinarian, and yet gentle and kind? Do you throw the greatest zest into your religious instruction, and do you try to make those committed to you of a high tone and thoroughly imbued with Church teaching? “What experience have you had in organ playing? I want a really good organist, are you this? When have you accompanied Gregorians? What Psalter was it you used? Have you ever accompanied a choral celebration? Give me fully an account of your organ playing, &c. What voice do you sing? Also give me references of your powers in this. What are your Church views? Enter perfectly, fully, and candidly into this. I want a master who in his own person, and in that of his wife and family will try to exercise an influence for good in them with whom they are brought in contact, whether in school or in (word illegible). Would this be your aim? Are you perfectly temperate? Are you and your wife regular and devout early communicants? Please state what salary you require. If appointed should you be likely to remain with me for some years? I ask this as I very much dislike changes. What does your family consist of? Has Mrs. been accustomed to teach sewing, and what does she do with this when she is laid up? Now I will tell you something about K..... (Here follows a short description of the parish.) There is a beautiful little church, and we have full choral service always, and choral celebrations on the first Sunday in month, and on festivals, singing such offices as Monks, &c. To accompany these requires a perfect command of the organ, as it must be done smoothly and devoutly, and yet with much spirit in places. Is this well within your compass? We also sing Gregorians. My master always takes the Sunday-school, and the present one always helps me by serving at the early celebrations. Have you been accustomed to this? I am anxious to find helpers in whom I can place implicit trust and confidence and who will work thoroughly loyally with me in everything for the good of the church and parish. Such will have all my sympathy and help. Hoping to hear from you by return,

As the teacher was applying for the post of schoolmaster and not that of organist and general parish worker, and as, too, he objected to valuing his devotions to his religious duties in pounds, shillings, and pence, he refrained from replying to this note. A few days after he received the following :—

“ DEAR SIR,—I hope I shall get a long letter from you by to-morrow morning, giving me full replies to all my queries. The salary we purposed giving was at the rate of £90 to May next, the date of our inspection. If the master gives satisfaction, then £95 for the next year, and £100 for the following. Would you care to accept this? Did I tell you in my last letter that the master's wife always attends to the cleaning of the school, &c.? Would Mrs. — object to doing this? If you happen to have a photograph of yourself and wife with you would you mind sending them in your reply? I will see that they are taken care of and returned to you. I shall be glad if you will reply by return without fail, as I expect the appointment will be made on Monday, and I am wishful to have all information at hand. When could you come if you were to be appointed? I may say I have written to Messrs. X—— and Y——, and have got their replies. I hope you will be perfectly candid about your powers as an organist, and also about your Church views. Are you and your wife regular and frequent early communicants? Hoping to hear from you by return,

“ Believe me,

“ Faithfully yours,

The contents of these letters caused this school to lose a thoroughly good master, for the teacher declined to allow himself to be nominated for the office. It is not always, not even frequently, that the applicant has the advantage of knowing the extent of his work before he undertakes the duties, nor is the taskmaster always the vicar of the parish. For downright undiluted tyranny and ignorant presumption no more glaring instances can be found than those under small School Boards in districts removed from the light of publicity. The following is an exact copy of a letter from the Chairman of a School Board to the headmaster of one of the schools under that Board. Comment would be superfluous.

"DEAR SIR,—In reply to your note you will see I have signed the shedules as you wished, as for the fees Book I know nothing about it if you have lost it you must do your Best to find it, as for cleaning the school you will either have to clean it or get some one els to clean it for you the board will pay nothing our Master and Mrs is cleaning our school and you will have to do the same or pay for it and it will have to be don before the examination it needs it

"Yours faithfully,

"Pleas Sir you were as likely to know as me that their would not be another Board Meeting before the examination."

In many cases the fact that this work is required from the teacher is stated in the advertisement, and it is worth noticing that generally the amount of salary varies inversely, as the amount of work to be performed ; and that those who ask the teacher to devote every day of the week to either school or extraneous work sometimes offer an inclusive salary smaller than that paid to a road sweeper. Here are two which have appeared in the Schoolmaster recently :—

"Latter end of September. Assistant Mistress for mixed school. Art. 50 or 84. Geography and English essential. Sunday-school. Salary £25 per annum. Address with testimonials."

"Required immediately, Female Ex.-P.T. Infants. About 32. Kindergarten. Help needlework and assist generally. Singing. Churchwoman. Sunday-school. £30."

In other cases, nothing is said about the matter until the teacher is before the board of managers, and then he is asked if he will occasionally give some assistance in this, that, or the other direction. He consents, and finds that the work, instead of being occasional, rests entirely on his shoulders, and that he dare not absent himself without the risk of being dismissed—in fact, that his office as teacher literally depends upon the performance of the work in which he was asked to occasionally assist. In other instances, no mention is made of these extra duties until the teacher is actually in school. First one parish official, then another, comes to the teacher, and asks him to undertake certain duties. The teacher soon finds that every moment of his time is occupied. Should he protest, he is told that if he will not perform our hands, 231 teachers state that the extraneous are engaged, formed part of their contracts, it was imposed on them subsequent to appointment—part of the work was mentioned at the initial labours have been subsequently imposed. Now managers of schools in some instances, while they have neither moral nor legal right to demand yet try, and that successfully, to impose it on the teacher. Thus we find such phrases as the following in letters of appointment—"You will be expected to take a voluntary interest in the Sunday-school and choir." Had it read "Your appointment depends on your acting as Sunday-school superintendent, Sunday-school teacher, and choir master," the statement would at least have merited the adjective "candid." It is said that where mention is made of the extraneous duties their appointments, they have the matter in issue to accept the situation, under the specification this is true, and it would be entirely apply and demand had free play in the for Elementary schools. As it is, the manufacturing teachers regardless of the as grades of certificates have been issued and the managers of schools hardly know the difference between them. Should, therefore, one well-qualified man decline the post under the conditions of extraneous work, the managers have little difficulty in finding some other person whose educational certificate is based on inferior qualifications and who, therefore, will accept any conditions in order to secure employment. Thus the requirements for extraneous work may be satisfied, but the educational progress suffers through the appointment of a less skilled teacher. Good teachers do frequently refuse these appointments, but there are nearly always men and women, who owing to the crowded state of the market, are prepared to accept these positions, sacrifice the educational welfare of the children, and sell their own liberty, rather than go begging about the country with first class certificates in their pockets.

These duties he must give up his school, in order to make room for someone who will.

In order to show how closely the teacher's tenure of office depends upon the performance of extraneous work our Form of Inquiry contained a question on this point. No less than 234 teachers, as the result of this limited inquiry, declared emphatically that withdrawal from extraneous work would result in dismissal from their schools; 41 believe that they might withdraw from their work without danger to their official position; while no less than 72 state that although dismissal might not instantly follow, yet their work in their schools would be made so utterly uncomfortable that they would sooner or later be compelled to resign, or, failing that, some trivial fault would be found and used as a pretext for securing dismissal. In fact, one is almost driven to the conclusion that in many cases the schools exist not for the education of the children, but in order to provide the parish with a "man-of-all-work" at no cost to the parochial funds. Case after case of appointment comes before us in which, as in that referred to in the letter quoted above, hardly a single word is said about the man's ability as a teacher, and the appointment is given to the candidate who will the most willingly consent to conditions of the most abject servitude. That service as an educator has little to do with the appointment and retention of teachers is exemplified in the following case—This is an exact copy of a letter received from the late master of a Wesleyan school.—

"After eighteen months' service, obtaining the 'Excellent' merit grant and two good reports, the minister suddenly discovered that I was too young (twenty-eight years) for the post. He therefore took steps to obtain my dismissal. My predecessor was local preacher, Sunday-school superintendent, steward, class leader, &c. My successor is 'ditto.' I am not so gifted, though I regularly undertook Sunday duty. The minister acknowledged (I have it in writing) that the cause of my dismissal was totally foreign to school work, 'and my character has been irreproachable,' says the minister's testimonial."

During the debate in the House of Commons a statement was made by one of the members to the effect that these duties provided a means by which the teachers added a little to their incomes. To those who heard that statement and knew the real facts this was most amusing; but to others it appeared a conclusive argument in favour of maintaining the present position. To the question, "Do you receive any payment for this work?" no less than 241 teachers answer emphatically, "No." Others state that it is included in their salaries as teachers. In some instances a payment is made, but so microscopic that it needs viewing through the glass of dire need in order to be discernible. We have taken one of the instances supplied, and from it have calculated the amount per hour which the teacher receives for work which occupies nearly every moment of his spare time. It comes to 1½d. per hour, less than the wage of an errand boy. But even this is munificent compared with the 0d. per hour usually paid. We quote a few instances of the amounts awarded. £8 for choir and Sunday school for eight years' work, or about 5d. per Sunday. £3 per annum for Sunday school and organ. A salary of £1 per week for day school, training the choir, and playing the organ; in fact for perpetual work, for this man's duties are never finished. From year's end to year's end, week-day and Sunday, he is at work for a wage less than that paid by a suburban vestry to their dustmen, who, indeed, would at once organise and strike if any attempt were made to rob them of the one day's rest or to extend their hours of labour during the remainder of the week.

The smallness of the amounts paid is not, however, the most serious complaint which must lie against the economic conditions surrounding this question. We are told that if no specific payment is made, it is "considered in the question of salary" when the teacher is appointed. What does this mean? From what sources is the teacher's salary derived? In a very great measure from public funds provided by the State and the various localities, to be devoted solely and entirely to educational purposes. From a recent Parliamentary return it is shown that there are many schools where the total income is derived from the public funds, not a single penny coming from other sources, and yet part of this money is actually used as payment for the performance of duties, entirely unconnected with the educational work.

The recent introduction of the system of "free" or "assisted" education has rendered this question of the mal-administration of public funds even more serious than formerly. The local contribution in the shape of subscriptions and fees was often pleaded as a justification, when extraneous duties were demanded from the teacher. Money drawn from the public purse has now, in many instances, replaced the sums raised locally. Even this plea has in numberless instances been removed. The new Act has also facilitated the imposition of these extraneous duties in another way. The evil has always been most prevalent where "one-man management" obtains. The existence of a committee is a curb to autocracy. The number of schools under this autocratic management will increase as the necessity for obtaining local contribution decreases, and the already absolute manager will be secured in his position, and more free to make unjustifiable demands upon the energies and time of the teacher.

In some cases the whole village knows that the organist or assistant overseer is paid out of the school funds, but care is taken that this information is carefully concealed from the Government officials. "Salary of teacher" appears in the annual return to the Education Department made by the managers of the school. Not a single word is added to indicate that this salary also covers a multitude of employments absolutely removed from the purpose, for which the money was granted by the State. We give one or two authentic cases illustrating this condition. A teacher writes :—

“My application was made to the vicar, who is chairman and also clerk, gratuitously to the Board. After I had been here some little time he told me that £17 per annum of my salary was left by some lady for my teaching in the Sunday-school. I am working under a School Board, and the members must know that I take the Sunday-school, although it has never been mentioned officially. The £17 has never been offered, only the vicar told me that I receive it in my salary.”

In this case the teacher is at work under a small School Board. One of the conditions of the appointment is, that she must teach in the Sunday-school, or, instead of receiving the present salary of £40 and half the Government Grant, must accept a payment of £23 and half the Government Grant.

In another case a subscriber offers to make an annual grant to the school on condition that a corresponding amount is raised by the locality. The locality, however, objects unless some specific duty can be obtained from the teacher in return for its local subscription. He is therefore appointed Assistant Overseer, and a rate is levied on the district. To meet the requirements of the Local Government Board the produce of this rate is entered as salary of assistant overseer. As a matter of fact, however, it is also reckoned a subscription to the school, and is entered on the return to the Education Department as part of the salary paid to the master. The master is compelled to give two different receipts, one to satisfy Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools, and the other the auditor of the Local Government Board. In some few cases, individual persons make special grants in payment for offices performed by the teacher, but instead of this being paid direct to the teacher it goes as a subscription to the school and is included in the general statement of the teacher's salary. What is the effect of this? It figures in the return as a contribution from the locality for educational purposes, and is met by a similar contribution from the State. In numberless cases, the State aid to elementary schools is increased, or, in other words, the “17s. 6d. limit” is fictitiously raised by the balance sheet including amounts which have been given for services altogether apart from the schools. We cannot press this point too strongly on the attention of the general public. We do not hesitate to say that in many schools the accounts are falsified in order to allow of either illegal expenditure, or to obtain from the State increased pecuniary support. The following extract speaks for itself :—

A young girl fresh from training college sent out with a high ideal of a teacher's work finds in reality, that the difficulties of the school are rendered more acute by the loss of her only opportunity of obtaining rest or of undertaking some congenial occupation. One thus writes :—

“ In the majority of small schools the mistress has no assistance whatever. Keeping forty children at work, infants to Standard VI., with all the work on her hands, she has no time to prepare in school the many things which are needed week by week. Her only free day, Saturday, is occupied in preparing the children's needlework, and then the week is gone with never a day of rest, and the Sunday duties begin the routine again.”

The requirements of extraneous work will not even recognise the teacher's failing health. In one instance the teacher is called upon to perform Sunday-school work, act as choirmaster, and read the lessons in church. Under medical advice he wrote to the vicar asking permission to resign the Sunday-school duties. The reply he received was, “ If you give up the Sunday-school you must resign the day school.” Since then several attempts have been made to place additional work on the teacher, who has already suffered in health through the heavy strain caused by work for which he receives not a single farthing.

Again we ask, “ How can a teacher in this condition efficiently perform his school work ? ” If his contract were a free one he would at once resign the extraneous work and devote himself to the school entirely, with every reasonable hope of regaining his health. So the teacher's life continues. Weighed down by extraneous work, reprimanded in every direction, because of his inability to perform duties which are totally beyond the strength of any one man, he struggles on, until at last some difficulty, greater than usual, compels him to resign the extraneous work. The man then pleads in vain years of efficient work in the school, perfect reports from Her Majesty's Inspector, the affectionate regard of his scholars, and the sympathy of the whole parish. The “ one-man manager ” possessing absolute security of tenure himself, turns the teacher adrift. We quote one instance only :—On February 23rd, 1891, a teacher asks to be relieved from Sunday work. On the very same date the following letter is written by the vicar and signed by four other managers. The original letter is before us as we write :—

“ Dear Sir,—Under the circumstances, connected with your resignation as organist and choirmaster, the managers of the school are of opinion that a complete change is both necessary and desirable. We, the undersigned, managers of the school hereby give you three months' notice, according to the terms of the agreement, dated 31st of August, 1886. Should you, however, wish to leave before the expiration of that period, if we are then suited, we have no wish to stand in your way of obtaining an appointment."

Not only are the educational conditions injuriously affected by frequent dismissals resulting from extraneous duties, but in addition to dismissals, further disturbance arises by the resignations of teachers, owing to their inability to perform various duties thrust on them. By the time the teacher has become accustomed to the children, he has found the position intolerable. A change occurs and education of the school is thrown back at least six months.

This system is also fraught with serious danger to the organisations under which it flourishes. It is one of the evils of the small School Boards, and will, without doubt, assist in their early extinction. In Church of England Schools it is resulting in loss and damage to the Church. Good teachers are avoiding these schools. One of our correspondents writes: "I have no extraneous work. Although I am a churchman I have avoided these schools all my life solely on account of extraneous duties." Several of our correspondents state that if they are driven out of the Church schools and taught to detest the Church itself, it will be on account of the inhuman way in which the clergymen have rendered their lives unbearable by compulsory extraneous work, and by the brusque manner in which that work has been frequently imposed. Were not the letters, the original letters, before us, signed by these task masters, it would be impossible to give credence to the statements descriptive of the manner in which these duties are placed on teachers' shoulders, or the coarse reprimand which follows the very slightest of failings, the teacher being roughly reminded that he must "see those fires are lighted, accept the secretaryship of every new institution," and learn "to obey the commands of every member of the vicar's family, or else be turned out of his school."

One teacher writes thus:—

"I have tried to obtain Church schools without Sunday duties, but to no purpose. 'Church playing, said one parson,' 'is here more important than school duties. I know your qualifications are good, and you are an excellent teacher, but I want a professional organist.' So I did not get the situation. One wants a tenor and another a bass voice. I shall leave the dear old Church schools the first chance, and get a Board School situation."

Those who have really at heart the maintenance of the Voluntary system in English villages should arouse themselves to the fact that

Many of these schools are being so grossly mismanaged that sooner or later control will be taken from those who are misusing it, and possibly serious injury may fall upon those schools where educational work is being done under the most improved condition, simply because they are classed under the same denomination.

It might reasonably be expected that in schools where so much is required of the teacher, should he have any time left at his disposal, no objection would be offered to his undertaking occupations for which he may have an inclination. It not infrequently happens, however, that where the greatest number of duties is imposed on the teacher he is a perfect stranger to ideas of political or civil liberty. Private lessons he is forbidden to undertake; he dare not approach the polling booth but for the secrecy of the ballot box. Any attempt to exercise the ordinary privileges and responsibilities of the English citizen is regarded as unwarrantable impudence on his part. We have known cases where the teachers have not dared to state to which political party they belong; and yet the hedger and ditcher in the same village enjoys the privilege of absolute freedom. In the returns before us, abstracted, it will be recollected, from about 1,000 replies, no less than 94 state that any attempt on their part to exercise the ordinary responsibility of citizens would seriously prejudice their position as teachers, while a further 77 state that their tenure of office would be rendered doubtful. Together, these form about one-sixth of the total number. The position in Wales cannot be better described than by quoting a letter from one of the teachers engaged in the Principality. He writes—

"This School Board is just large enough to secure freedom for the teachers under it, except that I should not care to actively work on, say, a Conservative or Church platform; but I opine that all who do these things in Radical Wales suffer more or less. So teachers are not thereby specially marked. To deal at the shop of one local manager, or listen to the prayers of the preaching dedly marks of grace in the character of the place, but are not generally absolutely necessary. Again, if he fought for the retention of the h just round here he would probably be severely gbouring members for other marks of laxity of ey could report duly and legally at their next ould be better, too, for his professional advancement not to be a rating councillor amongst the dames of the Primrose League."

"In fact, in England, and in Wales too, its districts remote from large towns, dismissal is by no means an infrequent result on any attempt on the part of the teacher to take part in political or municipal work. The result is that many of our schools are officered by men and women whose life is one dull cycle of work in school, choir, vestry, school-cleaning, book-keeping, and Sunday duty. Their lives are passed in the atmosphere of childhood, with the result that such teachers tend to become men and women of cramped views, narrow minds, and nervous character. How can such teachers exercise a wholesome influence on the children? Children cannot go out into the world with any idea of English freedom or of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, when their training has depended on one whose spirit has been crushed, and whose every idea of liberty has been annihilated.

The position which we have described is one of the greatest blots on our educational system, and we recommend the Executive, in the interest of education generally, to urge upon the educational authorities and the public the necessity for securing to all teachers in our Elementary schools perfect liberty either to undertake or to abstain from all other work apart from that connected with their duties as school teachers. We believe that engagement in a work in which the teacher shows an interest and inclination tends to cultivate broader views, better judgment, a greater insight into character, and increases self-possession and self-confidence, in dealing with the children at school. Many men who have held prominent positions in public life have been amongst the most skilful and successful of our teachers in Elementary schools. On the other hand, our evidence leaves no doubt that to compel a man against his will to undertake work to which he objects, for which he has no aptitude, and which he only performs as a species of slavery, can only result in the destruction of the manliness of the teacher, and be a complete obstacle to the satisfactory training of the children in those higher principles of education which should be the great aim of every true teacher.

Our desire has been to lay before the Executive only such proposals as will commend themselves to public opinion, in other words proposals which will be so favourably received, that the Education Department may during the next Session take steps to carry them out. These proposals, viewed exclusively from the teacher's standpoint, may appear to have elements of weakness, but we are fully persuaded that the greatest good for the greatest number can be obtained only by making demands which are moderate, the very moderation of which will carry conviction. The Executive resolved that the Education Department be memorialised to take such steps as may be necessary to amend the Elementary Education Acts or Orders in Council in order to carry out the following recommendations :—

I.—That the parish should be no longer maintained as the unit for the organisation of our rural School system, but that areas should be substituted with a minimum limit of population to be afterwards fixed.

II.—That notwithstanding anything contained in the 35th Section of the Elementary Education Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vic. c. 75), or in any Act amending the same, and notwithstanding any custom existing as to the appointment or dismissal of teachers in public elementary schools, no teacher, whose appointment has been recognised by the Education Department, may be removed from his office save and except in manner following, that is to say—

Any notice for the dismissal of a teacher must be specifically stated on the agenda, to be issued not less than four clear days to every member of the Board or committee of managers, and must be agreed to by a two-thirds majority of the School Board in the case of Board Schools, and of the committee of management in the case of voluntary schools, and shall take effect three calendar months after date in the case of a head teacher, and one calendar month after date in the case of an assistant teacher.

III.—Every voluntary school receiving grants in aid to be under the management of a committee of not less than seven persons. If, under existing deeds of trust, no provision is made for the appointment of a school committee, the existing trustees, subscribers, or managers to be required to appoint a school committee of any number of not less than seven.

IV.—Every voluntary school committee to meet regularly, and to conduct its business in accordance with the following schedule of regulations to be appended to the Education Acts :—

(1) Every school committee shall meet at least once a month except during two months of the year. Minutes of all proceedings of the committee shall be recorded in a book provided for the purpose, no business to be transacted if a quorum be not present ; three to form a quorum.

(2) Each school committee shall appoint a chairman, a treasurer, and a secretary. Not more than one of these offices to be held by the same person. The accounts and the receipt for the share of the Government grant to be signed by at least three managers.

(3) All accounts and minutes of the committee shall be open to the inspection of the Education Department, and all receipts for salaries shall be given in accordance with the form appended.

“Received from the Managers of — School the sum of — pounds in payment of one —’s salary for duties performed solely as schoolm— of the said — school.

“Signed———.”

(4) If at any time a vacancy shall occur in a school committee which reduces the number of members to less than seven, it shall be filled up by those qualified to appoint within a period of two calendar months.

V.—That, before payment of the Education and Fee Grants to any school, the Education Department shall require three of the managers to sign a declaration (to be appended to Form IX.) that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, the sums which are entered in the balance sheet as expended in salaries have been wholly and entirely expended in payment for duties performed directly connected with the school, and that all other sums so entered have been likewise actually expended for purposes only in direct connection with the schools.

VI.—That a new clause be added to Art. 85 of the Code. That the appointment of any teacher employed in the school does not depend on the performance of, or the abstention from, any duties other than those in connection with the subjects named on the Time Table of the school, together with the instruction of pupil teachers.

VII.—That the following question be added to Form 9:—

“Does the appointment of any teacher employed in the school depend on the performance of or the abstention from any duties other than those shown on the time table of the school, together with the instruction of pupil teachers?”

(Replies to be furnished by managers and teachers).

IV.—PETITION ON FACTORIES AND WORKSHOPS BILL.

TO THE HONOURABLE THE COMMONS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.

The Humble Petition of the National Union of Teachers.

SHEWETH,

That your petitioners, the members of the National Union of Teachers, representing more than 16,000 of the teachers of Elementary Schools in England and Wales, humbly pray your Honourable House to take into consideration the following suggestions for the amendment of the Factories and Workshops Bill now under the consideration of the Standing Committee on Trade:—

1. That in the interests of education and of labour, so long as the half-time system exists no half-time certificate should be issued to a child under twelve years of age, and no full time certificate to a child under fourteen years of age, and that an attendance qualification should be insisted upon.
2. That it is desirable that a medical certificate of fitness for the employment of children in factories and workshops should still be required.

Your petitioners would respectfully point out that under the Factory and Workshops Act there were, in the year 1890, 73,819 children employed, and of this number 41,832 or 57 per cent. were employed in Lancashire, 24,359 or 33 per cent. in Yorkshire, and 4,097 or 5 per cent. in Cheshire, leaving 3,531 or nearly 5 per cent. employed in the remaining counties of England and Wales.

From a census taken in a number of schools in Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Leicestershire, it has been ascertained that 28 per cent. of the children employed were below 11 years of age, 36 per cent. between 11 and 12, and 36 per cent. over 12 years of age.

It will thus be seen on this basis that by adopting the suggestions of your petitioners 17,000 children would reap the advantages of full attendance at school for two years longer, and 26,000 for one year longer than under the existing system.

From the Educational Blue Book for 1890, your petitioners gather that between 1888 and 1889, 167,742 children left school after passing the Fourth Standard; 175,524 after passing the Fifth Standard; and in view of the demand for the Technical Education of the British workman, your petitioners ask that the age for leaving school for full time labour be raised to 14.

Your petitioners would further draw the attention of your honourable House to the evil effects of early labour on the mental capacity and physique of children. It is the invariable experience of teachers that the mental receptivity of a child, so far as his school work is concerned, becomes impaired on his commencing half-time labour, a fact which your honourable House has recognised in paragraph 14 of the Instructions to Her Majesty's Inspectors in the New Code of 1891. In connection with this point, your petitioners have observed that Sir William Hart-Dyke, in the House of Commons on April 16th, in reply to a question from Mr. Lees, as to the percentage of passes of children attending school under the half-time system, between the age of 10 and 12, as compared with those obtained by other children of the same age, said: "A comparison in the Oldham and Rochdale districts for 1890, shows that the general percentage of passes was 90 against 77·4 in the case of half-timers. In seven Board Schools in Rochdale, the difference was 9·5 per cent. against the half-timers, and in ten Board Schools in Oldham, 6·7 per cent. In Blackburn, during the year 1888, the difference against the half-timers was 12 per cent, and in Darwen 11·5 per cent."

Quoting from the Annual Report of the Bolton Operative Cotton Spinners, your petitioners find these words: "In addition to these disadvantages, he has to labour in a temperature ranging from 80° to 110° Fah., and in a vitiated atmosphere which is not completely changed even once a week. These conditions render him peculiarly liable to contracting chest complaints and rheumatic affections." Further, in a statement recently made by Captain Brewer, H.M. Inspector of Factories for the Bolton District, your petitioners find the following words: "A large number of young female children, again, especially in the outlying districts, are employed as doffers, an occupation which raises doubts in my mind as to whether it is, under the circumstances, calculated to promote morality." And, in a statement made by Messrs. W. Knowles & Son, Hartford Mill, Bolton, it is found that "children in factories are always liable to injury, and that at the present time there are boys in the warehouse practically pensioners on the firm in consequence of accidents sustained at a tender age in the mill."

Your petitioners beg further to state that the prevalence of half-time labour in factories in the manufacturing districts is accompanied by a similar proportion of half-time attendance at school under the Education Act, encouraged by employers on account of the cheapness of child labour, and utilised by the parents because of the prevailing opinion that at ten years of age children should be wage earners. In support of this statement the following table is submitted :—

	Total No. of children over 10 years of age.	Total No. of Half-Timers under Fac- tory Act.	Percentage.	Total No. of Half-Timers under Edu- cation Act.	Percentage.
Lancashire	195,120	41,832	57	47,402	49
Yorkshire	175,053	24,359	33	23,416	24
Cheshire	36,504	4,097	5	5,542	6
Rest of England and Wales	1,003,959	3,531	5 nearly	20,507	21
	1,410,636	73,819	—	96,867	—

Your petitioners would further urge that, in order to make the qualification for labour possible for every child, and to realise the improved educational system attainable under the New Code, regularity of attendance at school should be the qualification accompanying that of age in lieu of the present qualification.

Your petitioners further support the recommendation of the International Labour Conference at Berlin that no child under twelve years of age should be employed in factories.

And, lastly, your Petitioners pray that Your Honourable House will carry out the following recommendation of the Royal Commission on Education—

“That the Clause (appearing on page 166 of the Report of the Committee of Council, 1885-6) which directed Her Majesty's Inspectors to explain to school authorities that a child is bound to attend school full time, whenever it is not beneficially and necessarily employed, and that a bona fide half-timer means a child who is legally at work when not at school, should be re-inserted in the annual instructions to Inspectors.”

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

Signed on behalf of and by order of the Executive of the National Union of Teachers,

V.—CIRCULAR LETTER AND MEMORANDUM ON FACTORIES AND WORKSHOPS BILL.

71, RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.,
June 1st, 1891.

SIR,

In view of Mr. Sydney Buxton's amendment to the Factories and Workshops Bill (as amended in committee) for raising the age at which young children may be employed in factories and workshops, I have the honour to forward for your information a copy of a memorandum on the subject prepared by this Society.

As the question is one affecting the education of a large number of young children, I trust you may see your way to support the proposal of Mr. Buxton now on the orders of the House for raising the age at which children may be employed in factories and workshops.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

CHARLES JAMES, Acting Secretary.

MEMORANDUM ON FACTORIES AND WORKSHOPS BILL.

(Prohibition of Employment of Young Children.)

The National Union of Teachers (representing more than 16,000 teachers) at their Annual Conference in Cardiff during Easter week adopted the following resolution :—

"That in the interests of Education and of Labour, so long as the Half-time system exists no Half-time Certificate should be issued to a child under twelve years of age, and no Full-time Certificate to a child under fourteen years of age, and that an attendance qualification should be insisted upon."

REASONS FOR RAISING THE AGE.

1.—Longer school life for a large number of children.

17,000 would attend school two years longer.

26,000 would attend school one year longer.

STATEMENTS IN SUPPORT.

Under the Factory and Workshops Act there were, in the year 1890, 73,819 children employed, and of this number 41,832, or 57 per cent., were employed in Lancashire; 24,359, or 33 per cent., in Yorkshire; and 4,097, or 5 per cent., in Cheshire; leaving 3,531, or nearly 5 per cent., employed in the remaining counties of England and Wales.

From a census in a number of schools in Lancashire, Yorkshire and Leicestershire, it has been ascertained that 28 per cent. of the children employed were below 11 years of age, 36 per cent. between 11 and 12, and 36 per cent. over 12 years of age. It will thus be seen on this basis that by adopting the suggestions now made, 17,000 children would reap the advantages of full attendance at school for two years longer, and 26,000 for one year longer, than under the existing system.

Dr. Torrop (Certifying Factory Surgeon for Heywood, Lancashire) states "that the general health and physique of factory children is distinctly inferior to that of other young people in the country. He had before him eight children, 10 to 13 years old, none of whom weighed 50 lbs. The healthy, bright child of 10 degenerates into the sallow weakling of 13, and the deterioration of our industrial population, especially in mills, has become a real source of danger to the nation. . . . It is the hot, foul, dust-laden atmosphere of the factories which is so disastrous to health."

Captain Brewer (H.M. Inspector of Factories, Bolton District) "questions whether the employment of young children at such an early age as under eleven is desirable when their occupation necessitates a standing position for something like six hours per diem when on the morning turn."

The Annual Report of the Bolton Operative Cotton Spinners contains the following paragraph: "In addition to these disadvantages, he has to labour in a temperature ranging 2.—Improvement of children physically.

General health and physique inferior.

Injury by long standing.

Liability to accident.

Liability to disease from hot, foul, dust-laden atmosphere.

3.—Improvement of Children Mentally and Morally.

Percentage of passes lower than full-timers.

Children become dull.

Are too sleepy for intellectual work.

Are physically exhausted.

Moral qualities degenerate.

from 80° to 110° Fah., and in a vitiated atmosphere which is not completely changed even once a week. These conditions render him peculiarly liable to contracting chest complaints and rheumatic affections."

In a statement made by Messrs. W. Knowles & Son, Hartford Mill, Bolton, it is found that "children in factories are always liable to injury, and that at the present time there are boys in the warehouse practically pensioners on the firm in consequence of accidents sustained at a tender age in the mill."

It is the invariable experience of teachers that the mental receptivity of a child, so far as his school work is concerned, becomes impaired on his commencing half-time labour, a fact which the Government has recognised in paragraph 14 of the Instructions to Her Majesty's Inspectors in the New Code of 1891.

Sir William Hart-Dyke, in the House of Commons on April 16th, in reply to a question from Mr. Lees as to the percentage of passes of children attending school under the half-time system between the age of ten and twelve, as compared with those obtained by other children of the same age, said, "A comparison in the Oldham and Rochdale districts for 1890, shows that the general percentage of passes was 90, against 77·4 in the case of half-timers. In seven Board Schools in Rochdale the difference was 9·5 per cent. against the half-timers, and in ten Board Schools in Oldham 6·7 per cent. In Blackburn, during the year 1888 the difference against the half-timers was 12 per cent., and in Darwen 11·5 per cent."

Further, in a statement recently made by Captain Brewer, H.M.I. of Factories for the Bolton District, the following words appear: "A large number of young female children again, especially in the outlying districts, are employed as doffers, an occupation which raises doubts in my mind as to whether it is, under the circumstances, calculated to promote morality."

Mr. T. P. Sykes, Bradford (in Bradford Observer), writes:—"What is the experience of teachers as they watch children (half-timers) advance in the school from Standard III. upwards? Too often it is that the quick, bright, intelligent boy or girl of Standard III. becomes the dull, stolid, I had almost said stupid, child of Standards IV. and V.; and the child cannot be blamed. It would be easy to give scores and hundreds of instances in proof of this. . . . If there be any truth in the old adage, mens sana in corpore sano, these children's minds, dulled by early work in the factory, are a correct index to their physical and moral natures, and they form a standing reproach to the present system of half-time child labour at ten years of age."

Mr. Baxendale, Bradford (in evidence before the Education Commission)—"I think it (half-time labour) is very detrimental to their intellectual activity. The fact is, it is difficult to keep them awake sometimes, not to speak of the additional difficulty of any intellectual work being done. . . . They are obstinate and their moral qualities degenerate very much. . . . They are physically exhausted before coming to school."

From a report of one of H.M. Inspectors of Schools.—"I find that almost all the teachers and managers agree in describing a certain change that comes over the children when they become half-timers. They are said to grow careless and indifferent about their work, more independent in their behaviour, and less diligent in application. . . . The system works unfavourably for the children intellectually, physically, and morally."

Mr. Mundella.—"The idea that a child of ten obtains technical education by being driven to the mill as a half-timer is one of the most preposterous fallacies ever trotted out by an interested class to hoodwink the community."

The Schoolmaster.—"It was high time someone qualified by experience should come forward and nail to the counter as a shamefaced fraud the statement that half-time labour is merely a species of attractive and agreeable technical training."

VI.—AMENDMENTS TO ELEMENTARY EDUCATION BILL, 1891.

71, RUSSELL SQUARE, LONDON, W.C.,
June 27th, 1891.

SIR,

We beg to invite your attention to the following Amendments to the Elementary Education Bill, which are suggested by the Executive of the National Union of Teachers. We have added to each Amendment some of the reasons which, in our opinion, make such Amendments desirable.

We have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servants,

ERNEST GRAY, Chairman of Parliamentary Committee.
CHARLES JAMES, Acting Secretary.

SUGGESTED AMENDMENTS.

Clause 1, page 1, line 10 : leave out " ten " and insert " eleven."

Schools paying 3d. per week form 25 per cent. of total. They are open, as a rule, forty-four weeks per year. With Ten Shillings grant there will be a loss of One Shilling per unit of average attendance in such Schools.

To make a charge of One Penny per head would raise a larger sum than the Bill allows, and, under Clause 1, Sub-section 2, the fee grant would be diminished by the amount of such excess, and thus the State-aid lessened at the expense of the locality.

Clause 1, page 1, lines 10 and 11 : leave out " of the number of children over five and under fourteen years of age."

N.B.—The following Clauses would also require amendment in accordance with this suggestion—

Clause 2, page 2, lines 10 and 11.

Age is a most unsatisfactory basis of classification for educational work.

If parents have to pay for children between three and five they will keep them at home.

The elder children will then be required to "mind" them and will lose their education.

Apart from mere instruction, children between three and five acquire habits of discipline and self-restraint which render them better fitted for the other work of the Infants' School.

Should Schools in order to retain these children admit them free and receive no fee grant, the Schools will suffer serious financial loss.

To demand a fee from a child of fourteen, after a free attendance of at least nine years, would at once drive such children away.

To fix fourteen as the limit for paying grant will be construed by the parents as an intimation that the child's education is completed at that age.

After Clause 1, sub-section 1, page 1, line 15, insert: "This grant shall be paid to each School in four instalments, one at the beginning of each quarter of the School year, and shall be based upon the average attendance for the School year immediately preceding. Should the amount thus paid be greater or less than the amount allowed under this Act, the fee grant paid in the first quarter of the School year shall be diminished or increased accordingly."

Fees are now paid weekly or quarterly in advance and are at once used.

The delay of even three months in the payment of the fee grant would result in financial embarrassment, and consequent educational loss.

Clause 1, after sub-section 1, add: "The receipt for this grant shall be signed by the Treasurer and at least two other fully-qualified managers of the School or members of the School Board."

There are schools practically under the control of one person, and the provisions of this Bill will tend to increase their number.

This grant will, in some instances, make this "one person" even more independent of local assistance.

It is desirable that local interest in educational work should be increased by adequate management.

The demand that the receipt should be signed by at least three managers would secure that such number existed.

Clause 2, page 2, line 2: leave out "received" and insert "charged."

Clause 2, page 2, line 2: after "fees" insert "whether received or remitted."

Many Schools have largely remitted fees to meet the poverty of parents.

Had these parents been driven to the Board of Guardians, the fees would have been paid out of the Poor Rate and could then be counted as income.

Thus Board or Voluntary Managers who have dealt hardly with the parents will receive a permanent income.

Those, however, who have remitted fees will have that loss made permanent. The proposed amendment would meet this difficulty.

Clause 2, page 2, line 13: leave out all words after "excess" to end of sub-section (a) and insert "the average annual fee to be charged after the commencement of this Act shall not, except as in this Act provided, be greater than the excess of the average annual fee per child charged by the School, whether received or remitted, during the School year ended last before the first day of July, 1891, over the sum of Ten Shillings per child."

The clause as drafted produces the following result: Fee grant plus fees charged shall never exceed total fees received for the year specified.

But the income is supposed to vary with the average: the higher the average the higher the income.

The amendment removes the words "total amount," and makes it possible for the income to vary directly as the average attendance.

Clause 2, page 2, line 17: after "excess" insert—"This clause shall not apply to any excess which is less than one Penny per unit of attendance per week."

To raise an amount equal to last year's fee income many Schools would need to charge a fractional part of a penny.

This is impossible.

They will charge the next higher unit.

That will produce a total greater than the Bill allows. The fee grant would then be diminished by that excess—that is, the locality will be robbed to benefit the State.

The amendment provides that any excess raised through the operation of the fractional part of a penny shall remain part of the income of the school without diminution of the fee grant.

Clause 3, page 3, line 2: after "payment of fees," insert "provided that in any school where children are admitted free under this clause the resulting reduction of the average fee shall be made good by a corresponding increase of the fee grant."

At present the guardians say: "This parent cannot afford to pay. Its fees are paid out of the poor-rate, or the School Board remits the fee, and, in effect, pays the fee out of the rate."

Under the Bill, the Department will say: "These children must have free places." Who will pay the loss resulting from the provision of such free places? As the Department has been the judge of the necessity, the State should pay for the resulting loss.

Clause 4: Leave out the clause.

VII.—MEMORIAL ON APPOINTMENT OF INSPECTORS.

TO THE RIGHT HON. THE VISCOUNT CRANBROOK, G.C.S.I., LORD PRESIDENT;
THE RIGHT HON. SIR WILLIAM HART-DYKE, BART., M.P., VICE-PRESIDENT; AND THE LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON EDUCATION.

THE MEMORIAL OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE NATIONAL UNION OF TEACHERS

SHEWETH,

1. That your Memorialists, representing over 16,000 of the teachers employed in public elementary schools, respectfully submit that the teachers have for many years urged that the office of Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools should be open to teachers who have had adequate practical experience in the work of an elementary school.
2. That, among the recommendations of the majority of the Royal Commission on Education was the following :—

“That, while the public service requires Inspectors to be men of wide and liberal training, it is neither fair nor wise to prevent elementary teachers from rising to the rank of Inspectors, and that the opening to such teachers of the highest offices in connexion with education would tend to elevate the tone and character of their profession.”
3. That the report of the minority of the Royal Commission not only expressed generally their agreement with the recommendations of the majority with regard to this subject, but laid special stress on the proposal to open all ranks of the Inspectorate to teachers in elementary schools, and on the importance of securing that Inspectors shall have had practical experience as teachers.
4. That experienced teachers in elementary schools have been appointed Inspectors by the London and other large School Boards in the country.
5. That many of the certificated teachers who have had considerable practical experience in the work of elementary schools are eminently fitted to discharge the duties of the office; and that such appointments would, by opening out a career for the best qualified teachers, tend to raise the tone of the whole teaching profession.

6. Your Memorialists therefore pray that in the interests of National Education your Lordships may, in making the next appointments of Inspectors, give effect to the following resolutions passed by your Memorialists in committee duly called for their consideration :—

- (1) That in the best interest of National Education it is desirable that the inspectorial districts should be of smaller area.
- (2) That no further appointments as Inspectors' Assistants should be made, and that the grade of Sub-Inspector should, as soon as possible, be abolished.
- (3) That the majority of Inspectors should be appointed from the ranks of the best and most experienced teachers employed in the public elementary schools, and that the remainder of the appointments should be made from those now engaged as Sub-Inspectors or Inspectors' Assistants.
- (4) That the years of service of teachers in public elementary schools should be regarded as years spent in the Civil Service for the purpose of fulfilling the conditions of the service with respect to pensions and age at appointment.
- (5) That, to obtain uniformity of examination, and to stimulate schools to put forth the greatest educational effort and yet prevent the children being overtaxed by undue requirements, the inspectorial divisions should be grouped under the supervision of experienced chief inspectors.

of the National Union of Teachers,

J. H. YOXALL, Acting President.

VIII.—MEMORIAL ON SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

TO THE RIGHT HON. HENRY MATTHEWS, Q.C., M.P., HER MAJESTY'S PRINCIPAL SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

The Memorial of the National Union of Teachers.

SHewETH,—

1. That the National Union of Teachers consists of 374 Teachers' Associations in England and Wales, and comprises over 18,000 members.
2. That your Memorialists have collected information from the local associations in all parts of the country with respect to the irregularity of attendance, which, notwithstanding so many years of so-called compulsion, still continues to materially reduce the efficiency of our system of primary education.
3. That the results of this enquiry contain abundant evidence of the reluctance of magistrates to deal with cases of irregular attendance at school, and of the necessity for a more stringent and effective administration of the law.
4. That the leader of the House, the late Mr. W. H. Smith, during the debate on the Elementary Education Bill in the House of Commons on June 30th, 1891, stated: "One of the advantages which the Government hope will result from this measure is a diminution in the number of excuses for irregular attendance"; and your Memorialists are therefore of opinion that it is desirable that the attention of the magistracy throughout the country should be drawn to the altered conditions consequent on the very general introduction of free education, with a view of initiating a more effective administration of the bye-laws affecting school attendance.
5. That, as a means of securing efficiency by facilitating the hearing of school attendance cases, your Memorialists further recommend the appointment of magistrates whose duty it shall be to hear and determine school attendance cases in places other than police-courts within the Metropolitan district, and in places other than petty sessional court-houses, or occasional court-houses beyond that district.

Signed on behalf of and by order of the Executive Committee of the National Union of Teachers,

J. H. YOXALL, Acting President.

R. SYKES, Deputy President.

HENRY J. WALKER, Ex-President.

G. M. E. HAMILTON, Treasurer.

R. WILD, Chairman of Education Committee.

C. JAMES, Acting Secretary.

April 2nd, 1892.

A similar Memorial was sent at the same time to the Lord Chancellor and to the Education Department.

IX.—MEMORIAL TO EDUCATION DÉPARTMENT ON LABOUR CERTIFICATES.

TO THE RT. HON. VISCOUNT CRANBROOK, G.C.S.I., LORD PRESIDENT;
THE RT. HON. SIR WILLIAM HART DYKE, BART., M.P., VICE-PRESI-DENT; AND THE LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON EDUCATION.

The Memorial of the Executive of the National Union of Teachers.

SHEVETH,—

1. That your Memorialists representing 18,000 of the teachers employed in public elementary schools have observed that considerable difficulty is experienced in the case of scholars desiring the labour certificate for either partial or total exemption from attendance, in consequence of the present arrangements for examination, and the fact that an individual examination is necessary before the certificate can be given shewing the Standard passed.
2. That in the opinion of your Memorialists the retention of the Standard qualification is an obstacle to the adoption of a thoroughly educational system of school inspection.
3. That your Memorialists desire to respectfully recommend that age and attendance should be the only qualifications for labour, and that the following should be adopted as the conditions for the employment of children under the Education, Mines, and Factory and Workshops Acts—
 - (1) For full-time employment—
 - (a) Thirteen years of age, and 2,400 attendances since the fifth birthday; or
 - (b) Fourteen years of age.
 - (2) For half-time employment—
 - (a) Eleven years of age, and 2,000 attendances since the fifth birthday, and on and after the first day of January, 1894, twelve years of age, and 2,300 attendances since the fifth birthday.

- (b) The child must be "beneficially and necessarily" employed.
- (c) The local authority to be empowered to enquire whether the income of the family is such that the earnings of the child are necessary.
- (d) One-half at least of the attendances of any child attending school half-time only shall be during the morning, and such child shall attend during mornings one week and afternoons the next.

4. Your Memorialists are of opinion that the practical working of the arrangement suggested would be facilitated by making all school years begin and end with the civil year.

Signed on behalf of and by order of the

X.—DRAWING IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

INFORMATION COLLECTED BY T. B. ELLERY, AND PUBLISHED BY EXECUTIVE.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT.

In 1890 the teaching of Drawing as part of the ordinary course of instruction for boys in a school for older scholars was inserted in the Code among the general conditions required to be fulfilled in order to obtain an Annual Parliamentary Grant for an elementary school. Before that time the teaching of the subject was optional, and grants were only paid when the subject was taught by teachers holding the qualifying certificate from the Science and Art Department. When the subject was made a compulsory part of the school curriculum for boys, Sir William Hart-Dyke said in the House of Commons, on 9th May, 1890 :—“ So long as the instruction is satisfactory, I am not disposed, at any rate for some time to come, to insist upon the possession of the ‘D’ certificate as an essential qualification in a teacher of Drawing.”

The Executive of the National Union of Teachers, after considering these changes, declared its opinion that the ordinary certificate, which had hitherto been held to entitle the possessor to teach any subject demanded by the Code, fully entitled the possessor to teach Drawing now that it was made compulsory by the Education Code. The Executive afterwards made representations to the Education Department in favour of all teachers who had passed the certificate examination before August 31st, 1891, being entitled to earn grants for Drawing, although not specially qualified by the possession of a certificate on that subject. They also urged that managers should have liberty to substitute another subject for Drawing. Later in the year, the Executive suggested to the Science and Art Department that the requirements above Standard IV. should be so reduced as to be adapted to the capacity of the children, and urged that there should be absolute freedom of classification in the subject.

A Memorial was submitted to the Education Department early in 1891 embodying the recommendations above referred to, and making further suggestions for the amendment of the regulations. The Executive also pressed that a definite assurance should be given to those persons then holding the teacher's certificate of the Education Department, and not specially qualified in Drawing, that they should be fully entitled so long as they remained in the profession to teach and earn grants in Drawing. The Annual Conference of the Union held at Easter, 1891, also resolved that in all schools Drawing should be an optional subject, and also recommended an increased grant for teaching the subject as well as perfect liberty to classify the scholars as in other subjects.

The regulations of the Science and Art Department, issued in 1890, somewhat modified the requirements with respect to the teacher's qualification, the paragraph reading as follows :—“ Drawing should be taught by a teacher, or teachers, holding the Elementary School Teacher's Certificate (D), or the Second Grade or a higher Art Certificate. . . . But in view of Article 85 (b) of the English Education Code (1890), the possession of a Certificate in Drawing on the part of the Instructor will not, for the present, be insisted on as a necessary condition of earning the grant for Drawing.”

The fact that the technical qualification was not required “ for the present ” led teachers not possessing the “ D ” to fear that at any time this regulation might be altered, and that as they would then be unable to obtain the Parliamentary grant for their schools they would be thrown out of employment. It was also found by teachers seeking fresh employment that managers attached the utmost importance to the possession of the “ D ” certificate, and as a result many teachers made strenuous efforts to obtain it. The report of the Deputation shows the difficulties such teachers have encountered and the reasons why so many of them, especially the older teachers, have been unsuccessful.

It should further be stated that during the last few years the Science and Art Department have made the examination for the "D" certificate more stringent by requiring a "First Class" instead of the "Pass" in the 2nd grade examination in Freehand and Perspective, which had hitherto sufficed as a teaching qualification.

From time to time during the year 1891 the Executive were in communication with the Education Department and the Science and Art Department with reference to the difficulties in connection with the subject, with the result that early in the present year the Vice-President of the Council consented to receive a deputation from the Executive. The following were the points which the Executive requested the deputation to bring under the notice of the Department :—

- (1) "That in all schools drawing should be optional.
- (2) "That for small schools not exceeding 100 boys in average attendance, a syllabus of minimum requirements in drawing not exceeding the present requirements of Standard IV. be adopted, similar in principle to the section 8 of class subjects.
- (3) "That the teacher's diploma shall now and at all times be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects in the elementary schools.
- (4) "That the payment of the minimum schedule be not less than 4s. per head on the average attendance.
- (5) "That there be perfect freedom of classification in drawing as in the ordinary subjects of examination under the Education Department; and that the regulations with regard to the classification for ordinary subjects be applied to the subject of drawing.
- (6) "That the present Inspectors in drawing are not as a rule competent to examine the school, and no person should be appointed as Inspector who has not had adequate experience in the work of an elementary school.
- (7) "That a pass in any of the drawing subjects should count toward the 'D.'
- (8) "That the Executive views with disfavour the retention of the terms 'Fair,' 'Good,' and 'Excellent' in the assessment of the drawing."

The Deputation attended at the Education Department on 5th March.

It will be seen from the report of the interview which follows that, although the Vice-President promised that the regulations should be so altered as to secure absolute freedom of classification, and gave a general promise that there should be no cases of hardship among existing teachers, the other reasonable modifications of the Drawing regulations suggested by the Union have not been granted. The Executive have, therefore, considered it necessary to publish the full report of the interview in order to appeal to the public and the press on the subject.

The Executive are fully aware of the importance of Drawing, and are equally anxious with the Department that it shall receive proper attention; but they feel that it is unreasonable to compel the teaching of the subject in all schools, or to introduce into the Code provisions which practically amount to a breach of contract made with teachers when their certificates were awarded.

DEPUTATION TO THE EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

On Saturday, 5th March, a deputation from the National Union of Teachers waited upon Sir William Hart-Dyke, the Vice-President of the Council, with reference to the regulations respecting Drawing in Elementary Schools. The deputation consisted of Mr. J. H. Yoxall (Acting President), Mr. R. Wild (Chairman of Education Committee), Mr. T. B. Ellery (member of Executive), and the following members of the Union from various parts of the country:—Miss Neels, The School, Widford, Ware, Herts; Mr. R. W. Denny, Wesleyan School, Redditch; Mr. J. Lewis, National School, Ripley, Surrey; Miss Ada E. G. Marsh, National School, Boreham, near Chelmsford; Mr. J. Wilcock, Higher Grade School, Kendal; Mr. H. R. Wilton Hall, Board School, Essendon, Hatfield; and Miss H. M. McBean, School House, Kelston, Bath.

Mr. YOXALL, in introducing the deputation, said that their thanks for the interview were increased by the knowledge that Sir William might suppose the Union to have been unduly persistent in the matter of the requirements in drawing. They had been persistent because every day brought proof on proof that the drawing requirements were causing hardships to those teachers least able to bear them, and were producing an unsettled, despairing feeling, which was most harmful to the interests of education. The imposition of drawing amounted to insistence on a class subject; and as there were now 2,212 schools for older scholars in which no class subject was taken, but in which, by the Code, a class subject must be taken after August, 1893, the imposition of drawing in these schools will amount to insistence on two class subjects after that date. But drawing was rigidly compulsory, whilst in other class subjects there was a choice, and even a choice of courses. It must be evident that in many schools the Principles of Agriculture, for instance, would be a more useful subject than drawing. It was unfair to teachers who had qualified in science instead of art to give them no choice between teaching art or teaching science; and in this case the unfairness fell most on those least able to bear it. But if the compulsion of drawing was maintained then it must be evident that the teacher's ordinary diploma ought to be regarded as comprehending permission to teach not only drawing but any other subject that might be imposed. That had hitherto been the case. When singing from note was introduced a teacher who had learned in Hullah's system was not compelled to be certificated in Tonic Sol-fa in order to teach the latter. An Oxford M.A., who taught Biology at a local University College, was not required to undergo examination at London University in that subject before he could teach it. His diploma was reckoned comprehensive: why not the certificated teacher's? Class subjects, such as Magnetism and Electricity, Agriculture, &c., and "specifics," such as Mechanics, Physiology, Chemistry, &c., could be taught without special certificates, and why not drawing also, a far less technical thing. The test of examination sufficed as qualification for these subjects, why should it not do so for drawing also? He suggested that the Department should fix a date, after which no certificate should be issued to any teacher who did not hold the "D."; but if the Department shrank from excluding from the profession in future a good teacher who could never draw a straight line (any more than many people can sing a bar in tune), then the injustice of the present arrangement was made the more obvious. In urging that grouping of standards for drawing should be permitted in the smaller schools, the speaker pointed out the precedent adopted in class-subjects, and cited a case in which thirteen children had to be taught in seven drawing standards. He showed that 4s. per unit was paid for algebra, French, &c., but only 2s. per unit for drawing, which required much the more expensive "plant"; and cited a case in which an expenditure of £7 10s. was caused, and only 10s. was paid in grant. This was particularly hard on small schools; in fact, it was just what was to be expected from a relic of "Payment by Results," which principle, in all its applications, bore most harmfully on those schools which most needed aid. In pleading for freedom of classification, he said that special arrangements for dulness or quickness were obviously more necessary in drawing than even in reading or writing. The Inspectors of drawing were often incapable of their work; an ex-infantry lieutenant, who could not draw, was obviously not the man to test drawing, and yet the impression prevailed that upon the fiat of the local inspector depended the grade of the grant. Inspectors of drawing ought to be men who had taught it, and had proved their fitness. The requirement of a first-class pass in the examination for the teacher's certificate was an unfair thing. Oxford and Cambridge did not withhold the diploma from a man who obtained the pass degree: why, then, in drawing exact "honours"? The terms fair, good, and excellent were remnants of the Merit Grant that ought to be removed; if a school reached the minimum of efficiency then the full grant should be paid.

Mr. ELLERY said:—In coming here I am acting at the request of the Executive of the N. U. T., the members recognising that I have taken considerable interest in the subject, and have been at some pains to collect opinions relative to the teaching of drawing. Our case is so good that we are convinced we have only to lay the facts before you to secure your most careful consideration.

Optional.—Our last Conference passed an almost unanimous vote, that drawing should be an “optional” subject. We were convinced that, important as the subject is, too great a place had been given to it by the very extreme regulations of the Code. The whole of the grants to a school—the very means of carrying on the school, in fact—are dependent upon success in the drawing examination. Failure in that one subject means that the reputation of the teacher and the whole income of the school are gone at once. This is a punishment out of all proportion to the offence, and gives a fictitious importance to one subject. And I say this as an enthusiast for this and other technical training, and as one whose school has been marked EXCELLENT in drawing year after year. We are aware that Royal Commissions have reported in favour of compulsory drawing, and we understand that their reports mainly influenced the Education Department. But the Royal Commission said: “We, therefore, recommend that, as far as practicable, drawing should be made compulsory for boys.” Further, the Commission recognised the difficulty which would attend the application of compulsion to this subject, and distinctly stated that “it should be applied with due consideration for the existing state of things.” Royal Commissions are not always in the right, at any rate in the opinion of the Education Department, as is seen by the fact that some of their recommendations have not been adopted. And it would appear that even in this matter the Department is not quite convinced, because the grant is so low, even where the highest mark is awarded, that it is evident the subject is not more than equal to a class subject, and is certainly inferior to any one of the specific subjects mentioned in Schedule IV. The fact is, the imposition of this subject in every school, large or small, is placing a burden upon teachers too heavy to be borne in hundreds of cases, and in many other cases is preventing another subject being taken up which would probably be of greater value. Is instruction in other subjects to give place to this? The whole of the teachers of the country will tell you that in many schools this must be so. I can give you proof—overwhelming proof—of this. One statement will serve as an illustration. The report of the Rev. S. Jeffery, Diocesan Inspector to the Bishop of Newcastle, states that the Chevington School Board has withdrawn its four schools from the examination in religious knowledge “to enable the teachers to find time to meet the new requirements of the Code in drawing!” Briefly, our position is this: (1) Drawing should be an optional subject. Let the curriculum beyond the minimum be left to the local managers. (2) The grant should be very considerably increased. If the grant were really a fair return for the labour and expense connected with the work, then in the majority of the schools of the country drawing would be cheerfully taught, and there would be no need to use the very objectionable compulsion of the present Code. The remaining schools would not take the subject, because, in the opinion of the local managers, it is unsuitable, or the means of teaching it do not exist, or because another subject would be of greater value. Circumstances vary so much that it is next, to impossible to frame a rule that shall be applicable all round. In Wales, for instance, a second language has to be taught. Numbers of Welsh teachers write to me that they cannot possibly do all the work. This is the case, too, in Jersey. Every teacher who teaches drawing in the public elementary schools there has signed a resolution to the effect that there is insufficient time for drawing in consequence of the second language. I submit their case in writing, and hope and believe their representations will receive attention. A deputation from Wales and from Jersey would have been here to-day, but it was felt the number must not be increased. We contend that geography, elementary science, a knowledge of particular manufactures in manufacturing districts, of mining in mining districts, and of agriculture in agricultural districts, should be insisted upon quite as much as drawing. But the stringent regulations of the Code shut all these out.

Teacher's Certificate to Cover the Teaching of all Obligatory Subjects.—We ask with confidence that the possession of the ordinary Education Department certificate shall entitle the holder to teach each and every one of the obligatory subjects of the Code. We look upon the requirement that teachers must now begin to seek fresh qualifications as a breach of faith—a breaking of the contract entered into by the Department on the one side and the teacher on the other. Many of the teachers have been working twenty, thirty, and even forty years in elementary schools, doing admirable work, and securing the confidence of Inspectors, managers, and parents. Is it really intended that on and after a certain date these worthy men and women, who have given their lives to teaching, shall either qualify for drawing certificates or go? I venture to assert that the whole country will say this must not be. You may allow ten years, or twenty, and still these teachers could not qualify, and managers will be compelled to dismiss them. Ruin, absolute ruin, stares these people in the face. It is no wonder that one of my correspondents says: "We—thousands of us—make an appeal almost with the energy of despair." But on the higher ground of justice and right and fair dealing, we contend that having once issued the certificate, nothing should induce the Department to impose new conditions. This has been recognised all along until now. Teachers have been, and still are, allowed to teach and earn grants for any of the specific subjects of the Code, even though they did not, and do not, hold special certificates. They may teach mechanics, Latin, French, chemistry, and many others, without ever having passed an examination in any of them! We are aware that, in this matter of drawing, no special qualification is demanded "for the present." But those very words "for the present" are worrying teachers, and driving them almost to despair. We find men of fifty, sixty, and even beyond that age, vainly seeking to qualify—men with failing sight and trembling hand, and women walking along lonely roads at a late hour of the evening to attend classes. The expense, too, of all this preparation is beyond what these people can afford. How can men and women—some with large families and all with poor salaries (as low as £50, £60, and £70)—afford to pay for the hire of a trap from their village home to the railway station (a matter of five, eight, and ten miles), then pay the fare to the town where a class is being held, stay there the greater part of each Saturday, and then return home at night? It is simply impossible, except under one of two conditions—either that they run into debt, or go short of food and clothing. In more than one case where disease already existed, this eager and anxious straining after the drawing certificates brought death to the unfortunate teacher. The early rising—four and five o'clock in the morning—the long walk along muddy roads in wet and cold weather, then sitting in a railway carriage, together with the late night study and the nervous, anxious feeling which we can all understand proved too much for the system. Many teachers have found their sight affected by the close application. It is no uncommon thing to see these old teachers at the class using two pairs of spectacles, one for watching the lecturer's work on the blackboard and the other for their own paper work. These are constantly on and off. Others write to me that their doctors have absolutely forbidden a continuance of the work, others that they cannot rest at night, others that they go to bed with eyes streaming with water. "In my sleep," says one, "I am often puzzling over problems in geometry and perspective." Another writes, "I am now wearing spectacles owing to close application. When attending the class I had to rise at five in the morning and trudge to the station. The last time I was laid up with sciatica." Another: "My age is sixty-one. Isn't it a cruel hardship to make us poor old men and women toddle off to school again"? We feel the Department may fairly place the subject in the list for future teachers, and if so, it may be well that training should begin with the pupil teachers, and the subject be included in the syllabus for the scholarship examinations.

A "Pass" should Count towards the "D."—Not only is drawing made compulsory, but the requirements for the Drawing Certificate have been strung up. Nothing less than a first class in freehand will suffice now! And how is it possible for men and women past middle age to secure this? It is impossible under any circumstances for a very large number. One victim writes to say he has sat fourteen times for freehand, and has passed second class in the subject three times. And I could quote many other cases. I believe my figures are correct for the last May examinations:

First Class (and therefore Passes)...	5,050
Second Class	16,308
Failures	27,182

So that only 5,000 passed, so far as the teaching qualification is concerned. These examinations should not be so difficult, and they should not be conducted by gaslight, as it tries the eyes severely, and makes good work absolutely impossible. With this high standard for a pass it often happens that a very incompetent man—from the all-round point of view—a second or third division man, and at the bottom of his college list, but with some technical skill and probably some luck, takes precedence of his more highly qualified brother who stood first in his college yet could not secure the all-important “D.” Men who have graduated, and others who have distinguished themselves in science, but have no taste or talent for drawing, write pointing out how they are handicapped. At the present moment, almost the first question put to a candidate for a post is: “Have you the ‘D’?”—not, as it should be, “What are your general qualifications? What experience and success have you had in school-work generally?”

A modified Syllabus for Rural Schools—Freedom of Classification.—This is absolutely essential. In hundreds of schools the teacher has no help whatever, though he or she has all the standards. How is it possible for the hard-worked, struggling mistress with, say, an average of forty or fifty, or fifty-five, to teach the infants and six or seven standards, to take a class subject, sometimes perhaps two, and singing by note, and then teach drawing to the boys and needlework to the girls at one and the same time, and without assistance? It is useless to talk of the managers providing a better staff. They would willingly do so, but they simply cannot. This want of funds also prevents the employment of peripatetic teachers. And when “extra staff” is given it is the cheapest that can be got, and that means the most inefficient. It is no exaggeration to say that the lives of these poor teachers—and I say without hesitation there are hundreds, and probably thousands of them—are lives of slavery, and never-ending worry and anxiety. They have to mark children’s papers out of school hours, they have to fix and prepare the sewing for the following day, they are expected to assist in parish work, manage clothing clubs, visit the parents, &c., and then march off to drawing practice. I am giving facts, and am prepared with proofs of each and every statement. In these schools I respectfully submit drawing should not even be “optional.” The Department should decline to sanction the teaching of the subject. In order to find time the teacher must neglect some other subject. We are able to prove that the grant for geography, for example, has been lost simply because in the opinion of the Inspector there could not have been sufficient time for geography and drawing too! Many write to say arithmetic is suffering, grammar, needlework. A modified syllabus in larger schools than these is also needed. In no school where there is only one certificated teacher should the requirements from Standards V., VI., VII., exceed the work laid down for Standard IV. This principle is admitted in singing by note. Why could not a similar grouping be permitted in this subject? It is monstrous to ask the already heavily handicapped teacher to explore the intricacies of solid geometry and to dive into all the principles underlying drawing from models with about 2, 3, or 4 boys. If this is to be done a great part of the other work of the school must be at a stand-still. Freedom of Classification should be extended to drawing as freely as in the examinations of the Education Department. For this boon the whole of the teaching profession daily thank the present Government. But the liberty is hemmed in and restricted in the drawing examination, and a teacher keeps a few boys back at some risk to the grant. In this matter he should have an absolutely free hand. Mr. Kekewich has expressed his pleasure that, practically, there has been no abuse of the privilege. Neither would there be abuse in the drawing examination; and we ask that the necessary change may be made. The child's ability should be the only test, and in this matter the teacher is the best judge.

Abolition of the "Fair," "Good," and "Excellent"—Inadequacy of the Present Grant.—The "merit grant" was weighed and found wanting in the old Code, and it was abolished. We ask that it may be removed from the Code of the Science and Art Department. If the subject is taught satisfactorily, there should be a fixed grant sufficient to meet all the expenses incurred in connection with the teaching. There must be an element of uncertainty—some chance work—in all these examinations, and it would be well to avoid any possible injustice, and to ensure that adequate means exist by giving one general liberal grant. It is my duty to point out that this grant is, as a rule, wholly insufficient even when the "excellent" is earned. Take, for example, a school in which the boys' average is 20 or 30. The highest grant that could possibly be earned is £2 in the former case, and £3 in the latter. We have cases in which the grant amounts to only a few shillings! In one, after nine months' work, the fair award was earned, and the total amount received was 4s. 8d. In another, drawing was taught for eight months, and the excellent award earned. This, calculated on the average attendance of 10 boys, amounted to 9s. 6d. The mistress had to pay for the services of a drawing teacher, the managers objecting to any expense in that direction. These are some of the statements received:—"Already spent £6. Boys to be examined, 33." "Far exceeds the amount received in grants, and we have to teach with very meagre apparatus on that account." "Personally it means less salary." (A fuller statement on this point as on the others raised is now submitted in writing.) Our suggestion is that drawing should be reported upon as satisfactory or unsatisfactory, and that there should be a grant of at least 4s. upon success. Further, may we suggest that, say one-half of the first cost of apparatus, such as demonstration sheets, models, &c., be met by a special grant from the Department?

The Drawing Inspectors.—On the last point we have to say that in the best interests of the school, the Inspectors of drawing should be men who thoroughly understand the subject, who have sympathy with teachers and children, and who have had some experience in the actual work of examination. I am sorry to say this is not always the case, and evidence will be offered on the point. One teacher writes:—"A gentleman came to my school and said, 'I have come to watch the examination. I have just been made an Inspector for this subject. I really don't know anything about it, but I am told it is easily picked up by just watching a few.' He attended the examination, and had information from the Inspector and myself." Other evidence will be offered. We feel that our case is strong, and that never was there a time when we could more hopefully look to the Department than now. The teachers of the country recognise your great work in this Department. But hundreds are now bitterly complaining. In many many cases, it is a question of bread, and I appeal to you to send out to-day a word of comfort to those who are eagerly looking to this deputation for relief.

Miss NEELS, who was asked to speak on the difficulty of teaching drawing with small staff, the fact that managers cannot afford to pay peripatetic teachers, and the cost of apparatus, said:—A girls' mixed school with infants consists of the various standards and three grades of infants, and with an average attendance of sixty-five the Code is satisfied with one certificated teacher and one pupil teacher or a teacher under Art. 68. While drawing is being taught such a school must be re-arranged in three divisions—viz. : the boys in their various standards; the girls in their various standards; the infants in three grades. The question resolves itself thus:—The mistress must take drawing, the needlework must be taught by the teacher under Art. 68 or pupil teacher, and the infants must be left to the teaching of a girl from the class, unless the managers can afford a better teacher. The girls and infants being with unskilled teachers, the mistress cannot give undivided attention to her own class; she must also supervise the other two. A peripatetic teacher of drawing would be too great an expense for a small Board to meet without very burdensome rates. In my own parish a shilling rate has to be levied to produce about £100. In the next parish a similar rate realises about £300. In the Ware and Hertford District an art class master endeavoured to get a connection as a peripatetic teacher, but failed in the attempt. The approximate cost of apparatus for the current year will be £3 12s.; the approximate grant £1 10s.; approximate loss of grant for a class subject £2 5s. Loss of grant is generally taken by managers to be traceable in some way to inefficiency on the part of the teacher. Before drawing was introduced my boys had the time of the needlework lessons for their arithmetic and other elementary subjects. The Code still requires that the arithmetic of boys shall exceed in quality and quantity that of girls, but there is now no time in which legally to give them extra opportunities to advance beyond the girls in their knowledge of arithmetic.

Mr. DENNY, who was asked to speak on the number of miles travelled, of time spent in endeavouring to obtain the "D," as an illustration of the difficulty of qualifying, said :—I wish to point out the difficulties I have in qualifying for the "D" certificate. I have been studying drawing for four years, and during that time I have travelled 1,796 miles in order to attend classes for instruction in the different subjects required for the "D." In 1888 I was residing at Rillington, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, and as there was no art class in the district, I made arrangements with Mr. Sheffield Wilson, an assistant teacher at the York School of Art, to give me lessons at Malton on Saturdays. Rillington is four miles from Malton. I made twenty-six journeys to Malton, making 208 miles ; add to this two journeys to York to sit at examinations—one in October, 1888, and the other in May, 1889—an additional 88 miles, or a total of 296 miles. After removing to Redditch, I commenced attending the Municipal School of Art, Birmingham, and from September, 1890, to April, 1891, my attendances were registered on forty-seven separate nights ; add to these the two attendances made at the examinations, and one night when I was in the train nearly four hours owing to a block in the Birmingham tunnel, and this gives fifty journeys from Redditch to Birmingham, or a distance of 1,500 miles travelled during the two sessions. The time spent has been very considerable. I will only speak of 1890 and 1891. Every time I went to Birmingham I was absent from home five hours. I was obliged to go straight from school to catch the 4.57 train, and never reached home before ten o'clock, and on a few Thursdays it was twelve o'clock. On an average I spent about six hours per week in private study. I have now gained a good knowledge of the best methods of teaching drawing, and have taught it successfully to my pupil teachers, although my second class certificates do not count towards the "D."

Mr. LEWIS, who was required to give evidence of loss of salary resulting from the introduction of drawing, and the difficulty of doing the work single-handed, said :—I am a rural teacher of forty years' standing, having had thirty years' experience in Wales, and ten in England, and can therefore speak with a certain amount of experience on the work and worries of my class. I, and I may say the whole of the teachers of the country, appreciate the value of drawing as a training of the hand and eye, and know that it is almost a necessity to artisans at the present day, but what we complain of is that all grants are to be sacrificed by its omission, and that there is no adequate provision made for its being efficiently taught, and that a large number of teachers, especially the older ones, are to be ruthlessly shunted out of the profession, and lose their means of livelihood by its introduction, as my own individual case will illustrate. In January, 1891, I directed my managers' attention to its introduction, and the desirability of making provision for its being taught at the commencement of the school year in March. They knew nothing about such a requirement, and I had to direct their attention to the Code. It was then decided to wait for the decision of H.M. Inspector, who directed that it must be taught. I was then requested to prepare a list of the materials, and the expense which they would entail. To this the managers replied that they could find no means of meeting this additional expense but by reducing my salary by £10. No additional help would be provided, nor reduction made in the school curriculum. The salary, which varied with the amount of pence and grant, did not exceed an average of £100 per annum for myself and wife, who gives her services (under Art. 68) for the whole day. I have to teach four standards myself, and the only help for the remaining three being my wife (Art. 68), one female P.T. in the third year, and a little monitor of eleven years of age. Neither of these can render me any help in drawing. On the 1st of May I had eighty-two boys and sixty-six girls from Standard I. to VII. on my books. I have to teach singing by note, and two class subjects. I do not possess the "D.," and, with failing sight and unsteady hand, I cannot hope to make myself efficient to teach the requirements of the upper standards. So that when I shall have to give up my present post, I shall, on this account, have every other school door closed to me. I can assure you that the strain already imposed upon me and hundreds of other rural teachers has become almost intolerable, and our lives a burden. It is a hard fate—after spending long years in faithful service to our country—to have built up the educational fabric, which is the boast of our statesmen—to end our days in penury and want. This is the sad prospect of many disabled and old teachers at this very moment, and if compulsory drawing be insisted upon, this number will be largely augmented.

Miss MARSH, who spoke on the question of physical inability to qualify, said : I should like to say that I have no ability or natural aptitude for drawing. But since the new regulations came into operation, I have been trying to teach this subject and endeavouring to qualify myself so as to earn a grant. Since last September I have been working almost without any exceptions the whole night through, retiring to rest in the early morning. The consequence is that my eyes are becoming seriously affected. I am compelled on this account to work with a very brilliant light, and the constant glare in my eyes and on my spectacles (which I have worn since Christmas) is very injurious. Indeed my general health has been for some time so very indifferent that I am seriously afraid that I shall either become a confirmed invalid or be compelled to leave the profession and try to gain a living in some other way—under any circumstances very difficult at my age, and doubly so under such circumstances. When I say that I am teaching six standards (last year there were seven, and will be next year), numbering between sixty and sixty-five children, in addition to the three R's, singing, recitation, Scripture, geography, and drawing, with the aid of a child eleven years old, who is paid 1s. per week (I am obliged to give her lessons after school), I think I have said all that need be said on this subject, and the frightful strain that such a demand involves on the nervous system, and physical and mental powers—of a woman !

To eke out my scanty salary I give music lessons, and out of the money thus earned I have had to spend £2 2s. since last October in drawing materials. My managers cannot afford to engage a special teacher; and, on the whole, are inclined to think that it is my fault, or partly my fault, that this extra subject has been added; and they certainly do not at all like the annual grant being dependent on the result of the drawing examination, nor the extra expense to which they have already been put for the necessary materials without a chance of recovering any back. Of course I am "expected to do a little outside work," but on the whole I am as well off in this respect as a good many, and better off than some Church teachers.

Mr. WILCOCK dealt with the question of the incompetency of Drawing Inspectors.

Mr. WILTON HALL, who spoke of the difficulties in rural schools, especially with reference to insufficient staff and time, said:—The drawing regulations specify certain points which "will be considered as well as the results of the examination," but no mention is therein made of the sufficiency or otherwise—as distinguished from efficiency—of the staff, as one of them. In the syllabus no distinction is made between schools having a qualified teacher for each standard and those in which all the standards have to be taught by one person only. In a rural school a teacher can never have the luxury of doing one thing at a time, or of taking one standard with an undivided mind. It is not the number of children in the schoolroom, but the multiplicity of standards in which they must be taught, that constitutes the difficulty. There is but little help from qualified assistants and monitors. Day by day, in a boys' mixed school I teach Standards II. to VII., with the aid of a child as monitor, taking the three "R.'s" two class subjects, singing by note, drill, and now drawing for the boys. The average is only forty. I hardly know which is working at the greater disadvantage—the scholar who has the fourth or fifth part of a teacher, or the teacher whose attention needs to be in four or five places at once. In girls' small mixed schools the difficulties are much greater. With every standard and three grades of infants, and the merest apology for assistance, the mistress has her hands more than full. Yet she has to attempt to teach needlework to the girls and drawing to the boys at one and the same time. There is no other time available for teaching drawing than that during which the girls are at needlework unless other subjects are sacrificed. The actual drawing requirements at the present moment may not be in themselves, perhaps, extravagant, but they do not recognise the physical difficulty of getting from standard to standard in the very limited time that can be spared to the subject, nor the fact that, as the years go on, the number of standards increases without any provision being made for increasing the staff sufficiently to cope with the physical difficulties of the case. To find time some one or more of the other Code subjects will have to be given up altogether or neglected. If a class subject is given up to make way for teaching the boys drawing, the school grant will be lessened—a point on which managers are very sensitive. In these small schools managers cannot afford to employ peripatetic teachers of drawing—even if such were obtainable—or, on the strength of the drawing grant, add to the school staff. In my own school, supposing the boys earned Excellent for drawing, the grant could only be £2. It is this question of staff which lies at the bottom of the physical difficulty of teaching drawing in these schools. Whether the teacher has the “D,” or not, under present circumstances suitable means for teaching the subject can hardly be said to exist.

Miss McBEAN, who was asked to speak on the insufficiency of the drawing grant, said:—Kelston is an agricultural village. The number of names on the school register is twenty-six, including boys, girls, and infants. I commenced to teach drawing in February, 1891. The examination was in September. The time given to drawing was two hours a week, but since the examination one-and-a-half hours, as the time is sadly needed for other subjects. The cost of materials was £1. Nine boys were presented, eight of whom passed “Fair.” The grant for seven-twelfths of the year amounted to 4s. 8d. The parents are averse to boys who only follow the plough “wasting their time” in learning drawing, and, really, considering the difficulties and drawbacks in a rural school, it does seem valuable time wasted and needless expense incurred. I have been twenty-three years a mistress, with second class parchment and Archbishops’ certificates, but no “D.,” and had it not been for the assistance of the rector’s daughter we must have paid for outside help, which would have made the expense enormous, considering the grant received. I do think, with such a small number of scholars and the trials attached to teaching drawing in a rural school, it should be made an optional subject.

Mr. ELLERY:—I submit in writing the statements made, a petition signed by all the teachers in Jersey, an estimate of the cost of apparatus, teaching, &c., in small rural schools, resolutions from local associations, and extracts from the opinions of teachers all over the country on the various points raised. That concludes our case.

Sir WILLIAM HART-DYKE said:—I have been very glad to see you here to-day, and I think I may say, broadly speaking, that I have never lost anything by receiving these deputations from teachers, or by conferences with them. One always picks up a great deal of valuable information on occasions like this; I admit also, that this is a very important subject which you have brought under my notice to-day. Some of the language which has been used by one or two of the speakers explains some mysteries which I have had some difficulty in explaining. There seems to be among teachers and managers great misconception about the position in which we stand with regard to compulsory drawing. I have been asked to-day whether we are prepared to consent to the making of drawing in schools an optional subject. I may say at once, I am not prepared to accede to that. The course we have taken was decided upon after very great consideration, and we have not only a practically unanimous vote of Parliament, but the very strong reports of two of the most important Royal Commissions that have ever sat with regard to education in this country. What has been the chief object which we have had in view in saying we should make drawing compulsory? Certainly our very last object has been to create a grievance among the managers or teachers, and therefore, it is valuable to hear what you have had to say. Further, the Department, not only Mr. Kekewich and myself, but all those connected with the working of this new enterprise, including the authorities at South Kensington, have endeavoured to the very utmost to accomplish the object we have in view, with as little friction as possible. It is, therefore, a great pity that there appears to be abroad so much misconception with regard to our intentions. We have practically achieved the object we had in view with regard to drawing. We have already achieved an enormous increase in the teaching of drawing in our elementary schools, and when I am able to tell you that the increased grant for this subject represents from £35,000 to £40,000 which we shall ask the Parliament to pay out of the taxpayers' pocket, I am satisfied that we have practically obtained the object we had in view. We have found there was very great difficulty in immediately making drawing compulsory. If we had said that in every school, unless drawing was taught by a teacher holding the "D" certificate, the grant would be withheld, we should not only have done a great wrong as regards many schools, but have defeated the very object we have in view. But we have given a certain latitude. There has been a certain clause put in which gives this latitude to the Department, and as a proof that the Department has used this in a proper manner, not a single school has been fined for not teaching drawing. We have achieved this huge result without having fined a single school for not having taught the subject. This is a proof that our policy so far has been a success. Then we have been asked with regard to one or two other subjects of importance, but I should like to say before leaving this part of the subject, we are so satisfied with the result of our policy up to this date, that we are not prepared to put undue pressure upon the managers of any school in regard to drawing. We are aware that in some cases teachers have laid themselves under great stress with regard to preparing themselves in this matter, and we acknowledge the great effort which they have made, and the successful efforts which they are making, to produce this result. We, however, are so satisfied with what has been already brought about that we intend to adhere to the policy we have pursued in the past, and in the cases brought before the Department, where means do not exist for adequately teaching drawing, we shall be willing to continue to treat them with great leniency, provided an effort will be made to gradually introduce the subject. With regard to teachers we shall always be glad to hear and consider representations with reference to any case of grievance which can be brought before us. I have been asked a question also with regard to the teacher's diploma, and a suggestion has been made that it should be held to cover the whole of the obligatory subjects in the elementary school. With regard to that I think it would be a great pity if we were to accede to such a course, because we should take away the incentive which is now being applied to teachers to learn drawing. Wherever I go I hear of these classes being held. I know there are difficulties, and cases of grievance have been pointed out to-day in regard to it, but I for one should rather be content with pursuing longer the course which we have now adopted, that is to say, not to make it compulsory on behalf of teachers, but that we should take a more lenient view of their position. With regard to small schools, I was aware from the first that there would be very serious difficulty, and we have heard to-day some points raised (and they have been ably raised), with regard to the question of staff in these small schools; but I must remind the deputation that Parliament has dealt most liberally with these small schools during the last few years. They have had an addition to their grant where there was a small population, under Article 105, and with regard to the fee grant, the average fee was so low, that in nearly every case schools make a solid gain out of the fee grant. A case has been mentioned to us to-day, where it would appear that the managers did not apply this grant for the efficiency of the school. I am very glad to have had the case brought under my notice, but it will be the duty of the Department—in Parliament I have again and again pledged the Department—to use their very utmost endeavours to discover these cases, and to secure that the money does not go into the pockets of the managers, but is used for securing the efficiency of the school. With regard to the point that for small schools not exceeding one hundred in average attendance, a syllabus of minimum requirements not exceeding those of Standard IV. should be arranged, there are very great difficulties in carrying this out. It is not an analogous case to that of Schedule "S" in class subjects. But in this matter we are prepared to watch very closely the operation of our rules and regulations, and if we find there is any difficulty in carrying them out, or that any serious grievance can be alleged, we shall never be adverse to reconsidering our position. It has been proposed that there should be an increase in the payment for drawing; I cannot accede to that. When I present the education estimates to Parliament, I think the tax-payers will be inclined to prick up their ears. It is money which I think no sensible man will be inclined to grudge, but recent legislation has put a fresh burden on the backs of the tax-payers, and I therefore think you must not press me to-day with regard to increasing this grant. As to freedom of classification we believe that we have absolutely granted freedom of classification in drawing. We have taken the very words of the Education Department: "I remember when we first introduced it into the Code, many teachers and managers were sceptical as to the effects of the change. It is the intention of the Department that there should be absolute freedom of classification in regard to drawing, and I have only to say that if the rules and regulations do not bring about that result, I for one can only promise that we shall be most glad to consider them. With regard to the present Inspectors of drawing, we have been passing through a process of transition. It is impossible in making a change so vast as this that the material as regards teachers, and inspectors, and staff generally, should be found in a perfect state at once. I shall be glad to look into the case brought forward to-day, but I think you must give a fair trial at all events to the system as it now exists. In every case all the paper work is brought up to South Kensington, and therefore, as regards the present Inspectors, they have only to report upon the slate work,—the very elementary work of Standard II. There has been one other point mentioned with regard to the nomenclature of the grant “Fair” “Good” and “Excellent.” We ought to give our present proposal a fair trial, and although we have of course abolished the Merit Grant, I do not think any really serious criticism can be brought to bear upon the nomenclature, if I may so term it, of the grant. Now I have gone over all the points and have only to say in conclusion that this vast change which we have made in our educational work has given us a great deal of trouble and anxiety, and also at South Kensington where General Donnelly has been administering the new system. I have been a little perturbed in regard to the terrors which are said to await all schools that do not immediately take up drawing. It may be that here and there a stray Inspector has let fall words which have terrified the managers and teachers into the belief that unless this subject was immediately taken up at all hazards serious results would follow. We are so satisfied with the results already obtained that we shall continue to gradually carry out the system, but without any hardship, either to managers or teachers, who have been so ably represented here to-day.

Mr. YOXALL.—Practically then, Sir, you can announce to us no concession at all?

Sir WILLIAM HART-DYKE.—Not with regard to compulsion.

Mr. YOXALL.—Or on any point?

Sir WILLIAM HART-DYKE.—I am sorry I have not been able to satisfy you.

Mr. WILD.—I thank you for the concessions you have given us. If you will make it quite clear to managers and inspectors that you do not require the subject to be taught without full consideration for the circumstances of the various schools, that will be a great boon; and if you will make it distinctly understood that there is to be perfect freedom of classification, that will be another boon.

Sir WILLIAM HART-DYKE.—I have not the least reservation with regard to that, and if our present regulations do not carry that out they shall be amended so as to secure it.

Mr. WILD.—I hope we may be able to induce you to look further into our present proposals, and that we may bring further arguments to bear, so that you may be able to grant us all we ask. We come here to-day simply in the interests of education, and we know how close that lies to your heart.

Mr. ELLERY.—You have not mentioned the point I brought before you, that the second class pass should count towards the “D.”

Sir WILLIAM HART-DYKE.—That is a great difficulty. It is practically lowering the standard for the certificate. As the matter at present stands we are not pressing in every case for the certificate.

The deputation then withdrew.

The following are the statements handed in :—

I.—STATEMENT FROM THE JERSEY TEACHERS.

JERSEY PUBLIC ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS.

“Insufficient time to teach Drawing in consequence of Language.”

1. In the Jersey Public Elementary Schools, French must be taught in addition to English subjects, as per new Code. French is not a specific subject, as in England, but every child, from infants’ class upwards, must be examined.

SUBJECTS FOR EXAMINATION IN FRENCH.

Reading.	Dictation.	Translation (English into French).	Translation (French into English).	Grammar (Stds. I.-VII.)	Recitation (From 20 to 588 lines).

Minimum time required for French instruction, from 1 to 2 hours daily, or an average of 8 hours per week.

2. Number of hours given to Secular instruction per week...	22
„ „ given to the teaching of French per week	8
„ „ left for the 3 R's, plus 1 Class Subject, plus Singing, plus Drawing, per week	14
On an average, Drawing occupies per week	2½ hours.
„ Class Subject (Geography or English) occupies per week	2½ „
Number of hours given to Drawing, Class Subject, Singing	5 „
„ left for the 3 R's per week	9 „
(or less than 2 hours daily).

3. IRREGULARITY OF ATTENDANCE, over which managers and teachers have no control.

(a.) Attendance is not Compulsory.—Some children commence school at the ages of eight, nine, and ten years without any knowledge whatever of the English language, which, to the country children, is a foreign tongue.

(b.) Work in the Potato Field.—For the space of six or eight weeks a great many Jersey schools are almost empty, owing to the engagement of the children in the potato field.

4. THE TOWN SCHOOLS.—Although French is the official language of the island, the popular language in the town is English, consequently much time has to be spent in the town schools, in order to secure anything like proficiency in French.

5. THE COUNTRY SCHOOLS.—English, in the country districts, is almost a foreign tongue, as the Jersey Patois is almost exclusively spoken. Many of the children in our country schools are of French extraction, and in order to teach the three R's intelligently, nine hours per week are by no means sufficient.

The certificated head teachers of Jersey are extremely anxious to do their utmost to maintain the efficiency of their schools, but beg respectfully to state that theirs are schools of "special difficulty," and that the compulsory teaching of drawing will seriously affect the progress of the children in the three R's.

Signed on behalf of the Jersey Teachers,

CHAS. SPARGO, Jersey, St. Owen's Wesleyan School

26th Feb., 1892.

(Member of the N. U. T.).

III.—RESOLUTIONS OF CONFERENCE AND LOCAL ASSOCIATIONS.

CONFERENCE, 1891.

1. "That in all schools Drawing should be an optional subject."
2. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, the Grant for Drawing is inadequate in comparison with the expense entailed in teaching the subject; and that in all schools in which the subject is satisfactorily taught the payment per head on the average attendance should be at least 4s."
3. "That, in the opinion of this Conference, teachers should have the same liberty to classify their scholars in the subject of Drawing as has been extended in the case of all other subjects."

4. "That this Conference is of opinion that provision for the instruction of girls in Cookery should not be required as a condition of their earning a Grant for Drawing."

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—"That the Science and Art Department be asked to grant entire freedom of classification in Drawing, and to increase the grant for that subject, and report on the same as in the ordinary subjects."

Rutland and Melton Mowbray.—"That Drawing be treated by the Education Department as Needlework is, and that the usual teacher's certificate be considered as sufficient, without any special Drawing certificate."

East Grinstead.—1. "That in the opinion of this association the requirements in Drawing in Standard V. and upwards are too difficult and require to be reduced."

2. "That the concessions as to grouping, &c., allowed in Singing (Appendix IV., Arts. 9 and 10) apply also to Drawing, in schools with an average attendance of less than 100 boys.

Standard I. take I. } These can be grouped for teaching.

Standard II. ,, II. }

Standards III. and IV. take III.

Standards V., VI., and VII. take IV."

Herts (Educational).—1. "That the Drawing requirements, as set forth in the Science and Art Directory, are excessive for Rural schools, and call for immediate revision."

3. "That in mixed schools, under a mistress, Drawing should not be a compulsory subject."

Pembrokeshire.—"This meeting would respectfully urge upon the Executive of the N. U. T. the necessity for taking immediate steps to procure absolute freedom of classification in Drawing."

Bridgend.—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the requirements for Drawing in no school should exceed those of Standard V.; and that in Rural schools Drawing should be an optional subject."

2. "That the possession of the parchment certificate should be sufficient qualification for the teaching of all obligatory subjects."

Oswestry.—1. "Teacher's certificates should cover all obligatory subjects."

2. "We, as a body, think that Drawing is an excellent thing, but time taken up in teaching it will act injuriously on other subjects, and, therefore, some modification of existing requirements should be made, and liberty of classification allowed."

Slough.—1. "This association is of opinion that Drawing requirements, as set forth in the Science and Art Directory, are excessive for Rural schools, and call for immediate revision."

2. "That in a school with not more than one certificated master, no higher tests should be required of Standard V. and upwards than those for Standard IV."

3. "That in Mixed schools Drawing should not be a compulsory subject."

4. "That there should be the same liberty of classification in Drawing as in the other subjects."

Norfolk Confederation of Rural Schools in connection with the N. U. T.—1. "That the teacher's certificate should cover all the obligatory subjects laid down in any Code."

2. "That it is monstrous that all the Grant should depend upon a teacher's success in teaching what to future agricultural labourers, at least, is a most unimportant subject of instruction."

3. "That the requirements should not exceed those for Standard IV., and should be optional in all schools, at least till an efficient and sufficient staff becomes a sine qua non for earning Government Grants."

4. "That success in teaching Drawing should be followed by the payment of a higher Grant than at present."

26. If compulsory, in town schools only.
27. Optional in rural schools, or where insufficient staff.

31. In all schools average less than 50 boys.
32. Yes ; where average of boys is under 60.
33. Alternative subject might be allowed. Certainly, Yes (boys less than 50).
34. Yes ; should hold up both hands for it.
35. Absolute freedom.
36. Certainly in small schools under mistress.
37. Most decidedly in small rural schools.
38. In rural schools, decidedly Yes. The feeling of our association is that Drawing should be optional.
39. In small schools at any rate.
40. Yes ; in rural schools. Local authority to select extra subject.
41. In all schools where there is only one certificated teacher.

(2) TEACHER'S ORDINARY CERTIFICATE TO COVER THE TEACHING OF ALL OBLIGATORY SUBJECTS.

1. Yes, certainly.
2. Yes. Otherwise gross breach of faith.

3. Yes. Trained teachers were taught the subject and examined in it.
4. Certainly. It is our diploma.
5. That was the understanding when it was granted.
6. Most decidedly.
7. Most emphatically Yes. Why should I be well qualified before 1st September, 1891, and non-qualified the day after?
8. Feel strongly, Yes. It covers teaching of singing or specifics. Why not drawing?
9. A great hardship if not.
10. Yes. No mention made of this when I sat for certificate.
11. Most emphatically Yes.
12. Yes, in case of older teachers.
13. Yes. Many teachers would prefer Old Code to the New with the whole Grant dependent on Drawing.
14. Certainly. Government entered into a contract with me in consideration of my having passed certain examinations. If they now disqualify me they are unlawfully and unjustly breaking their contract and robbing me for the benefit of others.
15. Yes, in common fairness.
16. If not, I and others must abandon teaching.
17. Most certainly, or else, why was it not issued conditionally?
18. Yes. Certificates granted on certain conditions which should not be broken.
19. Yes. Understood I was certificated once and for all. No one has any right to break faith, and demand more. It is most cruel and unjust.
20. Yes. Most iniquitous to demand otherwise.
21. Yes. A bargain's a bargain!
22. Yes—it is only just—otherwise a most flagrant breach of faith.
23. Yes. Simple justice.
24. Yes. It is possible for a non-D to teach the subject as well as a D.
25. Certainly—or of what good is our parchment?
26. Surely a teacher's certificate is a sufficient qualification to cover all obligatory subjects.
27. Why it should not be so is to me a sublime mystery. During the whole of my three years' training at St. Mark's we were regularly taught Drawing by Professor Rawlings.
28. Yes—most important. Otherwise a glaring injustice.

(3) A MODIFIED SYLLABUS FOR SMALL SCHOOLS.

1. Certainly.
2. Only just and fair.
3. Teachers should be allowed to draw up Syllabus for approval.
4. Standard IV. highest in schools with averages of less than 100. Beyond Standard IV greatly modified.
5. Nothing beyond Standard IV. in country schools. Grouping should be allowed as in geography.
6. Yes; Upper Standards too severe.
7. Finds that the work of I.-IV. is as much as he can accomplish.
8. Yes; no paper work below Standard III. in rural schools. Highest drawing Standard, the IV.
9. Imperative. How can a teacher do justice to seven standards single-handed?

10. Model should be abolished ; also Solid Geometry, Shading, &c.
11. Yes ; where only one certificated teacher, up to Standard IV.
12. To Standard IV. averaging below 100.
13. Up to Standard IV. averaging less than 100. Freedom of classification.
14. Yes. Not sufficient time to do all the work in Standards I. to VII.
15. Yes. Absolutely impossible to comply with requirements. I find by daily experience I cannot get the lower part done. Liberty of classification essential.
16. Not above Standard III. for boys below 60 average, and not above Standard IV. for boys below 100 average.
17. To Standard III. (average 60), to Standard IV. (average 100), perfect liberty of classification.
18. Highest should not exceed Standard IV. Complete liberty of classification.
19. Where teacher is unaided, Standard IV. should be the limit. Standards I., II., III., the work of the respective standards. Standards IV.-VII. the work of Standard IV.
20. Standard IV., maximum limit in small rural schools.

(4) COST OF TEACHING, APPARATUS, &c.

1. £10 to £15 out of School Board funds. Not met by the Grant.
2. Board object to expense. Teacher does with as little material as possible. Allows boys use of his own instruments.
3. Cost as much as Grant earned (1d. a month in most cases). Inspector's expenses, &c., for one day more than whole year's Grant in many cases.
4. Already spent £8. Boys to be examined, 83. Made Grant £8.
5. Nearly £2 10s. for last year, and Grant only 19s. 6d.
6. Far exceeds the amount received in Grant, and we have to teach with very meagre apparatus on that account.
7. Difficulty in getting apparatus (funds low).
8. Models, freehand sheets, &c., will cost as much as Grant for whole school. Have had to order fewer books, grammars, &c., to keep stationery account down.
9. Personally it means less salary.
10. Have expended between £2 and £3 myself.
11. About £5 this year.
12. Costs more in proportion to teach it in little than in large schools, e.g., demonstration sheets are required as much for 6 as for 60 boys. Spent more than we can receive, even, if we get "Ex."
13. Managers provide, but expect a due return from Drawing Grant.
14. Grant does not pay for material.
15. Materials provided by managers after much grumbling.
16. Large Grant necessary. "Grant is nowhere to pay for materials."
17. A struggle for managers to find money.
18. Ought to have assistance from the State to supply apparatus.
19. Falls rather heavily. Any apparatus I require is willingly got.
20. Have lost money, though we were marked "Good."
21. To teacher of drawing £5 (paid by mistress), stationery 7s. 9d., total £5 7s. 9d. Grant £1 5s.
22. Cost of supplying material is very considerable,
23. Expense far exceeds Drawing Grant.

24. Cost of Drawing, independent of apparatus, amounts to at least £12 per annum (30 boys, 18 of whom are half-timers). Grant at most £3.

25. Already more than we can earn.

26. Grant should be increased to a minimum of 4s.

27. Drawing taught for eight months, and "Excellent" Grant earned. This calculated on average attendance of 10 boys amounted to 9s. 6d. Mistress has to pay for services of drawing teacher.

28. Cost of Drawing will form one more serious drawback to the already crippled finances of many a rural school, and will return but a meagre percentage even should "Good" or "Excellent" be earned.

24. No help. Seventy-two on books. Fifty-eight in standards. Boys taught Drawing, 29.

(6) DIFFICULTIES IN OBTAINING THE "D."

1. Weak sight ; impossible to get "D." Age 48.
2. Trained certificated teacher of 30 years' standing. Nearer 60 than 50. Three miles from nearest railway station. Health not of the most robust.
3. Very expensive. Class 12 miles distant. Takes 8 hours every Saturday. Twelve miles from railway. "Twenty-four miles in last Saturday's snow."
4. Gives up Saturday to attend class in all weathers. Has to walk through fields, sometimes so muddy that boots can hardly be kept on. For one month has been ill with cold.
5. Does not know of an Art school nearer than 100 miles. Has to pass in B. B. and L. and S. Too fagged at end of day's work.
6. Five miles from nearest station, and 14 miles from drawing class. Had to travel more than 50 miles last May by country roads. Worked all summer to prepare for B. B. and L. and S. Department informed him he must attend at a centre. This meant 100 miles, and absence from home for one or two nights. Did not go.
7. Joined a correspondence class. Cost already £3, out of small salary (£64). 58 years of age. Drawing Inspector told him he must qualify in two years.
8. Has to spend three hours each evening. Six miles to Drawing class on Friday night and Saturday morning. Simply dreadful in these winter months. Strain caused illness, and absence from school ; under a physician. Expense quite beyond her means.
9. Thirty-four miles' journey every Saturday to Drawing class. Start at 8 A.M., get back at 6 P.M. No time for rest or recreation. Several teachers wear two pairs of spectacles—one to look at blackboard, the other for paper work. These are constantly on and off.
10. Nearest class 20 miles off. Four miles from a station. Has to travel 50 miles every Saturday for a lesson in Drawing, and pay out of salary of £60 and house.
11. Bought books and read. Attended centre, 19 miles off ; total cost 18s. Heard nothing as to result, though he sent stamped addressed envelope to Secretary. Then sat on day of school examination, but was interrupted throughout. Result: children, fair ; master, 2nd class, useless.
12. Twelve miles (6 each way) to Art class. Gave two hours of an evening, when well enough. Too ill since December 19th. Anxiety and worry truly killing us.
13. Walk 5 miles to nearest station. Then 14 miles by train. All Saturday taken up until November 21st.
14. Tried 9 times for Freehand. Model, 5. Holds Geometry and Perspective.
15. Sat 14 times for Freehand. Passed second class three times.
16. Impossible to attend Art class—none within several miles. Sat for Light and Shade and complimented by Inspector in charge, yet failed!
17. Journey of over 60 miles last October. Had to leave home night before. Cost 18s. 6d. Passed in Black Board ; failed in Light and Shade. Had to learn from a book. Worked for 7 months (average 15 hours a week) at Perspective, and was taught by a capable head teacher, who had passed well in subjects. Result "failure." In very much less time earned 1st Advanced in Agriculture.
18. Age over 40. Great difficulties owing to weakened sight and unsteady hand. Nearest class 16 miles off.
19. No ability for drawing whatever. Sits from 7 p.m. to 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning at freehand. Never out of school until 6 p.m. Income £60. Drawing (private) cost 88s. recently. Sight affected by close application. Wears spectacles. Fears she must go to the Ophthalmic Hospital. Goes to bed with eyes streaming with water.

20. Age 45. From tea time to bed time daily at drawing. "In my sleep I am often puzzling over problems in geometry and perspective."

21. Forty-nine years of age. Failing hand and eye render acquirement of "D" almost impossible.

22. My own drawing materials have cost me pounds. Worked early and late all last winter and again this winter. Trying "correspondence." The worry torments me night and day. Eyes being affected—now wearing spectacles owing to close application. When attending class had to get up about 5 and trudge to station. Last time laid up with sciatica. Age 47.

23. At my age and with no facilities or special aptitude I regard the getting of the "D" as out of the question.

24. Have tried hard and failed so far. Lessons by post! Had to travel 23 miles to be examined in model—away all night. Railway station 5 miles distant.

25. Have tried not less than eight or nine times for freehand. Gained second class last April.

26. Sixteen miles to Science and Art class.

27. Salary only £50. Cannot afford to pay for tuition and lodgings each week end.

28. Correspondence class costing with instruments 3 guineas. Worked every minute, even Sunday afternoon. Obtained a 2nd class. In addition, taking lessons from teachers costing 5s. each visit. Distance to nearest art school 11 miles.

29. Correspondence classes, money paid before-hand, papers very irregularly sent. Tried going to a class (6 miles), also joined with other teachers to work at each other's houses 3 and 4 hours spent like this of an evening. Also worked hard Saturdays and Sundays. Sat twice for freehand and failed. A friend has sat three times and failed.

30. I am 62 years of age (in charge of this school 20 years).

31. My efforts towards obtaining any pass towards "D" have as yet been futile. Live too far away from art class. Joined correspondence class in London, persevered for two months, health broke down and had to resign school for three months; have resumed work, but feel very despairing of ultimate success.

32. I do not hold one drawing certificate and am afraid I never shall, as I possess no taste for it.

33. Long and severe illness of 16 months' duration commencing May, 1890. Illness has left hands and muscles in such a condition that it makes it impossible for me ever to gain first class in freehand. No hope of regaining health in that school—left after 17 years service and went to the seaside to live. Gained fair drawing grant last January, having to teach 70 single-handed. Married. Aged 44. Six young children.

34. I tried in ——— 3 years ago, but I could not see to do the Freehand copy.

35. I have tried all subjects twice, some thrice. Only got Freehand. I may add that in Geometry I have cleared difficulties more than once for a third grade Art teacher. I've no luck.

36. So many years since I did any Drawing that my hands are too clumsy for the work. 5 miles to go by rail to attend class (expensive). Age 44. Little taste for it.

37. Very great indeed, being worrying and expensive in the extreme. Have to travel 10 miles in all winds and weathers, along dirty country roads and lanes; the cost of hire in an open cart being 8s. each time.

38. Age 62. "Isn't it a cruel hardship to make us poor old men and women toddle off to school again?"

39. I am now in my 59th year. Journey of 20 miles by rail, in addition to walking 3 miles, at a cost of not less than 2s. 8d. each journey. Cost to me for lessons £5.

40. I cannot possibly draw. An Ex-P.T. has been got at £5 increase, and all Drawing grant. Reckon loss of salary at £10. I tried hard and got only Geometry.

41. Ten and a-half miles along country roads to nearest Art Class, and obliged to be away from home from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

42. Private lessons for 6 months. Rode 8 miles \times 26, equal 208 miles on bicycle or by train. Whilst receiving lessons I taught my P.T.s, who sat in May, 1888; one passed second class in Freehand and second class in Geometry, and the other second in Geometry. These count towards "D." I sat in October, 1888, passed second class in Perspective. This does not count. Again sat and again passed second class. I removed to — in 1889. Art class there a poor one, so I went to —, anxious to get best possible teaching. During two sessions, 1890 and 1891, I attended as follows:—Freehand and Model 38 times, Perspective 14, Geometry 11; 47 journeys to —, thus travelling 1,810 miles. Railway fare £7. Class fees 10s. Caught the 4.47 train in evening, and returned at 10. Then sat. Failed in Perspective. Second class in Freehand. My P.T. (taught by myself) passed first class in Perspective. Judging by past experience it will require 10 years' hard work to gain "D."

(8) ATTITUDE OF MANAGERS.—DIFFICULTY IN OBTAINING SITUATIONS.

1. Board object to drawing—(a) expense; (b) time should be given to other work.
2. Managers think Drawing quite unnecessary and an expensive luxury.
3. Manager becomes more tyrannical, and although teacher passed 98 per cent. and gained "Excellent," fears for the future.
4. Managers would be glad for Drawing to be discontinued.
5. Has always done well with managers, because his reports were "Good" and "Excellent," but fears for the future, for managers know he has not the D.
6. Must leave his school if his certificate does not cover drawing. No chance for another situation.
7. Is certain he could never get another situation.
8. Managers consider it quite useless in her school. (Labourers' children.)
9. School Board would prefer subject dropped.
10. Managers and parents would never desire it.
11. Been here seventeen years and done well—"Excellent." Yet is sure he must go.
12. Managers think it absurd, as we have only four standards—I. and II., boys; rest girls and infants.
13. If both ends do not meet, "Managers have just given me an intimation that salaries must be reduced."
14. Managers tried every means to get exemption, but failed.
15. Is certain he would be compelled to leave.
16. Managers unfavourable to drawing.

17. Fears managers' attitude when stationers' bills come in. Impossible to get another situation.

18. Even assistant teachers have difficulty without drawing certificates.

19. Our Board does not yet know what the "D" means.

20. Managers could not possibly afford to provide an assistant with "D." Feels very unsafe.

21. Last year I took two class subjects with girls, as well as boys, and singing by note—earning 19s. 6d. per head. This year drawing is piled on. In spite of the advice of the Inspector, my managers refuse to allow me to drop a subject, lest by doing so I should fail to earn the 17s. 6d. a head on the whole school—i.e., including Infants and Standard I., which in our case are reckoned as infants. I have pointed out to them that, as it is impossible to do everything, something must go to the wall. They reply, "Let it be drawing."

22. I very much fear that if we did not get at least "Good" for Drawing (notwithstanding epidemic and bad weather), one manager at least might move for appointment of teacher with "D."

23. Self and wife out of school for six months. The "D" was the difficulty.

24. Managers neglect to find apparatus, &c. Last year packet of drawing to scale cards came a few days before examination. This year four months gone, yet no models for Standard V. have been received.

25. In sympathy with teachers. "If I fail in the teaching of drawing I am still secure of my situation. . . . I am afraid not many teachers are so fortunately placed."

26. Managers have no sympathy with "Drawing craze." But for Drawing would have obtained an appointment, salary rising to £85 (female).

27. Consider it very magnanimous to continue to employ an unqualified teacher.

28. Managers think it unnecessary for rural schools.

29. Managers will not employ D-less ones, even when a master of an Art school gives a testimonial as to capabilities. "Capable, but unlucky in exams," is a fatal label.

30. Managers not particularly interested, but generally of opinion that time might be more profitably and usefully spent.

31. Managers already hint they must have teachers certified by Science and Art Department as capable of earning Drawing Grant.

32. Managers gave £5, and mistress gave £5, to keep present certificated mistress for Drawing only.

33. Board here quite rebelled at first, and refused any materials for some time. Then they wrote to the Department to know if it really was necessary. No sympathy. When I complained of the worry, chairman turned it off by saying it would not be felt by the young teachers coming on. I knew what he insinuated.

34. Subject to loss of salary unless I earn the grant.

35. About 18 months ago I got out, and was 8 months before obtaining another post. Have no doubt Drawing was the main reason,

36. Sympathetic; but how shall I fare in applying for another school?

37. Chairman (the Vicar) did all he could to free me from teaching it.

38. Utter indifference except to the money question.

39. Dead against Drawing.

40. Mine has been a disastrous and disheartening experience. Managers at last meeting reduced salary £10 to provide drawing materials, &c. I had only £137 (no house), and this included payment for wife's services (Art. 84). I must accept this, or join ranks of unemployed.

41. Am positive managers would incur no loss on my account. If there were loss, my name would be "Walker."

41A. Have been refused many good situations because I have not the "D."

42. Lost chance of better post through lack of "D" in April, 1890.

43. I have no doubt the majority of managers think I am not efficient. Feel I could not get another school.

44. I must resign here in order to get near a Drawing centre.

45. Managers' sympathy with me. They do not think Drawing necessary or desirable in my school.

46. Managers have no wish to have Drawing taught here.

47. Board averse to compulsory drawing. If the "D" were necessary, our Board would, I fear, engage other teachers.

48. Managers object to any expense for Drawing. Mistress has to pay for services of a Drawing teacher.

49. Managers sympathetic, and consider it a great hardship on teachers in country schools to have to try to qualify for "D."

50. Managers fail to see the slightest use in teaching Drawing to a regiment of plough-boys.

51. Managers do not care for Drawing to be taught.]

52. Cannot obtain a better post owing to being a "non-'D.'"

(9) DIFFICULTIES EXPERIENCED IN TEACHING DRAWING,

1. Standards III. and IV., nearly all half-timers. After passing Standard IV., boys leave in February, returning in November and December. How can these be prepared for Standard V.?

2. Mixed school. No help in teaching. Six Standards and Infants.

3. If taught, must be at expense of some more useful subject. Most of the children leaving on passing Standard IV.

4. Of the 83 boys, 10 only live in the village, the remainder at a distance of two miles, &c. Attendance considerably affected by bad weather.

5. Welsh teachers have to teach a language, the most troublesome and worrying of their work. In reading 10 or 12 lines to a page, the most that can be done in a lesson, what time for Drawing?

6. Mistress takes 6 standards, singing by note, grammar, and needlework. Assistant takes Infants. Needlework takes much time out of school.

7. This is a wild district, and attendance will never be much better. Too much to teach already.

8. What am I to do when I have all the 7 Drawing standards to teach single-handed? At present I have 5 boys in Standard V. (drawing). Of these 3 will leave after the Government examination, so I must teach Standard VI. Drawing to 2 boys.

9. No help. Two class subjects. Seven standards and Infants.

10. Not one of my 40 children come from a home where English is spoken. Imagine the examination day with a strange Inspector! Drawing taught by myself alone, while girls take needlework.

11. This year I have 2 boys in Standard V., whose average attendance will be 1.2.

12. Parents strongly opposed. Assistants know nothing of Drawing.

13. Nearly worked to death trying to do with five standards, single-handed, what I believe is impossible.

14. Drawing distasteful, and not in touch with the local requirements.

15. With the limited staff, the following taken:—Three R's, geography, grammar, music (staff) for all. Sewing for girls, Drawing for boys, Diocesan examination. I am wearied out, my Senior P.T. is wearied out, one retired in disgust last year, and has left the profession.

16. Parents grumble that Drawing is taught. Will not do children any good. They are wanted to work as soon as possible.

17. No help. Seven standards and 2 Infant classes. Take 3 R's, Scripture, geography, recitation (grammar I had to drop to make way for Drawing), singing, drill, needlework, and kindergarten to the Infants. Have sat up until 1 and 2 in the morning; doctor stopped this. In bad weather I frequently have 10 to 15 children only present. Nobody knows the weight of the burden save those who have the misfortune to bear it.

18. Several parents have said to me: "Why don't you teach my lad to read and write and cast up figures, and never mind bothering him with drawing?" Boys not so quick with Drawing as in other subjects; result is, they stay away when drawing lesson is on.

19. Six standards, 7 next year. No help. Bulk of children leave after passing Standard IV.

20. No help. Have to take 55 boys in geography and Drawing single-handed on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons.

21. Have been teaching Drawing for five years, and, though qualified in subjects I am taking, I find it downright hard work.

22. Some boys never will learn Drawing. Girls' sewing classes must be left to teach this handful of boys Drawing. I have to spend many hours of my own time in looking over and fixing needlework.

23. Two class subjects (geography and grammar). Heretofore, needlework a class subject. I am hours fixing. Only two boys out of the 23 examined showed any talent for Drawing. All the parents think about is for the boys to pass Exemption Standard and go to work.

24. After passing Standard III., a boy need only (under the Bye-laws) make an average of 4 out of 10 attendances weekly. I have to instruct 51 single-handed.

25. Must take three standards in Drawing, single-handed. Next year, four.

26. Needlework has to be taught at the same time.

27. With my present staff, I find it utterly impossible to do the work single-handed.

28. A great many children attend from the Hills, a distance 2, 3, and 3½ miles—absent for many weeks in winter.

29. I have the seven standards, and the assistant the infants. On sewing afternoons, I have four standards in Drawing, and three classes of infant boys.

30. Parents desire the time to be given to R., W., and A.

31. No one to attend to needlework, while I waste two hours weekly trying to teach the village boys to bisect or trisect an angle.

32. School situated on edge of Fens of Lincolnshire. Attendance bad, and there is an increasing demand for juvenile labour.

33. I have the whole of the six standards—one class subject.

34. I have to teach (entirely) all the standards up to and including V. (about 45 boys), besides superintending girls' needlework, which is taken by P.T.

35. Sewing four half-days per week, as we have accommodation for only half the girls to take needlework at a time. I have the whole of the standards for Drawing (taking Standard V. this year).

36. Always teach four, and sometimes five, standards, single-handed. You can imagine what it must be to take needlework and drawing at the same time.

37. Boys absent four and five half-days a week at certain times in the year; if boys pass Standard IV., parents only send them when they are not wanted at home. How can they learn Model Drawing? Solid Geometry?

38. Numbers in standards—Standard VII., 4; Standard VI., 6; Standard V., 4; Standard IV., 8; Standard III., 4; Standard II., 5; Standard I., 8. No assistance whatever. The irregular attendance for six months of the year makes the teaching practically useless.

39. In my own rural school of 200 children (boys, girls, and infants), boys have to be kept in after school hours and to come before school hours to prepare for drawing examination.

40. The two subjects—drawing and needlework—cannot be taught at the same time, both requiring unremitting care and skill from the teacher. Exemption standard in this district is the fourth. All boys work on the land. The country fingers may draw a straight line, but they will never reach the work of the higher standards.

41. Children do not like the subject. Out of 33 boys only one has any gift.

42. Only two out of the whole school are likely to make any use of drawing after leaving school.

(10) REMARKS (GENERAL).

1. Attendance should be taken into account. No column for this on drawing schedule. Kept back some who had made only 100, 90, &c., attendances. Drawing Inspector took umbrage at this. These could only make 8 or 10 drawing attendances.

2. M.P. candidates will certainly be asked questions on the subject. If concessions are granted, Sir W. Hart-Dyke will receive the thanks of hundreds of poor country teachers.

3. In the name of all that is fair, reasonable, and honourable, the Government should at least stand between us and ruin. We—thousands of us—make an appeal almost with the energy of despair.

4. Reading and writing not so good as formerly. Time taken from these for drawing.

5. Fancy one boy being taught in V. or VI. Standard, and then leaving just before examination, which may often be the case in a rural school.

6. Time taken from other subjects which would be far more useful to children in such a small rural district.

7. Inspectors say we ought to "rush" all into the children in the summer time that we can.

8. I feel that though I was first in college I could not get a school, though the last man might if he had the "D."

9. Other rural teachers to whom I have spoken complain of the absurdity of teaching solid geometry and light and shade to classes of 2, 3, and 4 children. There is not one school in twenty in the rural districts having more than three or four boys in Standards VI. and VII.

10. A teacher for thirty years. No drawing certificates, yet taught subject in 1891 for the first time and earned "Good."

11. Kindly help us all you can. It is almost a case of life and death to some of us poor, overworked, country teachers.

12. Surely the Government will not commit such a breach of faith. Hardship is intensified in raising the standard for teachers just when drawing is made compulsory.

13. To deprive us of our qualification to teach is pure robbery. I can teach, for example, shorthand, and earn a grant, yet hold no certificate.

14. Drawing examinations at centres should be held on Saturdays. It need not then be known that a teacher has sat and failed, perhaps often. Imagine the clerk of School Board, or manager, knowing of these failures!

15. I have had excellent opportunities of knowing teachers' views. No less than 2 teachers have visited or written me upon the subject; and a few weeks ago I gave a paper, by request, on "Drawing in Elementary Schools," to a united meeting of ——— Association. I have visited schools, given advice, and test examinations. I have been heartily sorry for many poor teachers.

16. (1) No compulsory attendance in ———. Children 6, 7, 8, 9 years of age (in many cases) cannot speak a word of English. Many of the children (especially in country schools) are French. (2) In addition to English, we have to teach French, the requirements being exceedingly stiff. (3) Real grievance. Positions uncertain, lives harassed, responsibilities and cares increased tenfold.

17. Cannot but compare myself to the farmers' old horses, which, after serving their masters well for many years, are turned out to the common to die of starvation.

18. Drawing absolutely useless to the labourer. Speaks from experience, was on a farm 5 years before beginning to teach. School life of majority of rural children short, hence need of giving all possible attention to the three R.s. It has crowded out some other subjects. The question then is, is it of more value than the subject dropped (say geography)? Want all my spare time for study for a degree in music.

19. Teachers in this district have all got "Good" and one "Ex.," a proof positive that teachers ordinarily certificated without special drawing qualifications, are quite able to teach successfully. Abolish fair, good, and excellent. Average for last year, 137. No. on books, 188. No. examined 188. Staff: master, two P.T.s, monitress (for 140 at most), consequently there were 50 children for whom no teacher existed.

20. Four examinations during the year: (1) Government, (2) scripture, (3) organising master, (4) drawing.

21. The work of a country teacher is nothing but slavery. Every Wednesday, from 1.30 to 3, I teach drawing to four groups of boys, and at the same time have to teach the girls and two infant classes. I cannot take the drawing on sewing afternoons, for I have all the girls' work to attend to. How can a teacher teach arithmetic to four standards, at the same time teaching reading to three others, and give a writing lesson to two others all in the space of half an hour?

22. If compulsory, and drawing is not quite up to the mark, it should not influence the grant for elementary subjects. I ask this as a matter of justice towards old and experienced teachers.

23. Compulsory drawing is a heavy burden, and a great injustice.

24. All kinds of work expected. Scripture an important feature. Help in choir, visit parents, collect money for parish magazine, manage boot and shoe club, &c. Would prefer to teach agriculture.

25. Cannot sufficiently express my thanks to N. U. T. for part taken. Compulsory drawing "hateful subject." Subject useless to boys who will, in all probability, work on land.

26. Teacher in this district has died suddenly, and his widow considers his death was accelerated by over-work, striving to obtain his drawing certificates.

27. Being "D"-less, it is a great injustice to force me to earn 90s. for drawing, or to be fined over £100 (the amount of the boys' grant), especially after being successful for 30 consecutive Government inspections. Penalty out of all proportion to offence.

28. No certificate required for singing by note or specifics. All who have taught it satisfactorily should be allowed to teach and earn grant.

29. If compulsory, should be examined by Education Department. Should also be part of P.T.'s annual, and all teachers' examinations, and no separate certificate issued to elementary school teachers.

30. Teachers should be allowed the grant if the subject is satisfactorily taught.

31. Suggest that certificates for teaching drawing should be of two classes.

1. Drawing certificate D might be first class.

2. Second grade certificate.

(a) Second freehand. (b) Second model. (c) Pass in geometrical drawing. Examinations should not be held at night.

32. The worry and anxiety respecting these qualifications are beginning to tell on many a hard-working and conscientious old teacher.

33. Examination on 6th January last, expects "failure"; the experience of a boys' school not five miles away.

34. Owing to funds being low, I have had to suffer a reduction of salary of £7.

35. If teachers are to obtain the "D," the old conditions should obtain.

36. Nobody wants it in this purely agricultural district, and it hinders children working at more necessary things in their limited school life. Shall have £10 per year less than I have had as average for last seven years, except that I am to have £2 10s. of Drawing Grant.

37. The Prime Minister has said "The first duty of a government is to see that all agreements between a man and his neighbour are binding and to be in force." Confidence of teachers shaken.

38. Doctor absolutely forbids me to attempt anything now.

39. Agriculture would be more useful. Drawing examinations for teachers should take place in day time.

40. Where can time be found?

41. I have to sit up late at night preparing needlework and practising drawing.

42. If no relief can be granted impress upon Department the necessity, in the interests of humanity, of introducing a short Bill next Session to quickly and quietly extinguish these poor old worn-out servants of the State, and not allow them to linger on in such intolerable misery.

43. Whole school grant should not depend upon success in drawing examinations.

44. School backward in other subjects owing to time given to drawing.

45. Time given to drawing used to be given to class subjects, which suffer in consequence.

46. I know many mistresses who have to teach drawing at the same time as needlework, which is preposterous. Drawing Inspector asked Standard I. children questions which only a knowledge of Book I. Euclid could answer, and he further told me all children must go up a standard a year. One boy had dropsy over three months. Inspector said he must go up a standard next year.

47. Arithmetic is suffering owing to time given to drawing.

48. In other years I have passed in two class subjects—grammar and geography. This year the Inspector told me it was impossible to do so, as I had taken drawing extra. I told him that had nothing to do with it, not being taught in either grammar or geography time; but no good, of course. I lost the grant for geography.

49. The rector cannot believe that "My Lords" require teachers who are already certificated to qualify themselves for a "D." Thinks I am mistaken.

50. When in college in 1849—1851 Drawing in my case was not taught. I can assure you that my future prospects, owing to this new import of drawing, are gloomy in the extreme. In fact, nothing short of ruin is left to me in my declining years. I am well-nigh driven to despair.

51. Extra work and no increase in staff. Is this subject so all-important? It is a serious matter for non-"D's."

52. Have the brightest hopes if drawing regulations are removed, or if I am allowed to continue to teach drawing with my present certificate. Otherwise it means ruin and the workhouse for me and mine.

53. "My Lords" say I must teach it. However I am not teaching it, and shall wait until next March to hear my doom.

54. To some of the boys who are engaged one-half of their time or more in market gardening, the subject of drawing is not at all beneficial.

55. The drawing has been the cause of much anxiety, in fact to me the greatest trouble of the New Code. We find Standard VII., in arithmetic very difficult to work up to present demand of Code. If drawing is compulsory, something must go to the wall.

56. Hope ere long to see this injustice removed.

57. In all the many rural schools around here there is but one teacher with the "D."

58. Itinerant help almost if not quite out of question. Villages are so scattered. Many teachers are too old to take up the drawing and will have to quit.

59. For 38 years I have been considered qualified for grant purposes. No savings in my case. A family of 14 all told, of whom four have been entirely dependant upon me up to present, and the youngest, a boy of 12, cannot talk.

60. I am assured that the requirements in blackboard are not nearly so exacting at the centres—this is manifestly unfair. Some to their utter amazement passed at ——— others who had attended class greater part of a year and sat at South Kensington were plucked. Again, why not inform teachers at once of failures, so that no time may be lost?

61. Examinations held late in the evening, consequently there was no train by which I could return home at their close. The only train was one to Paddington a little after 11. I took a cab to the house of my parents reaching there about 12.30 midnight. Is it consistent with our ideas of propriety for young girls to be travelling alone at such an hour of the night?

62. How can a mistress superintend seven standards and four groups of needlework at the same time? It is impossible for the older teachers to obtain possession of the "D." Many schools in Yorkshire are situated ten or twelve miles from a railway station, and the nearest art class is twenty miles distant.

63. A "Pass" in any second grade subject, past or future, to count for the "D."

64. Might be a class subject. Three class subjects to be allowed.

65. Drawing is simply the addition of another heavy load to the already over-burdened teacher, especially in rural schools.

66. Needlework already suffering and arithmetic of school. Parents look upon drawing as an innovation of teacher.

67. A glaring injustice.

68. Some of our most able scholars (teachers) have not the power to draw. Must they be branded as incompetent?

69. If the Department must have certain qualifications, they should see that teachers are instructed and can be examined. In no case should the rule be retrospective. It is with drawing as with writing. One can teach writing who may never write a good hand.

70. A waste of time and an expense, while other subjects suffer.

71. Take for example the old vets. and pilots. When the new Vets. and Pilots' Acts were passed, the old vets. and pilots were allowed to act without examination. Why should many teachers be thrown out through their inability to pass the exams. in this subject, when no mention was made or hinted at when they gained certificates?

72. Where a mistress has to work five and six standards (although small numbers in each), and attend to the needlework, it requires much work out of school hours.

73. I do not believe in forcing this upon us and making it almost a condition of retaining one's situation.

74. Fortunately I am qualified by a "D." The one drawing certificate is by the recent capricious action of Code rendered of greater moment to the teacher than all the others put together. County Councils are providing for agriculture, but how can it be taught in rural schools with all the present demands?

XI.—MEMORANDUM RESPECTING ASSISTANT TEACHERS.

The educational arrangements in connection with the public elementary schools have undergone a considerable change during the past twenty years, especially in the direction of the employment of Certificated Assistant Teachers. Before the passing of the Education Act, 1870, and for several years afterwards most of the teachers who had completed their course of training proceeded direct from the training college to the headmastership of a school. But the formation of School Boards for the great centres of population led to the adoption of a system of educating children in large schools under one principal teacher with as many assistants as might be necessary. Some idea of the extent of this change may be gathered from the fact that in 1874 there were only 1,000 certificated teachers employed in England and Wales, while at present there are upwards of 17,000. In 1874 there was one certificated assistant teacher to every sixteen head teachers, but now more than one-third of the certificated teachers are assistants.

In the earlier years during which this change was taking place, young teachers were content to accept a small salary as assistants, having reasonable expectations that within a comparatively short time they would be able to obtain the position of head teachers ; but under the present arrangements many who have received the certificate of the Education Department, and are in every way fully qualified for the profession to which they belong, must remain during the whole of their lives in the position of assistants. The Certificated assistant teachers have gone through the same course of training as head teachers, possess the same diploma, and are equally qualified to take charge of any public elementary school.

The arrangement for working these schools is such that classes are now generally arranged in separate rooms, each under the control of a certificated teacher; so that, although working under a principal teacher who is responsible for the general conduct of the school, the assistant is practically, so far as his class is concerned, in much the same position as the head teacher of a small school. The actual work of tuition is of an exhausting character, and the worry and anxiety invariably connected with it is frequently unnecessarily intensified in the case of certificated assistant teachers by the regulations under which they are required to perform their duties.

As it is certain that the majority of the assistant teachers will never be able to obtain promotion to headmasterships, the question as to the amount of salary paid to this class of teachers becomes one of great importance. Under these circumstances the salary received should be sufficient to enable the teachers to maintain themselves in such a position as their profession entitles them to occupy. The minimum salary should at least be sufficiently large to enable a master to maintain a family. The salaries received by assistant teachers can be ascertained from the report of the Education Department, and it appears from their last report that only ten certificated assistant teachers out of 16,020 are receiving salaries of £200 or over. Of the certificated masters ninety-five per cent are receiving salaries of less than £150 per year, and sixty-five per cent. of the mistresses salaries less than £75 per year. No less than 3159 teachers are in receipt of a salary of less than £50 per year, over 2000 of them receiving an annual salary of less than £45. These amounts are considerably less than the salary received by any other class of persons whose occupation requires the ability and intelligence demanded of a certificated teacher, and are even less than the amounts paid for many kinds of unskilled labour. It is impossible for a teacher to produce the best results in the education of the children committed to his care while he has constantly to struggle with financial embarrassments. It is, therefore, absolutely necessary that these salaries should be considerably increased if the teaching profession is to attract and retain the services of the men best qualified to educate the children of the country.

It appears from the following that the same difficulty is found with respect to the salaries of teachers in Ireland.

Mr. Jackson in introducing in the House of Commons a Bill to improve national education in Ireland on February 22nd, 1892, after proposing that a sum of about £90,000 due to Ireland, for the current financial year, ending March 31st, should be handed over to the Teachers' Pension Fund, stated that they had at their disposal for the ensuing year the sum of about £200,000, and in considering what should be done with this amount, he is reported to have said:—

“ There has been for some time past a feeling that the teachers in Ireland were not very adequately or liberally paid. (Hear hear.) It has also been brought to my attention that the class of assistant teachers, persons in the position of assistant teachers, may go on year after year for a great number of years on a small salary. (Hear hear.) There are, therefore, little grievances, if I may say so, of that kind which I think it is desirable that we should take advantage of this opportunity to endeavour to remedy. (Hear hear.) We propose to make an addition to the school salaries of teachers. We propose to make some remuneration to assistant teachers after seven years of service as assistant teachers.”

XII.—RE-ORGANISATION OF THE UNION.

SCHEME SUGGESTED BY GENERAL PURPOSES COMMITTEE.

Draft Communication to each Member of the Union.

71, Russell-square, London, September, 1891.

DEAR SIR (or MADAM),—I am directed by the Executive to submit for your consideration the proposal for the Re-organisation of the Union made in the report appended, and the observations made thereon by the Executive. Kindly record your vote on the enclosed post card and return it to this office on or before.....

The Executive trust that no vote will be recorded which will not be practically supported subsequently by continued membership, should the contemplated change in the subscription and benefits of the Union be agreed to.—I am, &c.

RE-ORGANISATION OF THE UNION.

Historical.

The following outline indicates briefly the action taken or attempted in the direction of extending the organisation and work of the Union :—

At the Leicester Conference (1884) a resolution was passed approving the principle that the subscription to the Union should be increased so as to include the following benefits :—

- (a) Payment to members in case of sickness.
- (b) Payment to members in old age.
- (c) Payment to members when out of work.
- (d) Legal defence of members.

- (e) Support of members who may suffer injury through the legitimate defence of teachers' interests. (The resolution also directed the Executive to prepare a scheme and submit it to the local associations.)

At the same Conference two shillings was added to the subscription, which has been the means of fulfilling objects (d) and (e).

The report of a Special Committee on "The Manchester Scheme" was submitted to the local associations in the form of a sixteen page pamphlet, which contained new rules for giving effect to the above resolution. The rules provided for a subscription of 6d. per week, payable monthly, quarterly or yearly in advance, the annual subscriptions to be apportioned to the various funds in the following manner :—

- 2s. 6d. to the work of the local association.
- 4s. for general Union purposes.
- 2s. for legal assistance.
- 6s. for temporary relief.
- 1s. payment to local secretary.
- 10s. 6d. for fund for aged and incapacitated members.

Provision was made for payment of a graduated entrance fee on admission or readmission, for suspension of benefits when subscription was in arrear, and for a certain length of membership before receiving benefit.

The report of the associations was against the scheme, the voting being as follows :—

Against the scheme ...172 associations (representing 7,557 members).

The actual number of members who voted were—

For the scheme	604 members.
Against	3,167 ,,

The Conference (1887) directed the executive to consider the propriety of increasing the subscription to provide for members out of employment.

The Executive reported to the Conference (1888) against the increase, their estimate being ten shillings per member to provide a payment of one pound per week.

The Conference at Cheltenham (1888) raised the subscription one shilling per member to secure representation in Parliament.

A resolution to further increase the subscription two shillings per member was sent down to the Associations.

The numbers voting were:—

For	2,507
Against	2,194
Did not vote	590
Total present at taking of poll	5,291

In November the Executive decided not to put on the increase in 1891, but to go again to Conference.

PRESENT POSITION.

1891.—At the beginning of the current year the attention of the Executive was called to the desirability of considering whether any re-organisation of the Union could be effected which would in return for an increased subscription give the members more direct benefits such as are provided by many of the trades' unions. Some information on the subject was collected and reported to the last Conference (see Annual Report of the Union for 1891), but no resolution was proposed arising from the report.

As an amendment to a motion for increasing the subscription to the Union for Parliamentary purposes, the Conference resolved, "That the Executive be instructed to take the vote of the individual members of the Union as to the desirability of placing the Union on a trades' union basis, and that until this question is decided by a conclusive vote of the members, or upon a report to the next Conference, it is inadvisable to alter the terms of membership of the Union."

PROPOSED RE-ORGANISATION.

The Executive, in order to obtain the decision of the members, suggest:—

1. That the subscription to the Union be increased to 1s. per week.

2. That the annual subscription per member be apportioned as follows:—

General work of the Union	5s. 0d.
Local Purposes	3s. 0d.
Parliamentary Election	3s. 0d.
Legal Assistance and Sustentation (Legal, 2s.; Sustentation, 9s.)	11s. 0d.*
Endowment Assurance	10s. 0d.
Sick Pay	20s. 0d.
				<hr/> 52s. 0d. <hr/>

ORDINARY TRADE BENEFITS WHICH ARE OMITTED.

Some of the benefits which are generally provided by trade societies are omitted from the above scheme, on account of the special circumstances in connection with the present position of the Union, among them being the following:—

Benevolence.—Provision has already been made for benevolent grants to members, and for assisting widows and orphans of teachers by means of the Benevolent and Orphanage and Orphan Funds. Had these benefits been included it would have been necessary to re-consider the position of the existing funds.

Superannuation.—The subject has been considered by a Select Committee of the House of Commons, and it is hoped that the Government will assist in providing this benefit and will compel all teachers to contribute to the Fund. If this is carried out, it must not be lost sight of that the cost will increase the disinclination of teachers to pay a large subscription to the Union.

Accident Benefit.—This would be unnecessary in the case of teachers who are not exposed like artisans to the special risk of accident in connection with their work.

* In the event of the Executive deciding to establish an organ of the Union, 3s. would be taken for this purpose from the 9s. suggested for sustentation.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON THE PROPOSED RE-ORGANISATION.

Advantages.—It would provide increased direct personal benefits for members.

It would provide a legal basis for the Union, as by registration as a trades union it could hold property vested in trustees, could sue and be sued, &c.

Time would not be wasted in repeated attempts to increase the subscription.

The Union would probably accumulate funds, and would be in a position to enforce its demands on behalf of its members.

Objections or Difficulties.—As a trades' union the benefits cannot be made legally claimable.†

A trades' union cannot be registered as a friendly society (34 & 35 Vict., c. 31, s. 5). If therefore, in order to secure the legal claim to the benefits, they are brought into conformity with the Friendly Societies Acts, the scheme might not be on the lines laid down in the resolution of Conference.

One of the objects of the Union is "to raise teaching to the dignity of a profession by means of a public register of duly qualified teachers for every class of schools." As a Select Committee has reported in favour of registration, the members should carefully consider whether the Union shall be regarded as a professional organisation or a trades' union.

If contribution to the benefits suggested above be compulsory on all members, it inflicts a hardship upon those who have taken advantage of the optional provision made for them by the Union in the establishment of the Provident Society, or who have made similar provision through other

† The Trades' Union Act (1871) provides (34 & 35 Vict. c. 31, s. 4): Nothing in this Act shall enable any court to entertain any legal proceedings instituted with the object of directly enforcing or recovering damages for the breach of any of the following agreements, namely:—

1. Any agreement between members of a trade union as such, concerning the conditions on which any members for the time being of such trade union shall or shall not sell their goods, transact business, employ or be employed.
 2. Any agreement for the payment by any person of any subscription or penalty to a trade union.
 3. Any agreement for the application of the funds of a trade union.
- (a) To provide benefits to members; or, &c., &c. But nothing in this section shall be deemed to constitute any of the above-mentioned agreements unlawful.

societies. Rather than assure for further benefits they would probably withdraw from the Union.

It is doubtful whether members, after paying the increased subscription, would continue to contribute to the Benevolent and Orphan Funds in addition.

The general probable effect on the membership.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE PROPOSED BENEFITS.

1. General Work of the Union, 5s.—The amount now contributed for this purpose is 3s. The additional 2s. would enable more work to be undertaken and might allow an accumulation of funds to meet emergencies.

With the multiplication of separate funds and increased work, consequent upon the adoption of personal benefits, considerable addition to the staff would be necessary.

The recent decision to refund to the local associations 2s. for each new member will absorb some portion of the amount which would otherwise be at the disposal of the Executive.

2. Local Purposes, 3s.—Members now contribute to associations amounts varying from 6d. to 4s.

The proposed amount would enable associations to carry on their work more thoroughly.

The payment of local secretaries will probably be a necessity either from this fund or the General Fund.

3. Parliamentary Election, 3s.—The Executive have found the present subscription is totally inadequate, and have for the past two years recommended an increase of the proposed amount.

It would enable the Union to have two members in the House.

4. Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund, 11s.—The experience of the last seven years shows that the 2s. per member now paid is required for legal purposes, and only a comparatively small amount has been used for the sustentation of members.

It is suggested that the additional 9s. should be kept separate for the sustentation of members. This would enable the Executive to give assistance to members out of employment as well as to sustain members in other cases where, in the opinion of the Executive, it was considered desirable to give them support. From the estimate made by the Executive in 1888 it is probable that the out-of-work pay would not exceed (?) a week.

The knowledge that some provision was made for their assistance would enable teachers to resist tyranny, and to decline to accept appointments at starvation wages.

On the other hand, it must not be lost sight of that it is in the power of the Department to increase the number out of employment to any extent by flooding the market.

5. Endowment Assurance, 10s.—It is suggested that the Endowment Assurance should be payable to the member, or his representative,

At death, or

On retirement in old age, or

When disabled, or

On withdrawal from the profession.

The amount to be repaid would vary according to the length of membership. A table must be prepared to show the amounts repayable, which will represent the special payments, with interest thereon, and an augmentation resulting from withdrawals from the Union. It is hoped that this feature will be attractive to the lady members who look forward to retirement from the profession.

Withdrawal from the Union would forfeit the claim to this amount.

6. Sick Pay, 20s.—This would produce, on an average, for all members a sum of per week in sickness.*

The difficulty in making this compulsory upon all members is that many have already make provision for sickness through the Provident Society or other societies. The subscription necessary to guarantee this benefit is necessarily high if the amount of sick pay is to be worthy of the profession.

Teachers generally continue to receive their salaries during sickness, hence this benefit is not so necessary a feature of a Teachers' Union as of an ordinary trades union.

It is doubtful whether those over a certain age at admission could be included for this benefit.

* The Actuary states that this principle is a reversion to the ancient practice, which has now become almost obsolete. The modern tendency has been to provide varying rates of contribution according to age.

CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS.

The Executive suggest that the funds relating to the various benefits should be kept separate.

In the event of the vote being favourable to the proposed re-organisation it will be necessary for the Executive to prepare rules containing in detail the conditions under which the various branches of the work could be carried out and to submit them to the Annual Conference.

It is suggested that the post card enclosed for reply should contain the following matter:—

Please write "Yes" or "No" after each of the following questions:—

1. Are you in favour of increasing the subscription to the Union to 1s. per week?.....

2. Do you approve the arrangement of benefits as set out in the report

3. Will you continue a member for (say) five years in the event of the proposed change being adopted?.....

REPORT OF ACTUARY ON SUGGESTED RE-ORGANISATION SCHEME.

25, Pall Mall, London, S.W., 26th September, 1891.

To the Committee of Management of the National Union of Teachers.

GENTLEMEN,—Agreeably with your request I have carefully considered the proposal now under your consideration for the re-organisation of the Union.

The draft memorandum of the Secretary submitted to me seems to deal very fully and precisely with the advantages and disadvantages of placing the Union on a trades union basis or of registering it as a Friendly Society, and the special question with which I have to deal, so far as I have the means to do so, appears to be that of the contributions suggested, which are as follows:—

	s.	d.
General work of the Union...	5	0
Local Purposes ...	3	0
Parliamentary election ...	3	0
Legal Assistance and Sustentation ...	11	0
Endowment Assurance ...	10	0
Sick Pay ...	20	0

Total per annum per member, or at the rate of 1s. per week ... 52 0

An actuary is unable to estimate the sufficiency of the contributions for the first four items without very elaborate statistics, and the detailed experience of the Union is such matters for many years; the division of the contribution proposed into constituent parts, and the assignment of these parts to the various objects of the Union is best decided by the Executive, who must have the best means of knowing from statistics of expenditure under these heads how they can most economically utilise the contributions for the benefit of the members. With regard to the proposed contribution of 11s. for the "Legal and Sustentation Fund," 2s. is said to be required for "Legal Assistance," and 9s. for Sustentation (i.e., out-of-work benefit, and such benefits as are contemplated under the bye-laws (Bye-law 12) for the Administration of the Legal Assistance and Sustentation Fund on page xvi. of the N.U.T. Report for 1891), but it is probable that this 9s. may be reduced to 6s., 3s. of it being required towards the expense of issuing a weekly newspaper as the "Organ of the Union," to keep members well posted up as to all matters affecting their interests.

The contribution to "Sustentation," viz., 9s. or 6s., does not come within the province of an actuary to estimate, but I have been asked to express an opinion on the subject, and submit the following remarks:—In the N. U. T. Report for 1888, pp. lx.-lxiii., will be found a special report of the Executive on a fund for the relief of members out of employment, and it is there estimated that according to statistics then obtained an additional annual subscription of 10s. per member would be required to provide out-of-work pay at the rate of £1 a week, or 7s. 6d. per member for similar benefits with certain limitations and restrictions as set forth in the draft outline of the scheme. I have no means of ascertaining whether the data obtained were sufficient for the purpose or whether the subscriptions quoted were accurately deduced from the data, but I am of opinion that a fixed rate of contribution for a benefit of this kind is quite impracticable, that any such fixed rate must be entirely experimental, and that if it is desired by the members to provide such benefits, according to the scheme of 1888, 6s. might be fixed as the rate of contribution by way of experiment, and any deficiencies arising from an excessive demand upon the fund beyond the amount then provided might be met by means of a levy. If as much as 9s. per member were contributed there would, of course, be less probability of a levy being required, and a surplus (if any) might accumulate and be a reserve for any extraordinary demand upon the fund. The experience of trade societies in such matters is not of much value in this case, inasmuch as the demands upon such a fund would not be so frequent; but, of course, the allowance per week should be higher to professional men than to artisans. Furthermore, the probability of a strike is very small, and there is little chance of any very excessive strain upon the Fund. By a few years actual experience amongst such large numbers as there are in the Union the required rate could soon be adjusted, and a levy would become a rare event.

I now come to the question of endowment assurances, to which it is proposed that 10s. per annum should be contributed. By Table VI. of the Teachers' Provident Society the following sums could be provided, upon attainment of age sixty or at death previously, at the following interval ages, and of course for intermediate ages an estimate can be formed, or the calculation of the exact rate is merely a matter of proportion from the Table.

30	16	13	4
35	13	6	8
40	10	0	0

By the rules of the Teachers' Provident Society contributions for management are made separately from contributions for the benefits, so that, provided the scale of rates of Table VI. is a fair one, these are the actual benefits which could be provided for the 10s. a year. The draft memorandum of the Secretary, however, would seem to require the 10s. per annum to do more than merely provide an ordinary endowment assurance benefit. It is also to provide for a sum to be paid at disablement or withdrawal from the profession, and this sum is to vary according to the length of membership. The sums provided under the ordinary Endowment Assurance Scheme for 10s. a year are small enough, but these additional features would considerably [reduce them if any substantial sums upon disablement or withdrawal from the profession are to be provided. Of course the ordinary surrender values of the Table VI. benefits could be given, but such sums are comparatively small, and could only be given after, say, five years' contributions; they would increase with duration of membership. I have tested the rates of the Teachers' Provident Society for Endowment Assurances, and find them equitable and fairly adjusted. It would, perhaps, meet the wishes of the propounders of this scheme if this 10s. a year were treated as a simple deposit and three per cent. interest allowed upon it.

Sickness Benefit.—The proposed contribution to sickness benefit is £1 a year, and the same amount at all ages. For this contribution a variable benefit according to age could be given, as in the case of Endowment Assurances, or an equal benefit with a varying entrance fee in addition to the subscription; but, before a Table can be drawn up for use, the Executive must decide whether the benefits and contributions are to cease at a certain age (say 60 or to be continued throughout life. It would appear that, having regard to the coming pension scheme, such benefits should only be provided until the pension age is reached; the contributions should also cease at that age. The principle of an equal contribution at all ages for the same benefits is a reversion to a practice which has now become practically obsolete. All the leading Friendly Societies and the best managed of the small societies have adopted Tables with rates for age.

General Remarks.—The desire to increase the subscription to the Union appears to be a very laudable one. Having regard to the larger annual subscriptions than the one proposed (52s.) paid by artisans to Trade Societies effectively managed, the present subscription seems entirely inadequate and unworthy of the profession. If the subscription be raised the members must greatly benefit by the power of the Union to press forward with much greater effect the various projects for the benefit of the profession they have already inaugurated. With regard to the portions of the total contributions to be set aside for Endowment Assurance and Sickness benefits, I would suggest that for such matters the National Union of Teachers merely act as collectors for the Teachers' Provident Society, and that when a member commences to contribute he shall decide to what benefit or benefits granted by the Society that portion of his annual subscription shall be applied, and be informed of the amount of benefit at his age the contribution will provide. With regard to the other part of the subscription, viz., 22s., it will, I think, very much interfere with the general usefulness of the Union if separate contributions and separate funds are kept for the various purposes laid down in the proposed scheme ; besides requiring a more expensive staff, fluctuations in the demands on certain funds cannot be so readily met.

I shall be happy to submit the Sickness Tables I have prepared when the Executive have decided as to the age when sickness benefit is to cease. I am,
Gentlemen, yours faithfully,

H. W. ANDRAS, Actuary.

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

THE Central Committee have the satisfaction of reporting that the past year has been one of unusual prosperity, and they cordially recognise this as gratifying evidence of increased interest in the Fund. For three successive years the receipts have steadily advanced, and while the Committee have endeavoured to give assistance to every deserving applicant, in proportion to the need shown, they have not been unmindful of the necessity for adding to the reserves of the Fund for future contingencies. The following figures are given for the purpose of showing the work done in the past fourteen years, and of supplying the means of comparing the rate of progress :—

With deep sorrow the Committee have to report many serious losses sustained by the Fund during the year. Mr. Heller, the General Secretary, has unfortunately been incapacitated by illness during the last twelve months, and the Committee regret that his present state of health does not permit him to return to duty. The Fund owes much to Mr. Heller, and his retirement will be severely felt. In April of last year Mr. George Collins, the President of the National Union, and an ex-officio member of the Committee, was removed by the hand of death ; and in the following month the news of the decease of Mr. Andrew Wild, an active and enthusiastic member of the Committee for seven years, and at one time its Chairman, was also regretfully received. The Committee have also to mourn the loss of Mr. Mee, of Leeds, Mr. John W. Grove, an Ex-President of the National Union, and Mr. John Russell, editor of the Schoolmaster, all of whom were for many years earnest supporters of the Charity.

RELIEF GRANTS.

At the beginning of last year twenty-six Annuities were being paid ; but this number has since been reduced to twenty-four, by the death of Mrs. Stone, and Mr. J. Martin. The amount paid as permanent relief to Annuitants was £685, or just £100 more than in the preceding year. Encouraged by the success of the past year the Committee have resolved to elect eight additional Annuitants at an increased cost of from £200 to £240 per annum. At the last annual meeting it was resolved to hold the Annuity election in March instead of December, with a view of simplifying the issue of voting papers. The voting power at each election will therefore be regulated by the subscriptions of the previous year.

Temporary relief has been granted by the Central Committee, and nine of the Local Boards, to the extent of £471. This amount is somewhat below the grants of the previous two years, when several cases calling for the maximum grant were considered. Urgent cases are at once reported to the Emergency Relief Committee, and are promptly dealt with, after due inquiry has been made. In their last report the Committee called attention to the advisability of subscribers and others receiving with caution appeals for assistance from applicants not personally known to them ; several recent cases brought under the notice of the Committee emphasise the need for this advice.

HOSPITAL LETTERS.

The practice of granting recommendations to certain hospitals has been continued with good effect, and the list of hospitals has been increased to include the Hospital for Skin Diseases, Leicester Square, and the National Hospital for the Paralysed, Queen Square, to both of which institutions patients have already been sent. It may be noted that these recommendations are only supplied to subscribers for their personal use, or for the use of wife, husband, or children, the latter being minors. By means of a subscription paid to the Hahnemann Convalescent Home, Bournemouth, the Committee were enabled to send a teacher there for six weeks with highly satisfactory results. The subscription will be paid annually.

HOMES OF REST.

Occasional inquiries are made by teachers for information respecting Homes of Rest, and the opinion of the Local Boards has been sought as to the advisability of utilising existing Homes, or of establishing one specially for subscribers. The replies have not been numerous, and the Committee are of opinion that until there is a greater demand for such assistance, the question may remain under consideration.

LOANS.

The advantages derived from this branch of the Fund's work have been more fully appreciated than in any previous year. In most cases monthly repayments are made, and the Finance Committee make it their special duty at each meeting to see that regularity, in this respect, is observed. No loans are granted except to subscribers or members of the National Union, and only on good personal security.

INVESTMENTS.

Two sums have been invested, one in the purchase of £778 Great Eastern Railway Debentures, and the other in the purchase of £551 3s. 8d. Victorian Inscribed Stock. The dividends for the year, and bank interest on cash temporarily deposited, have amounted to £270 4s. 2d., and the total investments now exceed £8,000.

FINANCE.

The cash statement which is appended gives details of the various items of receipts and expenditure. It is satisfactory to note that the number of annual subscribers is larger than ever, that entertainments of various kinds are given to augment the Fund, and that generally willing hands are at work to supply the means for continuing the work of beneficence. The present balance in hand has only very recently accumulated, or a further investment would have been made. It has been considerably reduced by payments for the year 1892.

THE SHIELD AND TROPHY.

The award of the West Yorks' Challenge Shield and the Birmingham Trophy was made to the Rhondda Valley and Pontypridd Association for their splendid total collection of £1,768 15s. 3d., and the highest average per member,—£13 12s. 1d., ever reached. The Cardiff Association stood second on the list, with the handsome total of £1,068 11s. 6d.

CONFERENCE SCHEME.

The results of the Cardiff Scheme largely exceed all previous similar efforts, and the first Welsh Conference will long be remembered with gratitude as giving a great impetus to the work of the Charity. The indefatigable secretary of the Scheme, Mr. Walter Brockington, B.A., and his colleagues, Mr. C. Whitaker, Mr. E. C. Willmott, and Mrs. Bevan, Treasurer of the Committee, are to be heartily congratulated—both on the success of the arrangements for the presentation of purses, and the total collection then made £7,479 8s. 4d., of which amount £3,050 18s. 8d. was allotted by the subscribers to the Benevolent Fund. Two hundred and forty Associations contributed in a greater or less degree to this splendid result, and the kindness of the Marchioness of Bute in graciously receiving these offerings on behalf of the Fund will not readily be forgotten by those who were present on the occasion.

LOCAL BOARDS.

The value of the assistance rendered by the various Local Boards cannot be over-estimated, and it is gratifying to report that their number is still on the increase—Attleboro, Cowbridge, Dover, Hartlepool, Hertford, N.E. Norfolk, Richmond, West Middlesex, and Wolverhampton Local Boards have recently been formed. The Committee look forward to much useful support from these new Boards, and they would strongly urge the formation of Local Boards in connection with every Association throughout the kingdom.

CONCLUSION.

The success which has marked the past year should be an incentive to renewed effort. Much has been done, but much remains to be done. There are still thousands of teachers who apparently show no interest in the work, and it is believed that in many instances their co-operation could be had for the asking. Will not volunteers be found to assist in widening the bond of charitable effort and sympathy?

The Central Committee desire to express their hearty thanks to all officers of Local Boards, to all Collectors, and to all who have contributed during the year. Among the latter are included many ladies and gentlemen not connected with the teaching profession, who cannot all be mentioned by name, but to whom the thanks of the Committee are specially due. Sir Joseph Savory, last year Lord Mayor of London, presided at the Festival Dinner in aid of the Fund, and his kindness and valuable assistance is hereby specially acknowledged. Trustfully relying on the support of their fellow-teachers, the Committee look forward with hope to the future of the Fund, which they are fully convinced is capable of greater development and wider usefulness.

Associations or other corporate bodies subscribing or collecting and paying to the Fund double the amounts named in this Rule, shall exercise for a period of twenty years the same privileges as individual contributors.

MANAGEMENT.

5.—The Fund shall be under the management of a Central Committee consisting of the Trustees and Treasurer of the Fund, the President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary of the National Union of Teachers, the Secretaries of Local Boards, and thirty other Contributors, twenty of whom shall be elected by the Annual General Meeting, and ten by the Executive of the National Union of Teachers. One half of the members elected by the Annual Meeting shall retire annually, but shall be eligible for re-election. Any member being absent from the meetings of the Central Committee and its Sub-Committees for three successive months, shall be deemed to have resigned, unless the reason of absence be considered satisfactory by the Committee. The Central Committee shall, at their first meeting after the Annual General Meeting, elect from their own number a Chairman and a Vice-Chairman for the ensuing year.

6.—A Local Board shall, when recognised as such by the Central Committee, transact the business of the Fund in its own district, subject to these Rules, and under the general direction of the Central Committee. If found convenient, two or more Local Associations may unite to form a Local Board. If there be no Local Association in any district, or if the Local Association decline to form a Local Board, any number of contributors, not being less than five, may apply for recognition as such.

7.—The Central Committee shall report regularly to the Executive in the months of March and September, and the Executive shall report annually to the Conference of the National Union of Teachers on the work and progress of the Fund.

8.—The Central Committee may modify such of these Rules or adopt such additional Rules for the administration of the Fund as they may deem necessary, but all such new or modified Rules shall be presented for confirmation at the next Annual General Meeting.

9.—The Central Committee shall meet at least once in each calendar month except in the month of August. It shall appoint such Sub-Committees as may be necessary, but no loans may be granted by a Sub-Committee. All proceedings of Sub-Committees shall be reported to the Central Committee.

10.—The Central Committee shall fill any vacancy in the Committee occurring during the year. Members so elected shall hold office only until the next Annual Meeting, but shall then be eligible for re-election.

OFFICERS.

11.—The following shall be the officers of the Fund:—A Patron, Presidents, Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Trustees, Treasurer, and General Secretary. The Patron, President, and Trustees, in cases of vacancies arising, shall be elected by the Annual General Meeting of Contributors, which shall also elect the General Treasurer annually. The Chairman and Vice-Chairman shall be elected by the Central Committee. The Secretary of the National Union of Teachers shall be the Secretary of the Fund.

TRUSTEES.

12.—All moneys placed in the Public Funds shall be vested in the names of the Trustees or any three of them, who shall sign a declaration of the nature of their trust, and an engagement to relinquish it upon a resolution to that effect being passed by a General or Special Meeting of the Subscribers to the Fund. The moneys so invested shall be under the control and at the disposal of the Central Committee, whose order in writing shall be obligatory upon, and authority to, the Trustees as to any purchase, sale, or other disposal of the same. There shall never be more than five, nor less than three Trustees. No person or persons becoming bankrupt or insolvent shall continue a Trustee or Trustees of the Fund.

13.—When any vacancy in the office of Trustee shall occur, it shall be filled up at the next General Meeting of Contributors, and the existing Trustees shall immediately thereupon transfer the funds standing in their name into the names of themselves and the newly elected Trustee.

14.—The dividends due upon the funded property shall be collected by the Banker, and paid in to the account of the Fund.

TREASURER.

15.—A Treasurer shall be elected annually at the Annual General Meeting. If the office shall become vacant during the year, the Central Committee shall elect a Treasurer pro tem., who shall act until the next General Meeting.

16.—The Treasurer shall not pay any moneys on account of the Fund, except under a resolution of the Central Committee.

17.—The Treasurer shall keep the account of the Fund with such Banker as the Central Committee shall direct, but no cheque shall be paid by the Banker unless signed by the Treasurer, the Chairman of the Central Committee for the time being, or the Secretary and two members of the Finance Committee.

18.—The Banker and the Secretary may, in addition to the Treasurer, receive subscriptions and donations to the Fund, and their receipt given on an authorised printed form shall be a sufficient acknowledgment of the same.

FUNDS.

19.—The funds of the Society shall be vested in the names of Trustees. All investments must be authorised by the Central Committee, and be made under an express resolution conveyed in writing to the Trustees and endorsed by the signature of the Treasurer.

20.—The Central Committee shall apportion from year to year the proportion of the income to be invested in the Permanent Fund.

LOCAL BOARDS.

21.—Every Local Association of the National Union of Teachers desirous of forming a Local Board of the Benevolent Fund shall apply to the Central Committee for recognition. After recognition, the Local Board shall consist of such persons as are contributors to the Fund. Every Local Board shall appoint a Committee of not less than three persons, and shall elect, in addition, a Chairman and Local Secretary, both of whom shall be ex-officio members of the Committee.

22.—Every Local Board shall report to the Central Committee twice every year, in the months of June and December, and shall at the same time forward to the General Treasurer a statement of all moneys received and expended on account of the Fund, together with the balance (if any) of such account, subject to Rule 23.

23.—Every Local Board may, during any year, dispense in relief within its district, a sum not exceeding one-third of the total amount paid through the Local Board to the General Fund during the preceding year (subject to Rules 27-29), provided always, that on or before December 31st of each year, the whole amount for the year ending on November 30th next preceding be accounted for, and the balance forwarded to the General Treasurer. A general balance-sheet shall be presented by the Treasurer to the Central Committee not later than February 15th in each year, and copies of the same, duly audited, shall be issued with the Annual Report and Balance-Sheet of the National Union of Teachers.

24.—A Local Board shall have the right of electing one life Annuitant for every £150 contributed to the permanent Fund as special donations or payments other than annual subscriptions, and upon which the right of voting has neither been claimed nor exercised. Candidates for election by a Local Board must be previously approved by the Central Committee to be fit and proper persons to receive the benefits of the Fund.

25.—In every local election of Annuitants each local annual contributor shall have the same number of votes as in a general election (see Rule 36) and one additional vote shall be allowed for every £1 paid to the special donation which gives the right of making the election (see Rule 24).

26.—No Local Board may grant loans of money out of the Fund, nor, except as already provided, award permanent Annuities. All applications for temporary loans made to the Local Board must be sent on to the Central Committee.

TEMPORARY RELIEF.

27.—Temporary relief may be granted by the Central Committee, and by the Local Boards. No applicant shall receive, at any time, more than 15s. per week, nor for more than thirteen consecutive weeks, without a fresh application and a new investigation of the circumstances of the case. Similarly, no applicant shall receive in any one financial year a total amount of more than £20.

28.—All applications for relief must be supported by the recommendation of two officers of a Local Association of the National Union of Teachers, or of two contributors to the Fund.

29.—Applications for relief from members of the National Union of Teachers, who are or have been subscribers to the Fund, shall have the first consideration; those from members of the National Union of Teachers, who are not, and have never been subscribers to the Fund, shall be next considered; and lastly, those from other elementary teachers.

30.—A record of all cases of relief shall be made and kept for future reference. Local Secretaries shall forward to the General Secretary an alphabetical list of these cases once every half-year.

LOANS.

31.—All applications for temporary loans must be made to the Central Committee. Applicants must be members of the National Union of Teachers or contributors to the Fund, and the names of two responsible persons must be given as security for the payment of each amount borrowed. No loan may exceed the sum of £15.

32.—No special charges of any kind shall be made for the granting of loans, but borrowers must pay interest at the rate of 2½ per cent. for any term not exceeding one year, and 5 per cent. for each succeeding year or part of a year. Loans without interest may, in special cases, be granted by the Central Committee.

ANNUITIES.

33.—Annuities of £30 per annum for males, and £25 for females, may be granted to teachers and their widows who are, or have been, subscribers to the Fund. No candidate shall be eligible for election as an Annuitant who has not been for at least three years a contributor to the Fund.

34.—No annuity shall be granted at any General or Local Election of Annuitants to any applicant under the age of fifty-five (males) and fifty (females), unless such applicant is afflicted with paralysis, insanity, total blindness, or other calamity which prevents the applicant from earning a subsistence, and which affliction shall have occurred subsequent to the applicant having become a Subscriber to the Fund.

35.—Widows who are Annuitants shall cease to receive relief if they marry again

36.—In any general election of Annuitants every Member and Life Member shall have one vote, every Governor and Life Governor shall have four votes, every Vice-President shall have ten votes, and every Vice-Patron shall have twenty votes each, for one-fourth of the number of candidates to be elected. Every life contribution of £5 shall confer twenty votes for one year, in addition to the Life Vote.

37.—All candidates for annuities must be recommended by at least four contributors (two of whom must be teachers), or by four teachers (two of whom must be contributors or members of the National Union of Teachers), and shall produce satisfactory proof of age and such other evidence as may be required by the Central Committee.

38. — An election of Annuitants shall be held in March of each year, and the Central Committee shall decide the number of Annuitants to be elected. Before every general election of Annuitants, the Central Committee shall prepare a list of approved candidates, from which list the election shall be made. A copy of the list and the voting paper shall be sent to each person entitled to vote at least fourteen days before the date fixed for any election.

39.—In all elections of Annuitants each candidate shall be allowed ten votes for every Annual Subscription paid to the Fund. Life Contributors who are candidates for an Annuity shall be allowed twenty votes for each year that has elapsed since the Life Contribution was paid, but this allowance shall never exceed two hundred votes. Any Subscriber or Life Contributor's Widow, being a Candidate for an Annuity, shall receive votes in the same proportion. The votes recorded in favour of unsuccessful candidates shall be carried forward to their credit in succeeding elections.

40. — The Central Committee shall have power to suspend any Annuitant from the benefits of the Fund, who shall anticipate the payment thereof, or charge or encumber the same in any manner, or who shall by improper conduct become unworthy to be continued on the Fund.

41.—All Annuities shall be paid quarterly except in cases where the Central Committee deem it advisable to make other arrangements.

42.—If it shall appear that the circumstances of a candidate at the time of election were misrepresented, or if any Annuitant is found to be able to earn a living, or to be possessed of an income independent of the annuity, then the Central Committee shall have power to suspend or reduce the annuity according to the circumstances, until the next General Meeting, when the facts of the case shall be reported and action taken.

43.—Special Annuities of not more than £25 may be granted to the widows of such members of the National Union of Teachers as were for at least three years contributors to the Fund. The Annuitants shall be elected in the same manner, and shall be subjected to the same restrictions, as ordinary Annuitants, 44.—The Central Committee shall have power to accept from individual teachers donations of not less than £100, upon condition of paying to the donor for any period, not exceeding the continuance of his or her life, interest on the amount of the donation at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum; but such donation shall not confer on the donor any right of voting at any meeting or election in connection with the Fund. Such donations shall be separately invested by the Committee in such securities as they may deem advisable.

ANNUAL MEETING.

45.—An Annual Meeting of the Contributors shall be held every year in connection with the Conference of the National Union of Teachers, when the Treasurer, Central Committee, and (in case of Vacancies) the Patron, Presidents, or Trustees shall be elected, special grants sanctioned, and the General Business of the Fund shall be transacted. All motions put to the vote at a General Meeting shall be decided by show of hands, but if any decision is challenged by ten members then present, a ballot of the whole of the members shall be taken, the Chairman appointing a day for that purpose. Members shall have the right of voting by proxy.

46.—Any Contributor may nominate one Contributor for Election on the Central Committee by the Annual General Meeting; and Nominations may also be made by the Central Committee. All Notices of Motion, Notices of Alteration of Rules, and Nominations for any General Meeting must be sent to the Secretary at least twenty-eight days previously.

ANNUAL REPORT.

47.—An annual report, containing the balance sheet, rules, list of subscribers, &c., shall be prepared and issued to subscribers not later than the first day of June in each year.

ALTERATION OF RULES.

48.—No alteration in, or addition to, these Rules, except as provided for in Rule 8, may be made, except at a General Meeting of which at least twenty-eight days' notice has been given.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL FOR THE YEAR 1891.

It is gratifying to the Council to be again able to report that the work of the Institution continues to progress. Every year supplies additional evidence of the necessity for such a Fund, and the growing income from an increased number of supporters may be taken as convincing proof that the Institution is finding more favour with the general body of teachers.

The object of the Charity is to succour lone and helpless children who by reason of the death or incapacity of their natural guardians might be deprived of even the common necessities of life. The work of relief began in 1879, when half a dozen children received assistance, but last year, as will be seen from the following table, this number was greatly exceeded, 194 children having been aided through the operations of the Society.

During the past year the Institution has lost the services of several old and valued friends. Mr. John W. Grove, a Trustee of the Fund from its establishment; Mr. George Collins, a member of the Council by virtue of his position as President of the National Union of Teachers; Mr. John Russell, editor of the Schoolmaster; Mr. Andrew Wild, of East London; Mr. T. Mee, of Leeds; Mr. H. J. Biffen, of Cheltenham; and other well-known supporters of the Fund have been called away. Mr. Heller, the General Secretary, has been incapacitated by serious illness, and the Council much regret that the state of his health will not permit him to resume his duties. It will be difficult to replace such workers, but the Council trust that enthusiastic friends will be raised up to carry on the good work which they had so much at heart.

THE ORPHAN HOMES.

The necessity for the efficient maintenance of the Homes has been kept well in view by the two House Committees, and all that friends could suggest for the comfort and well-being of the children, has been carefully considered and as far as possible carried into effect. Separate reports from each Home are appended, in which interesting particulars of the successes and progress of the children are detailed, and the testimony of the medical officers show that on the score of health little is left to be desired. Greater attention has been given to the education of the elder pupils, and the advantages provided appear to have produced excellent results.

Every encouragement is given to those who leave the Homes to maintain correspondence with the Council, and it is a pleasure to report that two old boys have sent contributions during the past year towards the support of the Fund.

The Council have had under consideration the best means of providing permanent Homes, but, as yet, nothing definite has been done. Various properties in and near London have been viewed, but whether it will be more advantageous and satisfactory to purchase one of them or to obtain an eligible site and erect buildings suited to the needs of the Institution has not yet been decided.

This year there is a slight increase in the number of gifts to the Homes, which the Council note with pleasure and satisfaction. A complete list is appended for each Home.

HOME ALLOWANCES.

The amount expended towards the support of children who are in the care of guardians exceeds by £108 the payments of last year. Ninety-six Allowances and thirty Special Grants were made, and the assistance thereby rendered has been of incalculable benefit to many families; so poor were the circumstances of some of them that but for such help they would have been obliged to seek shelter in the workhouse. Every effort is made to ensure the proper and legitimate application of the grants.

One youth who formerly received an Allowance has given practical proof of his appreciation by sending a subscription.

FESTIVAL DINNER.

Last May the second Festival Dinner in aid of the Fund, jointly with that of the Teachers' Benevolent Fund, was held at the Holborn Restaurant, when Sir Joseph Savory, Lord Mayor of London, presided. The Council were gratified to find that their efforts to make the Peckham House (which his lordship honoured with a visit) a real home for the boys, were so warmly commended. They have the satisfaction of reporting that a sum of £276 11s. 2d. was received in subscriptions at the dinner. This included the handsome donation of one hundred guineas from John Edgar, Esq., who gave it on the condition of its being devoted to the erection of a new Home.

BALANCE SHEET.

A change has been made in the form of presenting the annual financial statement, which it is hoped will be readily understood. No information hitherto given has been omitted, but the various sources of income, as well as a detailed account of expenditure, can now be seen at a glance. The income has this year exceeded £5,000, and for so worthy a cause such an amount is the very lowest that should be annually placed at the disposal of the Council. It will be noted that the investments have been increased by the purchase of £1196 New Zealand 4 per cent. Inscribed Stock.

CONFERENCE SCHEME AND THE TROPHIES.

The results of the last Conference effort reflect greatly to the credit of the various contributing associations, chief amongst which must be ranked Cardiff and the Rhondda. Some associations, took an active part in the work of the Charities for almost the first time, and their zeal will, it is hoped, be manifested again and again. The West Yorks' Challenge Shield and the Birmingham Trophies were both carried off by the Rhondda Association, whose aggregate total of £1,768 15s. 3d., and average per member of £13 12s. 1d., have never been equalled, and will not easily be surpassed. The Cardiff teachers raised nearly £1,100, and very hearty thanks are specially due to Mr. Walter Brockington, B.A., Mr. C. Whitaker, Mr. E. C. Willmott, and Mrs. Bevan for the grand results obtained, and for the very successful meeting at the presentation of purses, when the Marchioness of Bute so graciously and efficiently officiated.

LOCAL SECRETARIES.

Very much depends on the zeal and activity of Local Secretaries, and the Council very thankfully recognise the self-denying labours of the workers who are at present acting in this capacity. In a Local Association, where it is no one's special duty to keep the claims of the Institution before the notice of the members, it too often happens that they are overlooked and the Association is, consequently, unrepresented in the Charity Lists. The Council earnestly trust that before the next annual meeting every Association in connection with the National Union will have appointed a Local Secretary willing to undertake this honourable and important work.

CONCLUSION.

The Council gratefully acknowledge the kindness and generosity shown by many friends and supporters in the past, and they plead for a continuance of such favours. With increased means the power for good becomes enlarged, and the Council desire to be in a position in the future to grant speedy help to every orphan child whose circumstances call for aid. To the attainment of this end they appeal to all workers to enlist the sympathy of others in the cause. With united endeavours the efforts and triumphs of the past can easily be surpassed and greater good accomplished.

W. H. JEFFRIES, Assistant Secretary.

March 25th, 1892.

EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF PECKHAM HOUSE COMMITTEE.

THE House Committee present their Annual Report with feelings of pleasure and thankfulness. The continued success of the Institution as a Home for fatherless boys, who might otherwise be left to struggle unaided through childhood, cannot but be pleasing to the friends of the Institution, and the comparative immunity from sickness which has marked the past year is a subject for gratitude.

Forty boys are now in the Home, including six who have entered since the date of the Committee's last report. Four have left during the year, and they have all been successful in obtaining suitable employment. It is also gratifying to be able to report that good accounts continue to be received of those who had previously been educated in the Home.

The general education of the majority of the boys is still carried on at the Nunhead Passage School, and a separate report from the headmaster is appended. Supplementary instruction is given in the Home by Mr. Colman to the senior boys in Algebra, French, &c. The Committee have thought it desirable to provide a higher education for the more promising boys, and three of them have been sent to Alleyn's School, Dulwich, where they have already given promise of doing credit to themselves and the school. Lessons on the pianoforte are given to nine boys, by Messrs. J. and E. Collins, the former of whom gives his services gratuitously, and gratifying progress has been made. A second piano is a necessity, and the Committee hope that this may be supplied at no distant date by some friend of the Institution. G. Gulliver and A. Lewis, Scholarship boys at Alleyn's School and St. Olave's School, Southwark, respectively, continue to make excellent progress.

Great interest continues to be taken in swimming and football, and many successes have been gained. Several of the boys took part in a football match at Kennington Oval last autumn, which gained very favourable notices from the Press.

The boys make the most of their small garden plots, and, were the facilities greater, no doubt they would take still greater interest in them. The prizes for best kept gardens were awarded to H. Oliver, M. Demment, A. Mason, and S. Wenman.

Monthly reports are presented to the Committee by the members of the Rota who systematically visit the Home, and these have been of a very satisfactory character. The home-life of the Institution is maintained and freedom of action is allowed, compatible with due discipline.

The anniversary was held in September, and it proved a success. All the Old Boys who could attend were present at the entertainment and at the dinner. As time goes on the present accommodation will be altogether inadequate for these re-unions, and the Committee are looking forward to the acquisition of a Home which will be more worthy of the profession.

A visit from the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress and suite was paid in May, prior to the Second Festival Dinner in aid of the Fund. The visitors looked over the premises, chatted with the boys, and expressed themselves as highly gratified with all they had seen.

A Comparative Statement of the average cost for four years is here given. There is a slight diminution again this year which shows the average cost at the lowest point yet reached.

A list of gifts is appended, and the Committee wish to express their public acknowledgment to the donors.

The honorary officers of the Home—J. S. Bristowe, Esq., M.D., J. W. Walker, Esq., M.D., A. Young, Esq., and J. Gater, Esq.—have ever been ready to give their valuable services when needed, and the Committee wish to thank them very heartily. Mr Dawson has at all times been willing to apply any educational tests which the Committee thought necessary in the interest of the boys, and his kindness is hereby acknowledged. The officers of the Home have ably and zealously discharged their duties, and they have earned this special commendation.

MEDICAL REPORT.

Peckham Rye, S.E., February 24th, 1892.

I have again the pleasure of informing the Committee that the health of the inmates of the Orphanage during the past year has been fairly good. There have been several cases of illness, more or less slight, and one somewhat serious accident has occurred; but there has been no epidemic, nor any case of illness calling for special comment, and we have been specially fortunate in having but very few victims of the influenza.

J. WM. WALKER, M.D.,
Hon. Medical Officer.

SCHOOL REPORT.

Nunhead Passage School, February 24th, 1892.

There are at present thirty-five boys from the Orphanage in attendance. They are classified as follows:—

Standard VII.—Thirteen.	Standard III.—Six.
„ VI.—Five.	„ II.—One.
„ V.—Five.	„ I.—Two.
„ IV.—Three.

All passed the Government Examination and were duly promoted. Thirty-two passes in Chemistry and Physiography and Hygiene have been gained last year by those boys, of which fifteen were first class. Five of the boys were awarded money prizes at the last School Board Exhibition in Drawing. The results of the Scripture examination have not yet been received.

The School Football Team, of which the Orphanage boys form quite half, have played and won eleven matches. They hold the South London Schools' Challenge Cup.

No fewer than forty-three prizes were gained by these boys last season in Swimming competitions.

I have again to report that the general conduct of the lads has been all that could be desired, and they continue to exert a most valuable influence in the school.

RICHD. BALCHIN, Head Master.

FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SHEFFIELD HOUSE COMMITTEE.

The Committee are pleased to be able to report that the Orphanage has been successfully and efficiently conducted during the past year. There are twenty-five girls now in residence. Five have left during the year, four of whom have completed their term of residence, and one has gone with her mother to Canada, while four new inmates have been admitted during the past twelve months. The health of all the children has been uniformly good and their attendance at school most regular. Five of the children are now attending the Central Higher Board School, and as will be seen from the accompanying report, are making excellent progress, two First Class and eight Second Class Science Certificates having been obtained at the last May examinations. The other children continue to attend Pitsmoor School where their progress is very satisfactory. Two more girls will be nominated for the next entrance examination at the Central School. The Committee are pleased to record that two girls from Pitsmoor School, who attended a Scripture examination, were successful in each obtaining a prize of Ten Shillings.

In March a new piano was generously presented by Mr. Councillor Burn, Mayor of Stockton-on-Tees, thus enabling the Committee to provide better facilities for their musical instruction. Twelve of the girls are now taking lessons from a competent teacher. In connection with the above a sum of £4 18s. was given, mostly in one shilling donations, during the early part of the year, of which sum £2 18s. 6d. has been expended in providing music stools and pieces for practice, leaving a balance of £1 19s. 6d. to be devoted to a similar purpose in the future.

During the year the Sheffield School Board purchased the land in front of the Orphanage, for the purpose of erecting a new school. This necessitated the providing of a new approach to the Institution, and also the relaying of fresh gas and water pipes. The whole of the cost of these alterations has been borne by His Grace the Duke of Norfolk, who is the ground landlord. The Cooking and Hot Water Apparatus has also been replaced and put in a thoroughly effective condition.

The average cost of the Institution is as follows: -

	Average Cost.
	1888. 17 Girls.	1889. 22 Girls.	1890. 26 Girls.	1891. 26 Girls.

As will be seen from the accompanying list, gifts of considerable value have been received during the past twelve months, and hearty thanks have been awarded to the donors for their kindness.

The Committee desire to again express their sincerest thanks to George Robinson, Esq., the hon. surgeon, who has been unremitting in the care and attention which he has bestowed upon the children, visiting the Orphanage regularly and frequently throughout the year. Also to Dr. Dyson, the hon. physician, and W. C. Drabble, Esq., the hon. dental surgeon, for their willingness to serve the Institution when needed.

The Committee desire to accord their hearty thanks to the Matron, to Mr. C. Cusworth for his able services in the chair, and also to Mr. I. H. Morris, secretary, for the admirable manner in which the business of the Home is conducted.

MEDICAL REPORT.

Pitsmoor, February, 1892.

I have great pleasure in testifying to the satisfactory condition of health of the children of the Teachers' Orphanage during the past year.

There has been perfect immunity from zymotic and all other diseases.

GEO. ROBINSON, M.R.C.S., & L.S.A.

SCHOOL REPORTS.

Pitsmoor School.

I have again great pleasure in presenting my report of the children from Firs Hill Orphanage. They are punctual, obedient, and attentive to their duties, and give me great satisfaction in every respect. The high tone prevailing among them is very noticeable, and must be very gratifying to the Committee of the Institution.

H. TRUELOVE, Head Mistress.

Central School, Higher Department, Sheffield, February 3rd, 1892.

DEAR MR. MORRIS,—I am pleased to be able to speak very highly of the girls who attend here from the Orphanage. During the past year all have given their teachers and myself every satisfaction with regard to their attendance, conduct, and work.

At present there are five in the school—two in Standard Ex.-VII., and three in Standard VII.

During the year three have left the school—Emma Hands and Alice Turner, at Christmas, and Gertrude Holland, in March; I am quite sure they will do well wherever they may be placed.

I am, yours faithfully,

J. EDWD. TAYLOR, M.A., B.Sc. (Lond.), Principal.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—We have audited the accounts for the year ending December 31st, 1891.

The vouchers for expenditure and the counterfoils for receipts are all in capital order, and the balance at the bank exactly tallies with that shown in the Treasurer's book. This constitutes a true check.

We have to bear similar testimony to that of former years, as to the systematic and efficient manner in which all the various details of your finances have been recorded. The books reflect much credit on the Secretary, and the periodical examination of the entries by various members of the Council constitutes a perpetual audit.

The securities for the investments are carefully safeguarded at the bank, and are under the control of three members who have access thereto, only collectively. These we found perfectly correct. The cash statement presents this year, at one view, the financial operations and position of the Institution, and is so far a very considerable improvement on the arrangement of previous years. It is a matter of mutual congratulation that the income of the Institution exceeds by about £1,000 that of the previous or any former year, and not less so that the enthusiasm of the members of your Council, as shown in their efforts to swell its resources and to administer its affairs on the soundest principles of economy, remains unabated.

We are, Ladies and Gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

CHAS. WILSON, }
HY. WESTON, } Auditors.

TITLE.

1.—The Fund shall be called "The Teachers' Orphanage and Orphan Fund."

OBJECTS.

2.—The objects of the Fund shall be: (1) To erect, partially endow, and maintain Orphan Homes for the Orphans and Necessitous Children of Teachers. (2) To make grants and allowances to the Orphans and Necessitous Children of Teachers. In this and subsequent Rules the term "Necessitous Child" shall mean a child whose father is permanently incapacitated.

FUNDS.

3.—A general balance sheet, showing the whole of the receipts for, and the amounts expended on the Orphan Homes, for Home Allowances and Special Grants, and on the general management of the Fund, shall be presented to the Council by the Treasurer not later than the first Friday in March of each year, and a copy of the same duly audited shall be issued with the Annual Report of the National Union of Teachers.

4.—The Funds shall be vested in the names of Trustees. Every investment must be sanctioned by the Council, and be made under the authority of an express resolution conveyed in writing to the Trustees, and endorsed by the signature of the Treasurer.

5.—The Trustees and Treasurer shall at all times when requested by the Council, give such information concerning the funds in their hands as the Council may require.

MEMBERSHIP.

6.—Any person contributing 5s. per annum shall be a "Member" of the Fund, and a contributor of £5 within a period of two years shall be a "Life Member." Any person contributing £1 per annum shall be a "Governor," and a contributor of £20 in not more than four payments shall be a "Life Governor." Any person contributing £50 in not more than ten payments shall be a "Vice-President," and any person contributing £100 in not more than twenty payments shall be a "Vice-Patron."

7.—Any person having collected and paid to the Fund, during two consecutive years, a sum or sums of £5 as donations or new annual subscriptions, shall be a Life Member; and any person having similarly collected and paid a sum of £20 in not more than four payments shall be a Life Governor. Similarly, any person having collected and paid a sum of £50 in not more than ten payments shall be a Vice-President; and any person having collected and paid a sum of £100 in not more than twenty payments shall be a Vice-Patron. Local Associations or other corporate bodies subscribing, or collecting and paying to the Fund, double the amounts named in this Rule, shall exercise for a period of twenty years the same privileges as individual contributors.

8.—In any general election of candidates to the Orphan Homes or Orphan Allowances every Member and Life Member shall have one vote, every Governor and Life Governor shall have four votes, every Vice-President shall have ten votes, and every Vice-Patron shall have twenty votes each for one-fourth of the number of candidates to be elected. Every Life Contribution of £5 shall confer twenty votes for one year, in addition to the Life Vote. The votes recorded in favour of unsuccessful candidates shall be carried forward to their credit in succeeding elections.

MANAGEMENT.

9.—The management of the Orphanage and Orphan Fund shall be vested in a Council, consisting of the Officers of the National Union of Teachers, the Treasurer of the Fund, the Chairman of the Sheffield House Committee, and thirty other Contributors, one-third of whom shall be elected by the Executive of the National Union of Teachers from its own body, and the remaining two-thirds by the Annual General Meeting. One-half of the Members elected by the Annual General Meeting shall retire annually by rotation, but shall be eligible for re-election. Any member of the Council being absent from the meetings of the Council and its committees for three successive months shall be deemed to have resigned, unless the reason of absence be considered satisfactory by the Council.

10.—Every Local Association of the National Union of Teachers contributing in any year the sum of at least £50 may elect a member to serve on the Council for one year from the date of the next Annual General Meeting.

11.—The Council shall report to the Executive in the months of March and October, and the Executive shall report annually to the Conference of the National Union of Teachers, on the work and progress of the Fund.

12.—The Council may adopt such additional Rules for the administration of the Fund as they may deem necessary, but all such Rules shall be presented for confirmation at the next Annual General Meeting.

13.—The Council shall meet at least once in each calendar month except in the month of August. They shall appoint such Committees as may be necessary. The Officers, being members of the Council, shall be ex-officio members of all Committees and Sub-Committees, and all proceedings of Committees shall be reported to the Council.

14.—The Council shall fill any vacancy in its body occurring during the year. Members so elected shall hold office only until the next Annual General Meeting, but shall be eligible for re-election. Members who retire under this rule shall be counted as part of the half who retire under Rule 9.

OFFICERS.

15.—The Officers of the Fund shall be a Patron, Presidents, Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Trustees, Treasurer, and Secretary. The Patron, President, Trustees, and Treasurer shall be elected by the Annual General Meeting, and the Chairman and Vice-Chairman by the Council, from its own body, at the first meeting after the Annual General Meeting. The Secretary of the National Union of Teachers shall be Secretary of the Fund.

TRUSTEES.

16.—All moneys placed in the Public Funds shall be vested in the names of the Trustees or any three of them, who shall sign a declaration of the nature of their trust, and an engagement to relinquish it upon a resolution to that effect being passed by a General or Special Meeting of the Contributors to the Fund. The moneys so invested shall be under the control and at the disposal of the Council, whose order in writing, agreed to by a majority of two-thirds of the members present, and voting at any properly constituted meeting, shall be obligatory upon, and authority to, the Trustees as to any purchase, sale, or other disposal of the same. There shall never be more than five nor less than three Trustees. No person or persons becoming bankrupt or insolvent shall continue a Trustee or Trustees of the Fund.

17.—When any vacancy in the office of Trustee shall occur, it shall be filled up at the next General Meeting of the Contributors, and the existing Trustees shall immediately thereupon transfer the funds standing in their names into the names of themselves and the newly-elected Trustee.

18.—The dividends due upon the funded property shall be collected by the Banker, and paid in to the account of the Fund.

TREASURER.

19.—A Treasurer shall be elected annually at the Annual General Meeting. If the office shall become vacant during the year, the Council shall elect a Treasurer pro tem., who shall act until the next General Meeting.

20.—The Treasurer shall not pay any moneys on account of the Fund, except on receiving a written order signed by at least three members of the Council and countersigned by the Secretary.

21.—The Treasurer shall keep the account of the Fund with such Banker as the Council shall direct, but no cheque shall be paid by the Banker unless signed by the Treasurer, the Chairman of the Council for the time being, or the Secretary and two members of the Finance Committee.

22.—The Secretary may receive contributions to the Fund, and his receipt, given on an authorised printed form, shall be a sufficient acknowledgment of the same.

LOCAL SECRETARIES AND COMMITTEES.

23.—Each Association in connection with the National Union of Teachers may appoint a Local Secretary and a Committee consisting of three or more persons, all of whom must be members of the Fund. All official business between the Local Committee and the Council shall be conducted through such Local Secretary. The Local Secretary and the Committee are to be re-appointed annually by the subscribers.

24.—Every Local Committee shall be recognised by the Council, and shall be empowered to collect subscriptions, and in every way to promote the interests of the Fund in the district. A report shall be made by the Local Committee to the Council once in each year, in the month of December, accompanied by a statement of all moneys received and expended on account of the Fund, together with any balance in hand.

THE ORPHAN HOMES.

25.—Freehold or leasehold sites shall be secured in convenient centres, each adequate for the accommodation of about fifty children, and buildings capable of accommodating that number erected upon them; but the Council have discretionary power to secure, if possible, sites with buildings already erected, capable of adaptation for the purposes of the Orphan Homes.

26.—Separate Homes shall be provided for boys and girls.

27.—The education of the inmates of the Orphan Homes shall be given, if possible, in some Elementary, Higher Grade, or Secondary School, and supplemented within the Homes.

28.—The Orphans of Teachers may, if the accommodation permit, receive the full benefits of the Institution (without general election) on payment of such rates as shall be fixed from time to time by the Council.

29.—Any Local Association of the National Union of Teachers may elect one Orphan or Necessitous Child to the full benefits of one of the Orphan Homes for every sum of £160 contributed by such Association to the Fund, as donations or payments other than Annual Subscriptions, and upon which the right of voting has neither been claimed nor exercised. This sum shall be reduced by £20 for every year of the candidate's age on admission above the age of seven years.

30.—All candidates for free admission must be the Orphans or Necessitous

Children of persons who have been Teachers of Elementary Schools, and must produce such certificates of age, health, &c., as may be required from time to time by the Council. An undertaking must be given for the removal of such children from the Orphan Homes on attaining the age of fifteen years, or before if required by the Council.

31.—The Council may select (without general election) and maintain in the Orphan Homes one-fourth or the nearest number above one-fourth of the total number of candidates admitted free, such candidates to be children of those who are or have been for at least three years Members of the National Union of Teachers and Subscribers to the Orphanage Fund.

32.—All applications for admission to the Orphan Homes, or for Home Allowances or Special Grants, must be supported by two persons who are Subscribers to the Fund or Members of the National Union of Teachers, and be recommended by a Local Association.

33.—No Orphan or Necessitous Child may be admitted, except in special cases, before the age of seven years, nor shall he retained in the Orphan Homes beyond the age of fifteen years. Orphans may become candidates at the age of six years, but may not be admitted after the age of twelve.

34.—Every child admitted into the Orphan Homes shall receive, unless objection be taken by the surviving parent or responsible guardian, religious instruction of an undenominational character, such instruction to be given by the Matron or other appointed officer.

REPORT OF THE GENERAL BOARD OF MANAGEMENT FOR THE YEAR 1891.

The General Board of Management are pleased to report that the past year's work of the Society will compare very favourably with that of any former year, and it is gratifying to find that the benefits of the Society are more appreciated by teachers generally.

Membership.—The Society now numbers 879 members, who are assured for 1,087 separate benefits. Of these, 522 are in the Deposit Branch, 313 in the Ordinary Branch, and 44 in both branches. 199 new members, paying for 228 benefits, have been enrolled during the year, and the Board are pleased to note that no less than 138 of these have joined the Society through Local Agencies.

Finance.—With an increase in membership, is found a corresponding augmentation in funds, which now reach the sum of £7,663 ls. 6d., or an increase of £1,600 15s. 11d. over last year's total. The safe investment of the surplus funds still receives the greatest consideration on the part of the Board, as they feel that on this largely depends the stability of the Society. Since the closing of the year's account, a further sum of £1,000 has been invested in leasehold security, this will account for the large amount standing to the credit of the Society in the General Post Office and London and County Banks. The Annual Income of the Society now exceeds £2,873.

The Board are pleased to note the success that has attended the introduction of the new Pension Table III. (a). for a glance at the balance-sheet will show that the payments to that table during the past year, almost equal those of either of the other two Pension Tables.

As in previous years, the Annual Return to the Registrar of Friendly Societies is appended to the Cash Statement for the past year.

Sickness.—During the year £279 8s. 3d. has been paid to 54 Ordinary Members, and £252 11s. 6d. to 87 Deposit Members, for Sick Pay. This is larger than during any preceding year, the largest amount previously paid being £407 2s. 11d. to 96 members in 1890, but the Board feel that, taking into account the recurrence of the influenza epidemic, and the extension of the membership of the Society, that the sum paid as Sick Pay is below the amount usually disbursed by similar Societies. It is well to note that this benefit has been spread over a larger number of members, viz., 141 as against 96 in the previous year, thus showing, that a larger number of teachers have received direct benefit from the Society.

"Rest" for 1891.—Notwithstanding the increased amount of Sick Pay, it is highly gratifying to find that 83 per cent. of the Deposit Members' contributions for Sick Pay has been returned to the Members' "Rest."

Death.—Again the balance-sheet shows a death payment under Table VI., and, in addition, two members in the Deposit Branch, and three in the Ordinary Branch, have died during the year. The Board feel that through the deaths of Mr. Mee and Mr. Grove, late members of the Executive, the Society has lost the services of two of its best supporters. Mr. Grove was one of the Founders of the Society as well as one of its Trustees from the very commencement; and also one of the most stalwart champions, when it needed men of faith and determination to bring the necessity of such a Society home to the minds of teachers generally.

Resignation of the General Secretary.—It was with very deep regret that the Board recently received the resignation of the General Secretary, Mr. T. E. Heller. He took a large part in the formation and registration of the Society, and for the past fifteen years has worked most zealously and assiduously in its behalf. Believing most keenly in the necessity for such a Society, he looked forward to the time when it would prove itself a boon to teachers and one of the most important branches of the Union's work. The Board believe that he will carry with him in his enforced retirement the deepest sympathy of every member of this Society.

The new General Secretary of the National Union of Teachers has kindly undertaken to carry on the labours which have been so efficiently and voluntarily discharged by Mr. Heller in the past.

General Treasurer.—Mr. E. T. Morgan having been nominated as a trustee does not seek re-election. Mr. H. East, who has proved himself one of the most active members of the Society, and who for the past two years has been Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Management, has been nominated for the post of General Treasurer, and the Board believe that if elected he will fill the office with zeal and ability.

Trustees.—In consequence of the death of Mr. Grove it is necessary to fill the vacancy in the Trusteeship, and the Board are pleased to find that Mr. Morgan, who has been connected with the Society from the commencement, and has filled the office of Treasurer for several years, has allowed himself to be nominated for the post. The late General Secretary will also retain an official connection with the Society, as he has allowed himself to be nominated for the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Gardner, one of the Trustees of the Society.

Local Agencies.—The Board are pleased to note the steady increase in the size and number of the Local Agencies, as they believe that it is mainly through the efforts of the Officers of the Agencies that the membership is increased and "local" enthusiasm is maintained. Onerous as the duties of these officers are becoming, yet the Board are gratified to be able to bear testimony to the excellent manner in which the contributions are collected and remitted to the Central Office, and they feel that the members of the Society are deeply indebted to those ladies and gentlemen engaged in this work.

The following agencies have commenced active work during the year:—Downham, Ely, Northfleet, N.W. Surrey, Oxford, and Pontefract, thus bringing the number of "active" agencies up to thirty-five.

Deputations.—Members of the Board of Management and Secretaries of Local Agencies have spoken on behalf of the Society at the meetings of the following Associations during the past year:—Atherstone, Brighton, and Redhill, and the Board anticipate that good results will soon follow their efforts. In addition to this, prospectuses have been issued to 796 teachers, in forty different Associations where no agencies exist, thus bringing the Society immediately under their notice, and inviting them to join the Central Agency, until the formation of a local one. Over 5,000 prospectuses have been distributed among teachers since last May.

As a further evidence of the progress of the Society, it is pleasing to find that individual members of the Central Agency are bringing the Society under the notice of the members in their own Associations with a view of forming Local Agencies. In order to help these "missionaries," the Board has had prepared a paper suitable for reading at Association meetings. This sets forth the objects and working of the Society, and at the same time affords the most recent and reliable information. The paper will be forwarded to any member willing to read it at an Association meeting.

Management.—A glance at the table of attendances will show that the Board still maintain their interest in the welfare of the Society, although the duties press more heavily year by year.

The following members retire, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election:—Messrs. Blackburn, Goffin, James, Leary, Pink, and Miss Mitchell. Messrs. Brooks and Woods have resigned their seats on the Board, and Mr. Brown does not seek re-election.

Conclusion.—In looking back upon the work of the Society since its establishment fourteen years ago, the Board cannot but note the giant strides that the Society has taken during the past three or four years, and they are sanguine that the next few years will show even a greater increase in the membership and funds of the Society. The "necessity" of the Society has been acknowledged, the direct "benefits" have been proved, and the Board would urge it as the duty of all members to do what they can to extend the Society's operations. The work of the past has been too much the work of the "few," whereas if the "many" were to do what they can in their own immediate professional circle, the Society would largely increase, and they in proportion would be strengthening their own position.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

To the Members of the Teachers' Provident Society.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,—We have little to add to the remarks made in our former reports.

The standard of excellency in the order and method of the books is fully maintained. Your able Assistant Secretary is ever ready, and with him at our side, the labours of the audit have been reduced to a minimum.

We have thoroughly examined the books and statements, and now certify that the various entries and balances set out in the returns submitted to you are in exact accordance with the accounts kept.

It is an excellent feature in the management of your Society that the members of the Board examine and check all entries month by month, and so constitute a perpetual audit of the most reliable character.

We found a Mortgage Deed for each of your Advances and Stock Certificates for your Investments. The Loans are all well secured. The balances in the Bank Book and in the Post Office Savings Bank are correctly stated in the Balance Sheet.

Congratulating you on the continued success of your Society's operations,

We remain,

Yours faithfully,

C. WILSON,

R. J. P. CAMPBELL,

Auditors.

DRAWING FOR CLASS TEACHING.

Each copy should be drawn in the first place as an example in Freehand Drawing. If the pupil has had some practice in the Model Drawing of straight-lined objects, the copy may be drawn in a position similar to B or C. The outer lines or rectangle should be correctly drawn in the first place. Afterwards the curves it contains must be drawn as they appear. The apparent difference of the curves between X and Z, compared with those between W and Y, will forcibly show the effect produced by fore-shortening (perspective) on their shape.

Prospectus, with specimen of drawing thereon, post free on application.

These Copies are ADAPTED from specimens of various styles of Ornament, and are specially suitable for Class Teaching. THE COLOUR makes the Copy attractive to children, enables them to distinguish the form more readily, and induces a habit, so useful to draughtsmen, of looking at and comparing masses or spaces, instead of simply observing outlines. It is not intended that the Colour should be copied by the children, though, when possible, the Teachers will find it useful to allow this practice as a reward for careful drawing. Sample Copies on a small scale are printed to show the effect of Coloured and Uncoloured Copies, and can be had gratis on application.
